West Decides Berlin Will Stay Divided

Friction Areas Are Scheduled To Be Removed

GENEVA (AP) — The Western powers - reported weighing a fistful of proposals for a compromise on the Berlin issue - came out Saturday with a new suggestion.

It was for leaving the divided city divided, but at the same time removing the sharpest points of possible friction. In line with this, the West pledged to consider Soviet complaints of anti-Communist activities in West Berlin.

The Western move came after the Soviet Union declared that earlier Western proposals to end the Berlin crisis were completely unacceptable.

While this was going on in the talks at Geneva, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev was adopting the same line in a speech in Albania. He likened the Western powers to horse dealers and said the Soviet Union has no reason to make concessions.

RED REACTION

Western diplomats said the proposals for a Berlin compromise were formulated in the last few days by experts for consideration by U.S., British, French and West German foreign ministers.

Informants said the West's attitude will be determined by the reactions of the Soviet Union during the phase of informal bargaining that began here Friday.

The West made this move in the Big Four conference after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared earlier Western proposals to end the Berlin crisis were "unacceptable from beginning to end."

Gromyko delivered a slashing attack on alleged anti-Soviet subversive and intelligence groups operating in the Allied half of divided Berlin.

He asserted the West's plan to end the East-West clash over Berlin by uniting the divided city en-

Vidalia Banker Succumbs From Bullet Wound

VIDALIA (Special) — Fred Falkenheimer, 60-year-old Vidalia banker, died early Saturday of a self inflicted bullet wound at his home at Forest Plantation, according to Dr. J. H. Pankey, Concordia Parish Coroner.

Mr. Falkenheimer was vice president and cashier of the Concordia Bank and Trust Company, a Mason, member of the Eastern Star, and a graduate of Louisiana State University. He had been in ill health since the death of his wife several months ago.

He is survived by his son, Fred Falkenheimer Jr., a junior at LSU; four brothers, Clyde and Raymond, Vidalia; Henry, Ferriday, and Dave, Vicksburg, Miss.; four sisters, Miss Eloise Falkenheimer, Mrs. Dolph Henry and Mrs. Julia F. Knight, all of Vidalia, and Mrs. M. L. Bond, Golden Meadow.

Funeral services are scheduled for 4:30 p. m. Sunday at the Vidalia Methodist Church with the Rev. R. H. Hine officiating. Interment will be in Natchez City Cemetery with Masonic rites at graveside. Foster Funeral Home of Natchez will be in charge.

Pallbearers will be W. F. Johnson, John Dale Jr., S. L. Winston, Jr., . C. Reeves, Carl Chapman, J. L. Murray, Oscar Wurster and P. L. Rountree Jr.

State License Law On Boats

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Coast Guard estimated Saturday 80,000 fishermen and small boat operators in Louisiana will be affected by the $5 registration fee on outboard motors of 10 horsepower and over.

Capt. James Ricker, chief of the Coast Guard merchant marine safety division, said at least a half-million outboard motorboat owners run their boats in waterways of the Eighth Coast Guard District. The district covers most of eight southeastern states, including Mississippi, Teras, Louisiana and New Mexico and parts of Arkansas, Oklahoma, Alabama and Florida.

The fee goes into effect April 1, 1960. Penalty for failing to pay the fee would be a $50 fine.

FOR 24 HOURS

Alarming Death Count Is Ahead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic deaths rose swiftly through the nation Saturday on this Memorial Day weekend at a pace the National Safety Council called alarming.

The highway death toll during the first 27 hours of this 54-hour weekend exceeded that for the first 38-hour period during the Memorial Day holiday last year.

"The toll is running alarmingly ahead of what the Council spokesman said, "and the worst hours are yet to come.

"Every one of these accidents had been caused by someone who gambled and lost," a Council spokesman said. "Don't gamble behind the wheel. We ask every driver to remember he is responsible not only for his own safety and his own life, but for the safety and lives of others."

FIRST HOLIDAY

The holiday, first of the summer season, attracted millions to highways despite widely scattered showers over most of the country.

The National Safety Council has estimated that 260 persons may be killed in traffic accidents over the 54-hour weekend from 6 p.m. (local time) Friday to midnight Sunday. The Council figured about 40 million automobiles will be on the highways during that period.

For comparison purposes The Associated Press conducted a national survey of traffic deaths during a 54-hour nonholiday weekend, May 15-17. The survey showed 262 persons died in traffic accidents durng the period.

In Illinois, police throughout the state maintained a "traffic condition red" alert with warning lights on police cars flashing continuously to remind motorists to be care-

SOME TRYS SLUGGISH

Trouble Scars Hoffa Planning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of James R. Hoffa's most ballyhooed organizing plans don't seem to be hitting on all cylinders.

It's not that Hoffa, the Teamsters Union president, hasn't been trying. It's indicated he is spending in the neighborhood of five to six million dollars a year on organizing campaigns — more than any other union

The Standard Oil Co. drive was directed by a Teamsters ESSO Labor Council in half a dozen states: New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Louisiana.

The AFL-CIO seems to be giving the independent Teamsters Union a real competitive run in attempts to organize truck drivers in Puerto Rico.

16.7 PER CENT HIKE

State Population Figures Released

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Commerce and Industry director Curt Siegelin said Saturday Louisiana's population has gained 16.7 per cent since 1950.

The population rose from 2,683,516 to an estimated 3,132,600 at present, he said. The expected 1970 population is 3,695,000.

Heaviest gains were in metropolitan areas surrounding New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Shreveport and Alexandria.

"These areas have been fortunate in attracting industry, which naturally brings in workers, while the rural area populations have been depleted by mechanization of farms throughout the state," he said.

"We are continually striving to induce smaller industries to move into the less populated areas to improve the economy in these regions."

St. Bernard Parish, up 349 per cent over 1950, showed the largest percentage gain. Population increased in the parish from 11,087 to 31,800 during the nine-year period.

Second highest was Jefferson, with an increase of 70 per cent, Calcasieu was third with 52 per cent.

Orleans Parish led the state with an increase of 89,655, followed by East Baton rouge with 77,664, and Jefferson with 72,327.

Cameron Parish led the state with a drop of 22 per cent, from 6,244 to 4,900. Second was Red River with a decrease of 17 per cent, followed by Bienville with 15 per cent.

In numerican decreate, Bienville led with 2,805, DeSoto was Second with 2,598 and Claiborne was third with 2,463.

Storm Hammers State

Punch Fails As Mainland Takes Blows

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Tropical storm Arlene flooded highways, uprooted trees and knocked down power lines along the Central Louisiana coast Saturday night but lost its punch as it moved inland.

There was no loss of life reported, and property damage was relatively light. But scores of families left their homes for refuge in public buildings, and heavy rains accompanying the storm attributed to a wave of traffic accidents in many parts of the Southeast.

High tides pushed up by the storm sent water almost a foot over roads in many coastal areas. Fallen trees and powerlines blocked automobile traffic along U. S. Highway 90, the main coastal highway between Jacksonville, Fla., and Houston, Tex.

Late Saturday night the center of the storm was located between Lafayette, La., and Baton Rouge. The Weather Bureau said the earlier peak winds of 50 miles per hour had died down, but locally heavy rains continued to drench all areas in the path of the storm.

Electrical power in Franklin, La., was cut off for more than an hour as the combination of wind and water dropped power lines.

State Trooper Jesse Folse in Franklin said 30 to 40 families left their homes in the low-lying community of Cypress Point. About 50 families in Pierre Part, a tiny coastal town, took refuge in the Pierre Part High School gymnasium.

The Weather Bureau, in its final storm bulletin at 9 p. m. e.s.t., said the storm would continue drifting north - northeastward at about 10 miles per hour, losing force as it went. Small craft from Morgan City, La., to Pensacola, Fla., were advised to remain in port.

Three Negroes In Monroe Area Die Violently

Violence yesterday killed three area Negroes, including one of Monroe, in three separate incidents.

Robert James Bell of Ferriday drowned in Lake St. John when the boat he was in capsized. It was his 23rd birthday.

Authorities said Bell and another Negro, identified as James Hawkins, were helping John Baylock clear out weeds in the lake near Baylock's fishing camp.

When the boat swamped, Baylock and Hawkins swam to shore but Bell, who could not swim, drowned in the 6-foot water.

Bell's body was recovered

$600-Thousand Theft Reported

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock certificates worth almost 600 thousand dollars have been stolen from the Fifth Avenue mansion of the widow of a onetime Eastman Kodak lawyer, the New York Journal American said Saturday.

The paper quoted Jane Peterson Philipp, 80-year-old artist and widow of attorney Moritz Bernard Philipp, as saying a stock salesman took the stocks out of her home.

The district attorney's office disclosed that it is investigating a complaint filed by Mrs. Philipp, but declined to give further details.

The Journal American said the Securities Exchange Commission and New York Stock Exchange have issued orders barring transfer of the allegedly stolen stocks, described as 7,000 shares of Eastman Kodak stock worth $84.50 a share.

Dr. Gallaspy Dies; Final Rites Set

Dr. Glenn T. Gallaspy, 51-year-old West Monroe physician, died Saturday night in a local hospital after a short illness.

Funeral services are set for 4 p.m. Sunday at Mulhearn's Funeral Home Chapel, with the Revs. W. D. Milton and E. E. Taylor officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park Cemetery by Mulhearn.

A native of Hickory, Miss., Dr. Gallaspy established his parctice in 1932 and has practiced continuously in West Monroe.

He was a Mason, Knight Templar, Shriner, member of the First Methodist Church in West Monroe and chairman of the Ward 5 hospital commission.

Dr. Gallaspy received his education at the University of Mississippi, Oxford, Miss., and at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. He interned at St. Anthony's Hospital, Oklohoma City, Okla.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Gladyce F. Gallaspy; a daughter, Miss Carolyn Gallaspy, West Monroe; a son, Glen Gallaspy, West Monroe; his mother, Mrs. W. L. Gallaspy, New Augusta, Miss.; two sisters, Mrs. J. I. Wasson, Union, N. J., and Mrs. T. B. Blair, Shubuta, Miss. and three brothers, G. L. Gallaspy, Oklahoma City, Okla; J. W. Gallaspy, Shreveport, and Joe D. Gallaspy, Jackson, Miss.

Pallbearers will be Earl Roark, Oscar Harrell, Gerald Neyland, Johnnie Green, Dr. Claude Smith, Dr. Ralph Talbot, John McCormick and Roy Brooks.

Members of the Ouachita Parish Medical Association of which he was a member, will be honorary pallbearers.

Scattered showers and thundershowers are expected throughout the area today, with slightly warming temperatures. Considerable cloudiness is forecast, following the standard set for the area during the past few days.

Today's high is to hit 85, with the low of 70. CAA recorded .14 inches of rainfall yesterday, with the barometer reading 29.76. The high for yesterday was 85, low 70.

Arkansans are also expected to come in for their share of the overcast skies, light rains and high temperatures.

FRANKIE CARBO JAILED

Secret Hideout Yields Fugitive

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Frankie Carbo, reputed underworld boss of boxing, was seized at a south Jersey hideout early Saturday, jailed without bail, then freed on $25,000 bond, all in 14 hours.

The 54-year-old Carbo had been a fugitive from justice since last July 24.

At an improvised hearing in a township clerk's cramped office Saturday morning, Municipal Judge William Strouse ordered him held for extradition hearing. At the prosecution's behest, he denied bail.

Joseph Tomaselli, Carbo's attorney, appealed to Judge Benjamin Dick of Camden County Court who called a hearing that lasted not quite 20 minutes.

Tomaselli argued that under a New York indictment of 10 counts charging Carbo with conspiracy and with being an underworld boxing manager and matchmaker, his client was accused only of a misdemeanor, and that the penalty upon conviction for that was one year.

INDICTED

Carbo was indicted on one count of conspiracy, seven counts of undercover management of prizefighters, and two counts of unlicensed matchmaking in fights of which the official matchmaker was the International Boxing Club of New York.

"I ask for a reasonable bail of $1,000," Tomaselli said, "certainly no more than $5,000."

James Aiken, of the Camden County prosecutor's office, representing both New York and New Jersey, contended that Carbo could get a year for each count of the indictment if he were convicted. He reemphasied what the prosecution asserted at the previous hearing—that if Carbo were entitled to bail, it should be no less than a quarter million dollars.

Judge Dzick ordered that the $25,000 bail stand until June 30 while extradition proceedings are being arranged by New York State. Meanwhile, Carbo may not leave New Jersey. He did not say where he intended to go.

Police of two states tracked down the elegantly dressed Carbo and found him taking it easy in a friend's big house in Haddon Township, Camden County.

TRAPPED IN MINE

Three Miners Wait As Machine Digs

BEAVER DAM, Ky. (UPI) — Three miners, getting air, food and water through a tube, waited patiently Saturday for a mechanical coal digger to push 500 feet through a hillside and rescue them from a caved-in mine shaft.

Eugene Quigley, safety director of the Peabody Coal Co., which operates the Ken Coal Co. mine where the men are trapped, estimated it would be midnight tonight before the mechanical "coal mole," could reach them, and, State Commissioner of Mines James Phalan agreed with that opinion.

The men were able to communicate with the surface by means of a mine radio attached to equipment they were using when the tunnel caved in behind them Friday morning.

TAIKS TO WIFE

One of them, Don McClaren, 53, of Pano, Ill., talked to his wife and said, "Just simmer down and be calm. We're all right. We'll be here when the men get to us. Take care of yourself and don't worry."

The other trapped men were identified by mine officials as Earl Bennett, 50, of Taylorsville, Ill., and Jake Lewis, 38, Harlan, Ky.

McClaren said, "We're comfortable. We have the milk and we can hear the coal mole operating."

The men were supplied with 25 gallons of milk this morning, pumped to them through their air tube. They caught it in tool boxes, lunch pails, and hard hats.

At noon today, the coal digger was a little more than 180 feet into the hillside, moving at a rate of 10 to 20 feet per hour, depending on what type of dirt or rock it ran into. The rescue tunnel is being dug roughly parallel to the one which collapsed.

Is Admitted To Hospital At Galveston

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

Gov. Earl K. Long, whose tirades turned the Legislauture upside down this week, was flown to Galveston, Tex., yesterday for psychiatric treatment.

Long's nephew, U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long, will address a joint session of the Legislature tonight to "explain the situation."

The governor, who was put to bed Thursday night after two wild appearances before the Legislature during the week, was admitted to John Sealy Hospital at Galveston.

Dr. John Truslow, hospital administrator, said Long would be under the care of noted psychiatrist Dr. Titus Harris, professor of psychiatry at the University of Texas.

Long now 63 was taken aboard a National Guard plane on a stretcher at Baton Rouge yesterday morning and flown to Galveston where he traveled by auto from the airport to the hospital.

His family and state officials declined to disclose details of Long's condition leading up to a decision to submit him to the hospital.

NEWSMEN

Newsmen were unable to learn who made the decision to send Long away. But it was known that Mrs. Long put him to bed under doctor's care.

With Long out of state, Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar took over as acting governor.

Meanwhile, the Legislature is scheduled to hear an address by Russell Long tonight at 7:30.

In a statement to reporters Saturday; Russell Long said he would speak to a joint session "on behalf of the family" to explain the situation."

He said the governor had left the state under the care of Mrs. Long and one of the family physicians.

But in Galveston, Dr. Truslow said Mrs. Long did not accompany the governor. However, he said she was expected to arrive.

Long was flown to Galveston on the same plane which he used to go to the Kentucky Derby and later to Atlanta, Ga., to pick up entertainers for a legislative party at the mansion last week.

Crewman Saves Ailing Plane With 56 Aboard

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — An Air Force plane with 56 paratroopers and crewmen aboard circled Seymour Johnson Air Force Base for almost five hours before landing safely Saturday after a crewman climbed into wing structure to fix a faulty landing gear.

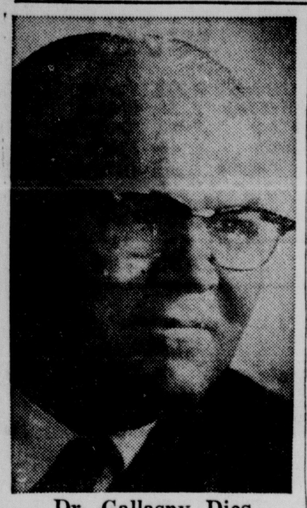

The heavily - armed troopers were being flown here Friday night to participate in the Army-Air Force exercise Dark Cloud-Pine Cone II. As the plane, a C-124 based at Donaldson Air Force Base, S. C., prepared to land, the pilot noticed there was an unsafe main landing gear indication.

The main landing gear, operated normally by remote control, would not lock into place. The locking pin did not set properly and the gear would have collapsed on landing.

The faulty landing gear was noticed about 8:50 p. m. Friday and the plane was not able to land until about 1:30 a. m. Saturday.

During that time, a crewman climbed out into the wing of the transport while the plane circled Goldsboro. A web was rigged to hold the crewman in place and he used a dipt stick to reach across six feet into the engine nacelle to push the locking pin into its proper place.

ated their homes in Cameron Parish, center of the devastation wrought by Hurricane Audrey in 1957 in which more than 565 persons were killed.

The storm was expected to die out as it moved inland, but tides along the coast were expected to remain two to three feet above normal Saturday night and fall back to normal Sunday.

Rains soaked the lower Mississippi Valley and eastward into Georgia and western Carolinas. The Weather Bureau in Atlanta said if the rains continued there may be flooding along the lower Chattahoochee River basin.

The entire town of Holly Beach, La., population 265, was abandoned. Most Holly Beach residents went to Lake Charles, La., to take shelter with relatives, friends or in public facilities.

The Coast Guard also reported that about 250 persons had left Cameron, La., the town devastated by Audrey in 1957. Other Bayou country residents left their rural homes Friday night and early Saturday.

Gale winds were felt when the storm's center lay 90 miles south of LaFayette. It had taken a northward turn, the New Orleans Weather Bureau said, and was moving northward at about 5 to 10 miles an hour.

This apparently reduced an earlier threat to the East Texas coast, and a Weather Bureau spokesman said indications were that the storm's force would hit in the vicinity of Vermillion Bay, La.

Honor Dead Who Fought For America

United Press International

Free men paid solemn tribute Saturday to the Americans who died in defense of freedom.

From Pearl Harbor in Hawaii to Dartmoor Prison in England, from the Pacific Shores of California to a New Hampshire outdoor shrine, the mounful strains of taps sounded in commemoration of the war dead.

Services were held in the nation's smallest military cemetery near Parairie Du Chien, Wis., where 64 victims of the Indian wars lay buried, and at Arlington National Cemtery across the Potomic River from the nation's capital.

Veterans Administrator Sumner G. Whittier placed President Eisenhower's wreath on the tomb of three unknown servicemen in Arlington, and paid special tribute to the most recent of the fallen warriors, former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

"Would that it were possible for evey citizen of this wide land to have in his soul a share of the ever-staying strength and patience of that great statesman. . ." Whittier said. "His is the kind of strength we need."

Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson speaking in ceremonies at Hyde Park N.Y., said the nation needs "the same kind of hope" that the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt gave the country. Johnson, who frequently is mentioned as possible Democratic candidate for president in 1960, said "We need today to hear again the voice of Roosevelt through those whom he inspired and touched with fire."

Addressing American Legion Memorial Day services in New York's Time Square, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, (r-N.Y.) said the United States should move to replace the "rule of force." He said the U.S. should require that future treaties with other countries provide for settlement of legal dispute in the world court.

Two senators used Memorial Day speeches to take note of the feud between the Army and Air Force over rival air defense missiles.

Speaking at the scene of the Civil War battle of Antietam near Sharpsburg, Md., Sen. J. Glenn Beall (r-Md.) described the controversy as a "sorry spectacle," and warned that Congress "may have to knock some heads together" to straighten out the fuss.

Death Decreed In Rape Case Of Texas Negro

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A District Court jury decided Saturday night that husky Howard Draper Jr. must die in the electric chair for raping a 17-year-old girl.

Draper, 26, is a Negro. The girl, a ninth grader in a special class for handicapped pupils, is white.

He heard the jury's verdict without change in the stony expression he wore throughout a weeklong trial.

The girl and a white neighbor, Weldon Scarborough, both identified Draper as the man who assaulted and brutally beat her Feb. 18 in her home while several Negro women watched through a window. Scarborough told of clubbing Draper with a shovel to halt the attack.

ton were Maj. Gen. Raymond F. Hufft, Louisiana National Guard head; Lt. Col. E. J. Murphy, First Lt. R. D. Korseard, and two or three civilians.

Dr. Truslow said the governor had not made arrangements through the hospital to be admitted. But apparently arrangements were made ahead of time with Dr. Harris.

John Sealy is run by the University of Texas. Dr. Harris is head of Harris Clinic, the hospital's psychiatric center, noted as one of the nation's best.

Dr. Truslow said the governor was admitted for treatment of a condition caused by "overwork and fatigue." In Baton Rouge, Russell Long said his uncle left the state for a "period of rest and medical treatment."

UNANNOUNCED

Long's departure from Baton Rouge was unannounced. But a pilot identified the governor when he walked past Long lying on a stretcher.

A tip to a Baton Rouge newspaper led to events that traced the governor's flight to Galveston. Long arrived at Galveston without radioing for transportation.

But a Rhodes Aircraft auto at the airport was used to transport him to the hospital.

With Long in the hospital, Frazar may be left with the governor's problem of signing or veoting a storm of appropriation bills currently going through legislative channels.

Frazar, a former school teacher, may be forced to veto a bill calling for full implementation of the 1956 school teachers' salary schedule.

Long, before being put to bed, said he would be forced to veto the measure.

STATEMENT

Frazar's only statement was:

"I am extremely sorry about everything that has happened, and I will attempt to do the very best I can under the circumstances."

The governor's admittance to John Sealy climaxed a series of wild public appearances, a mysterious plane ride to Atlanta, Ga., and a Bourbon Street party at the mansion.

Long first appeared before a joint session of the Legislature three days after the session opened. On a state-wide radio-tv hook-up, he confirmed reports that the federal government was investigating his income tax.

SENSATION

He created a sensation this past week by:

1. Calling a press conference at dawn on Monday, departing later for Atlanta to pick up entertainers and contact Former Gov. Marvin Griffin for advice on segregation legislation.

2. On Monday night, he and Mrs. Long gave a party for the Legislature at the mansion. A Dixieland jazz band, a brunette in a bikini and several entertainers highlighted the occassion.

3. The next morning, on Tuesday, Long appeared before a committee shouting profanity and dumping insults on legislators and citizens alike.

4. On Wednesday, he called a joint session of the Legislature to apologize, but launched another tirade against members of the Legislature.

5. Prior to being put to bed Thursday night, Long came into the Senate, attempted to re-open a Senate finance committee and threw a newspaper at a New Orleans reporter.

Keeping late hours in his attempt for re-election, Long's personal actions reached a climax in a bitter battle with Louisiana segregationists, led by Sen. W. M. Rainach, gubernatorial candidate too.

FIGHT

The Long - Rainach fight was over the governor's bills to change voter registration laws, which were finally killed by a House committee.

As late as Thursday morning Long planned to continue his active role in the political scene. He said he would launch his campaign at Leesville and other points Saturday.

But Mrs. Long announced Thursday night that the governor was put to bed under doctor's care. She announced Friday that he would be kept in bed for several days for a rest.

However, Long was taken to Ryan Airport at Baton Rouge and left by plane for Galveston at 10:15 a.m.

Several times during his appearances, Long has referred to himself as a "sick man."

"I have heart trouble," he said before the committee Tuesday.

Hoffa Planning Hitting Snags

New York City police. Hoffa pulled subordinates off that attempt — without a policeman putting the union label next to his badge—after a massive public protest.

This isn't to say that Hoffa isn't getting some results. He's working hard at organizing and he is making headway.

But he's making most headway in small operations. Figures available at the National Labor Relations Board show that during 1958 the Teamsters participated in 1,023 employe bargaining rights elections involving 39,422 employes.

Nearly two-thirds of the bargaining units sought by the Teamsters involved fewer than 20 employes each. Only a third of elections involving unions other than the Teamsters were so small.

Unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO—from which Hoffa's teamsters have been expelled on corruption charges — participated in 3,374 elections involving 346,984 employes.

How much is all this costing the Teamsters? Hoffa's 1958 financial statement shows about two million dollars spnet for organizing by the national union. This matches equal amounts spent by locals and councils.

That means four million. And the national union spends additional sums in behalf of organizing that are not listed under organizing expenses. So do the locals and councils. Teamsters headquarters puts the over-all total at five to six million.

Teamsters have effective ways of gaining new members. Just a few weeks ago for example John T. (Sandy) O'Brien, national vice president, succeeded in organizing office employes of about 20 Chicago trucking companies.

O'Brien sent the companies a letter saying the office workers hadn't been organized and the union was going to put out "informational" pickets just to point out to everybody they are non-union. The union let trucks of each firm cross picket lines at that firm.

But when a truck from one picketed company went to another picketed company to interchange freight, the driver refused to cross the picket lines. In no time operations were tied up. The companies called in their office workers and explained the situation. Contracts were signed in a few days.

O'Brien has a special incentive. According to Senate rackets probers, he gets 40 cents a month a member as a dues collector.

Organizing competition between the Teamsters and the AFL-CIO seems to be getting hotter.

The federation said it recently signed a dozen major trucking firms in Puerto Rico, including some 850 drivers. George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said this compared with 184 Puerto Ricans organized by Hoffa since last August.

The Teamsters say the AFL-CIO isn't getting anywhere, and the Teamsters have organized about 600 on the Caribbean island.

Teamsters claim a total of 1,632,000. That was for last November. Current figures are withheld.

about 6:30 p. m., two hours after the mishap.

Another Ferriday Negro met death yesterday morning when she was stabbed on a downtown Ferriday street.

Ferriday Police said Rosalee Smith died instantly after the attack. They identified her assailant as Fred Carter, also a Ferriday Negro.

The pair had been quarreling earlier in the day, according to authorities.

Carter is being held in the parish jail at Vidalia. He will be charged later, police said.

The third fatal incident came when Curtis Jones, 20-year-old Monroe Negro of 1109 Olive St., was killed in a stabbing early yesterday.

Monroe Police said Clyde Mitchell, 21-year-old Negro, was charged with murder and that investigation is continuing.

Authorities said the alleged stabbing took place in the home of a third Negro.

Ouachita Parish Coroner Dr. John Burton said Jones died of a stab wound of the heart. He died about an hour after the incident occurred.

Tennessee Man Shot By Rifle

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (UPI) — Authorities said Saturday Walter Sullivan, 22, of here, apparently shot and killed himself with a .22 caliber rifle bullet.

Sullivan's two sisters said he was at their home when they heard the shots, and rushed into the living room to find him critically wounded.

He died en route to a Nashville hospital.

There was no reason given for the shooting. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

U.S. Attorney Is Resigning

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Millard M. Bush, assistant U. S. attorney for the Southern District of Mississippi, said Saturday he was resigning effective June 27.

Bush, a former FBI agent, said he would enter private law practice here.

Jazz Music, Racial Tiff Rub Together

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mixing of white and Negro musicians in jazz bands is not always the picture of Democracy that it appears to be, a noted authority on jazz music reported today.

On the contrary, the Negro is unwilling to accept the white jazz musician as his equal, critic Nat Hentoff said. But the white musician generally is eager to play in a combo with Negroes.

Hentoff, in an article in Harper's magazine entitled "Race Prejudice in Jazz: It works both says, "reports the Negro is unhappy in a mixed band because:

—For many years the white musician has found employment more easily than the Negro because of his color.

—Many night clubs will not hire mixed groups.

—the Negro invented and developed jazz as an art form but the white bands moved in and made capital of it.

"I'd prefer not to work in an all-white band, at least not with an all - white rhythm section," Hentoff quoted a white pianist, "because there aren't that many white guys who can really swing."

Hentoff said Negro musicians, in some instances, are criticized by their own race for playing with the whites. He cited the case of a Negro bass player who received this complaint from a Negro:

"That combo wouldn't swing at all if you weren't there. Why do you go with them and make those whites sound good?"

The Negro's fear of white invasion into jazz goes back to the earliest days of recording when Freddie Keppard, a New Orleans trumpeter, turned down an invitation by Victor to make the first jazz record. Victor then cut the first jazz disc with a white group, the original Dixieland Jass (correct) band.

Hentoff reports the Negro resents being embraced by the critics for their musicianship and discriminated against by the money men.

"In the thirties, when the large jazz bands were in the ascendant, the Goodmans and Dorseys and Shaws were the most consistent money-makers while the musically superior Negro bands of Duke Ellington, Count Basie and Jimmie Lunceford (all of whom had vitally influenced the white bands) were usually restricted to less lucrative engagements and more grueling road trips, most of them through the South.

Hentoff noted that young Negroes in the late 1930's and early 1940's became so infuriated over the inroads made into Dixieland jazz by white musicians that they tried to create a new form.

Thus bop was born with Dizzy Gillespie and Thelonius Monk pioneering the sound.

Even though the Negro's main complaint is economic, his pride in his racial heritage is intense, Hentoff said.

Obscenity In Mails

Many devices are used by dealers in obscenity to get their pornographic literature through the mails. So successful have they been, largely because of public failure to make reports, that their annual take is said to exceed one-half billion dollars.

One of the common schemes—a favorite in getting indecent literature into the hands of young people—is to send undressable photographs through the mails. The pictures that go into the mails pass inspection readily enough because the figures are dressed in clothes that will get by the mail regulations. Accompanying the photographs, however, is a small bottle of chemical. When the chemical is applied to the pictures it removes the clothing from the subjects, leaving nudes.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has appealed for public support in his intensified war on "ruthless mail order merchants in filth who are violating the homes of the nation in defiance of the national government."

Obscene mail dealers are taking advantage of one of the nation's most cherished privileges to carry on their smutty trade—the first-class letter that is guaranteed private.

Because of the sanctity of this letter, it is almost impossible for the post office department to detect materials sent by smut merchants in plain envelopes unless it receives the cooperation of the public.

One of the greatest handicaps met by the post office department in its efforts to stamp out this filthy trade is the reluctance of some people receiving such mail to report it, even though they outraged at receiving the material.

Materials contaminating the mails, Mr. Summerfield says, include filthy films and books, slides and related filth, sent indiscriminately to homes here and all over the nation. Because of the huge intake, the postmaster general said, the obscene mail business is increasing.

During a recent 12-month period, the local postmaster said, postal inspectors conducted 4,000 investigations on obscene and pornographic mail and caused the arrest of 293 persons. This was an increase of 45 per cent over the previous year and an alltime high.

Recently an eastern raid resulted in the seizure of 15 tons of dirty films, slides, photographs and other smut and a mailing list with 100,000 names.

Mr. Summerfield is diligently trying to clean up our mails but he needs help.

Citizens of every community can assist by reporting receipt of soliciting sale of such filth. Those wishing to help in this campaign to rid our mails of dirty pictures should report promptly to their local postmaster if any such mail is received. This is a matter in which the public is vitally concerned and in which only the people can make the post office department's drive entirely successful.

'Fugitive Dictators'

The proposal by Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana to set up an international arrangement whereby deposed heads of states charged with crimes against the laws of their countries can be apprehended and brought to trial seems, at best, to be a useless gesture. At worst, it could perpetrate additional injustices. If this resolution should become lost in the shuffle, it would be about the best thing that could happen.

Arguments against approval of this measure immediately suggest at least three non-favorable factors. The first is that what this world needs is not so much action against deposed dictators but against those still in office. The second is that all leaders of governments overthrown by insurrection or force of arms would be charged with crimes against the country, no matter how innocent the deposed persons might be nor guilty the winners might be. The third is that the idea of sanctuary, even for those known to have sinned or to be guilty of crimes, is sanctioned by the Bible.

The time for the nations of the world to turn on a dictator and to attempt to bring him to justice is not when he is down and seeks only to save his life. The time to direct international power against a dictator, if it can ever be done to advantage, is when he is at the height of his power and is still subjugating and crushing others.

Commenting on his resolution, the Louisiana senator indicated that America prestige is declining because Communist propaganda is depicting the United States as a supporter of dictatorships and tyrants around the world. He pointed out that while the United States is compelled to deal with dictators by force of circumstances, "we have no desire to protect any fugitive dictator from just retribution and we should make this known to the world." He continued: "One way that this nation can make it clear that we do not propose to grant sanctuary to the Batistas, Jimenezes, Perons, Farouks, Bao Dais and others is for the senate to pass my 'fugitive dictator' resolution. The proposal would direct American foreign policy toward the arrangement of international compacts under which we would seek to obtain agreement that all nations of the earth should cooperate in seeing that fugitive dictators would become accountable for the crimes which have been visited upon the peoples of their countries."

Those rulers who have fled unfortunately are not the only ones guilty of visiting crimes upon the peoples of their countries. Those who have succeeded them have, in many instances, been more bloodthirsty than their predecessors.

It may or may not be true, as Senator Long says, that the United States is gaining a reputation for harboring fugitive dictators. There is much more reason to think that this country is establishing a reputation for granting sanctuary to those who were under the heels of tyrants and dictators in the nations from which they fled.

This is a reputation of which the United States need not be ashamed.

John L. Sullivan won the American heavyweight championship in 1883, when he defeated Paddy Ryan in 9 rounds at Mississippi City. Newspapers carried complete reports of the bout. Newspapers today offer more comprehensive reports than ever of all the important local, national and international sports news.

In 1790, high heels went out of fashion in this country. Sandal-like footwear was in vogue. To keep the public up-to-date on the latest fashions, national advertisers apparel invested over $10,000,000 in daily newspapers last year.

Nearly everyone reads a newspaper nearly every day. It follows that practically every sale of every product in this country will be made to a newspaper reader.

Texas Gulf Coast May Lead Water Conversion

WASHINGTON—There is every indication that the first breakthrough in man's long effort to convert salt water into fresh water—economically and in large quantities—may take place on Texas' Gulf Coast.

Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton has just announced that the first of five saline conversion demonstration plants will be built on the Gulf Coast.

While the Texas coast was not specifically pinpointed as the plant site there was sufficient hint in the Seaton announcement to show that the Lone Star State is being given top consideration.

Seaton said the Gulf state which will be officially selected as a plant site in a month or two will be picked on the basis of two factors—it has a critical need for water and it has shown "intense" public interest in the project.

Texas, of course, has a more critical need for water than any of the other Gulf states. As far as public interest in concerned 17 of 31 coastal communities vieing for the plant are located in Texas. Add to that the fact that Texas is the only one of the Gulf states which has signed a cooperative agreement with the Federal government to help push the salt water conversion program.

The State, meanwhile, may even by considered as a site for another of those five plants. When Congress approved the five plants last year it specified that one shall be built on each of the three coasts, one in the arid South west and one in the Northern Great Plains.

The Gulf Coast plant will cost between $1½ and $2 million dollars and will have a capacity of at least a million gallons a day. The inland plants—much smaller in size—will be built for less than $500,000.

Seaton reported the Gulf plant will be able to convert sea water into fresh water for less than $1 per thousand gallons. This is less than the current price of fresh water in Key West, Fla., which must be piped in from the mainland.

The long-tube vertical multiple-effect distillation process has been selected for this plant. Pilot plant tests on this process show that for the first time salt scale can be controlled. This means acid of high-cost alloys used to control scale can now be eliminated. thus substantially cutting conversion costs.

As the size of this plant increases, according to Seaton, there is every likelihood that a 15 to 20-million gallon-per-day installation will be able to turn out fresh water for less than 60 cents per thousand gallons. Just across the Potomac in nearby Alexandria, Va., water users are paying more than that now.

This breakthrough in salt water conversion cannot come too soon. Today, we use about 240 billon gallons of water a day in the United States. In 20 years this demand for water will soar to at least 500 or 600 billion gallons.

"One day, and sooner than many people think, we shall have to follow a new trail for our water supply, at least for certain areas" Seaton points out. "That trail leads both to huge known supplies of brackish water inland and also to the inexhaustible oceans and seas of the world.

Salt water conversion is not new. Plants have been in existence for some time but their costs have been high. Sheer necessity, not competitive advantage, has motivated their construction.

On the arid island of Aruba in the Caribbean, for example, people are drinking and the oil industry is using 3½ million gallong of converted sea water a day. But for this water they are paying $1.75 per thousand gallons. This compares with the District of Columbia's minimum rate of twenty-six cents per thousand.

Water—or the scarcity of it—is a serious problem on the Island of St. Thomas in the Virgin Island. A mushrooming population has far outstripped the water supply and it is now necessary to haul water in by barge all the way from Puerto Rico. This costs nearly $5 per thousand gallons. The Virgin Islands government estimates it is now spending nearly $177,000 just to bring in water.

Seaton cites as another example the small California Community of Coalinga. For years its people hauled in their drinking water at a cost of $7 per thousand gallons. But they got tired of that expense and cut the water bill to $1.45 per thousand. Coalinga made history by becoming the first town in the United States to get its drinking water supply entirely from converted brackish well water.

In the years ahead supplies of natural fresh water in some areas will besome more expensive and the cost of converting saline water will come down.

"In one community after another, as I foresee the future, these cost curves will one day cross," says Seaton, "and then converted sea water will be the less expensive of the two. In some localities it will be the only reliable source."

Useless Trip By Herter Is Seen

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Was Herter's trip necessary?" mused Vernon J. Veritas, the old truth-teller. "This Geneva ministerial conference looks pretty silly from where I sit. There hasn't been anything quite so feckless and preposterous since that tea party in 'Alice in Wonderland' when they tried to play croquet with goose necks."

Was Mr. Veritas saying that Secretary Herter should have stood in bed? After all, what's a secretary of state unless he can find a good crisis and run to it?

"One thing I'm sure of," continued Veritas, who cannot tell a lie. "Never was so much boring copy filed by so many top-notch journalists. When you get bureau chiefs, syndicated columnists and Pulitzer Prize international experts writing of dinner table chit-chat by the foreign ministers, you've got to admit the boys are scraping the bottom of the barrel for news."

Still, as long as Herter gives Gromyko tit for tat over the fingerbowls, it's better than exchanging atomic bombs.

"Never in the history of journalism," insisted Veritas, "has so much drivel been sent over the cables by so many high - priced writers named Reston, Childs, Middleton, Alsop and Roberts. I don't blame the boys — if there isn't any news, you can't write it. The other day James (Scotty) Reston of the N. Y. Times referred to himself in print as 'your society reporter.' Besides, their publishers are paying their tolls. The American taxpayers are picking up the check for Herter, Merchant, McElroy and the rest, and I say we're being robbed. Nothing has happened in Geneva concerning world peace that couldn't have been accomplished by an exchange of postcards."

It does seem that we start dancing every time the Russians reach for their fiddle. Maybe it's partly because the American people have been fed on fear so long that their knees knock together as naturally as breathing. Let's see: The scientists tell us that our babies will be two - headed because of the nuclear - testing fallout. Certain Democratic senators are running for the presidency on the argument that Ike has permitted us to become a second - class military power. A pair of best-selling novelists has made the expression "Ugly American" into a household word for the American foreign service. The administration witnesses on the foreign aid bill are still mumbling the Old Wives' tale that Khrushchev (formerly Hitler, Mussolini, Wilhelm II) will get us if we don't hire mercenaries to save us.

"There used to be one military idea which the American people held in common as a nation," said Vernon J. Veritas. "That was that one Yank could lick a roomful of foreigners. Maybe we needed to have that brashness toned down a little, but it's hard to see that the nation is any stronger now that we spend billions on tribute or friendship-buying. I'm on the verge of believing that every diplomatic move we make is based on fear."

Did Mr. Veritas mean that Secretary Herter was afraid not to go to Geneva?

"On my name and nature as a truth - teller," said Veritas, "I believe that the Eisenhower word in the language, which is — No! Every elevator boy in Washington knows by now that President Eisenhower wanted to reject the Khrushchev proposal for a Summit meeting. But instead of saying 'No!' the President said maybe — if the ministerial conference can produce some results. It hasn't produced any, but I wouldn't want to bet that Ike will shake off the come-hither signal.

Fight On Strauss Like Some Others

In the writing of the history of the function of the United States senate to "advise and consent" on presidential appointments the name of Lewis L. Strauss will find a place along with three other outstandingly able men on whom confirmation fights have been made in the last half century.

There have been numerous senate fights over the confirmation of presidential appointments, of course. In most cases the nominees have won, but a small percentage have been rejected. There are elements in the Strauss case which put him in such notable company as Charles Evans Hughes and Louis J. Brandeis for the supreme court, and Charles Beecher Warren for attorney general.

Warren, who President Coolidge nominated to be attorney general when Coolidge elevated Attorney General Harlan F. Stone to the supreme court failed of confirmation, Hughes and Brandeis won.

Warren, an eminent Michigan lawyer, had been attorney for "the Sugar Trust." Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana charged that he was therefore disqualified to head the department of justice which is responsible for the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law. The senate ordinarily ust law. The senate ordinarily likes to give the president a free hand in the appointment of his cabinet and Warren would have won but for a miscalculation. Vice President Charles Gates Dawes liked to take a short nap before dinner each night.

Dawes remained in the chair during the long debate. Late in the afternoon one day Republican Leader Charles Curtis of Kansas and Democratic Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas advised Dawes to knock off for the day. There were to be six more long, speeches, they said, without any chance for a vote.

Dawes went to his hotel and was fast asleep when the senate underwent one of the sudden changes for which it is noted. Only one of the six senators spoke, the others abandoned their plans. Nine Republicans aligned themselves against Warren. Only one Democrat voted for him. The roll call showed a forty-forty tie which Dawes could have broken had he been present.

While Republicans were trying delaying tactics to prevent an announcement of the roll call until Dawes could arrive, Senator Overman of North Carolina, the only Democrat, who had voted for Warren changed his vote and Warren was rejected.

Charges againt Charles Evans Hughes, whom President Hoover, appointed chief justice of the United States, was that as a practicing attorney he had represented too many big corporations and wealthy clients. The senate fight on him was brief but extremely ferocious. He was nominated on February 3 and confirmed by a vote of 52 to 26 to February 13, 1930. Hughes record on the supreme court was so outstanding that most of the men who opposed his confirmation were glad that they were unsuccessful.

Of the senate fights over confirmations which have occurred since this writer began to report the Washington scene, the longest and bitterest occurred over the nomination of Louis Dembitz Brandeis to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court 43 years ago.

The brilliant Kentucky - born Boston lawyer was nominated by President Wilson in January, 1916, and it was not until June 1 that he was confirmed by a vote of 47 to 22. The hearing before the judiciary committee dragged on for months. The testimony ran to 1316 printed pages.

Pressure was brought on President Wilson to withdraw the nomination, as similar efforts have been made on President Eisenhower to withdraw the Strauss nominations. Wilson, like Eisenhower refused.

Writing to Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas, chairman of the senate judiciary committee, and who had been senate Democratic leader until ill - health forced his retirement, President Wilson said:

"Many charges have been made against Mr. Brandeis; the report of your subcommittee has already made it plain to you and the country how unfounded these charges were. They threw a great deal more light upon those with whom they originated than upon the qualifications of Mr. Brandeis.

"I myself looked into these charges three years ago when I desired to make Mr. Brandeis a member of my cabinet and found that they proceeded for the most part from those who hated Mr. Brandeis because he had refused to be serviceable to them in the promotion of their own selfish interest, and from those they had prejudiced and misled.

"I perceived from the first that these charges were intrinsically incredible by any one who had really known Mr. Brandeis."

The religious issue was not raised against the brilliant and highly intellectual Louis Brandeis, but it was well understood in the senate that it was a factor in the background as it has been in the case of Lewis Strauss.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAY'S

Steel Measures U.S. Prosperity

Steel is the foundation product of American industry. It is the yardstick by which the health of American industry is diagnosed. In 1936-7, the year of the beginning of unionization in steel, the steel capacity in the United States was 78,164,300 tons; in 1958, it was 140,742,570 tons—it nearly doubled. However, in 1936, the production was 68.4 per cent of capacity; in 1958, it was 60.6 per cent of capacity. In a word, the capacity was increased to meet war purposes and a share of it lies idle when there is no war.

The current argument over wages has nothing to do with wages; it deals rather with the value of currency. The average hourly wages in 1936 was 66.1 cents; in 1958, it was $2.88. Because wages are not paid by money alone, the steel companies calculate that the total hourly employment costs in 1936 were 71.8 cents an hour, whereas in 1958, they were $3.513 an hour.

The fact that the purchasing power of the American dollar by 1958 had sunk to 48 cents is incontestable, but will the value of the dollar increase if wages are raised and prices are raised? The answer is that by this inflationary process, the value of the dollar will sink still lower. Money only has value in relationship to its purchasing power. If $100 only has the purchasing power of 25 cents, that is all that it is worth.

To compare labor costs in other steel producing countries, it is necessary to go back to 1957 for checked data:

Soviet Russia, No checked data available; West Germany, 67 cents an hour; Luxembourg, 89; United Kingdom, 80.5: Japan, 40.6; United States, $2.917.

American steel is in no manner superior to steel produced elsewhere, but the American price must be higher because, if nothing else, labor costs are higher. True, a worker today, as anyone else in the United States, finds the cost of living higher than in 1936, but there is no advantage to anyone living outside the United States in paying for American higher wages, higher taxes, higher cost of production. It is strictly a local matter.

From a national standpoint, what the steel strike can do, if called, will be to increase wages, increase the cost of production, increase prices, raising prices on all American commodities that use steel. It means another inflationary hike for the American economy and a reduction in the value of the dollar. It is likely that most of American labor will seek to raise its wages to equate the steel wage rate. This can go on endlessly until the dollar is worth nothing.

Labor leaders and statisticians recognize the perils of inflation but they have a tiger by the tail. They cannot quickly re-educate their constituents to recognize that two of the fallacies of the 1930s are now coming home to roost.

One fallacy is that it is more important to spread the work than to do the work. Management has met this challenge by the increased use of labor-saving machinery. This was consummated in what is called automation, the employment of automatic machinery, which has the effect of reducing the worker from a skilled to an unskilled status. In many industries, the worker has become the tender of a machine and few workers are needed to do such work. Featherbedding, which is a union process to slow motion labor in order to increase the number of workers employed, has now had the reverse effect, not only of reducing the number of workers employed by superior methods of management but also of killing the export market by outpricing American products in all markets, including the American market.

The other fallacy of the 1930s, which is producing damage in the 1950s, is the Rooseveltian doctrine of the infallability of labor leaders. They owe their enormous treasuries to him, but they produced their own feet of clay.

The money attractiveness of labor union leadership, the secret funds available for public or private use, the unlimited expense account, the respectable role in the community, the applause of the mob, together with the actual power in politics, make the job of a labor leader attractive to the wrong kinds of men.

MANSFIELD SPOKESMAN

Bipartisan Support Given Herter At Geneva Meet

By JACK BELL

Herter received what was described as a unanimous informal vote of confidence at a hastily arranged meeting with 10 Senate and House foreign affairs leaders during his return to Washington for the funeral of John Foster Dulles on Wednesday.

Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont), one of those who participated, said backing was voiced for Herter's stand that the United States will not agree to any summit conference unless there is some progress at Geneva.

"Secretary Herter told us that thus far there has been almost no progress in the Big Four talks," Mansfield said in an interview.

Mansfield said Herter took occasion to deny emphatically that there is any policy split among the Western powers. "Despite some reports that have been circulated, he said the British are standing shoulder to shoulder with us," Mansfield said.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn), another participant, said Herter appeared deeply disturbed about the reports of Western disunity.

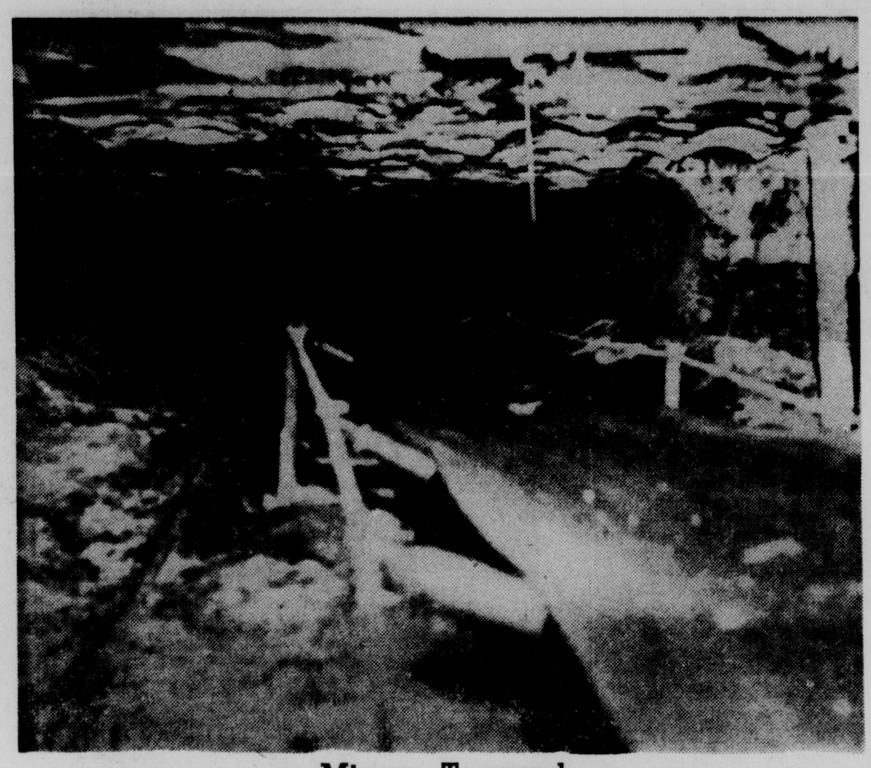

Humphrey said Herter indicated he is prepared for a lengthy meeting at Geneva. He said the secretary stressed that the East-West talks are likely to require a great deal of patience.

He quoted Herter as saying the Soviets had preserved in private talks the same good manners and courtesy they had displayed in public, but that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko thus far had shown no indications of making concessions.

Humphrey said he thinks Herter is in command of the situation.

Others attended the briefing included Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Sens. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis) and Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa).

House members included Reps. A. S. J. Carnahan (D-Mo), Clement J. Zablocki (D-Wis), Edna F. Kelly (D-NY) and Frances P. Bolton (R-Ohio).

Unions Now Organizing White Collars

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Organized labor may have to follow the example set by West Coast unions if it's going to keep pace with America's expanding labor force.

That is the conclusion of Irving Bernstein, a researcher at the University of California at Los Angeles, in an article in the Labor Department's monthly labor review.

Tracing the history of unionism in California, Oregon and Washington, Bernstein said it has penetrated deeply into areas traditionally difficult to organize.

Sizable membership gains in wholesale and retain trade, public utilities, hotels and restaurants and local government represent a "breakthrough" into new ground for American labor unions, he said.

West Coats unions also have done better than those in the rest of the nation in organizing workers in small and medium-size towns, he noted.

ECONOMISTS HAVE WARNED

AFL-CIO economicsts have warned that unless unions can shift their power base from the factory worker to the white-collar employe they will diminish in strength because of the changing composition of the labor force.

There are now more white-collar jobs than blue-collar jobs and the trend is continuing.

Writing about the West Coast, Bernstein said:

"Retail workers in food markets and drugstores are generally union members and, in some communities, the same is true in the department stores. Several of the Southern California aircraft companies bargain with unions representing their engineers. Even agriculture has been breached."

Bernstein attributed the relative success of West Coast unions in part to the fact that large-scale operations in farming and retailing started in that area.

EASIER TO UNIONIZE

"The packing shed 'factory' and the supermarket are easier to unionize than the family farm and the corner grocery store," he wrote. He added that the powerful position of the Teamsters in California and Washington has been used as a lever to organize many non-trucking workers.

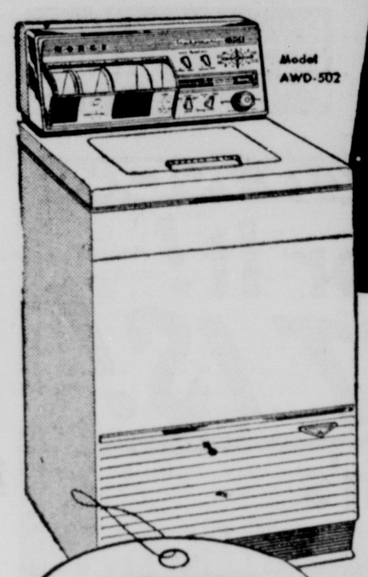

"With economic power has come political strength, which, in turn, has created a climate favorable for further organization," Bernstein said. "Social legislation is advanced and there are no laws which inhibit union growth."

In many trades, he said, employers formed associations and organized the "bosses" to bargain with the unions.

Bernstein sums up by asserting the American labor movement will not grow unless it enlists workers in trade, finance, services, insurance and government, now poorly organized.

Formula For Home Mixed Dark Stain

QUESTION: I have some wood staining to do soon and I would like to make my own stains. An old friend of mine, who used to be a woodworker, says the home-made stains are superior to those that can be purchases. Is this true? And how do I go about making a dark oak stain?

ANSWER: It is highly questionable whether home-made stains are better. They may have been years ago when your friend was working at his trade. But so many improvements have been made in such products that it is doubtful whether you can get as good a result as by buying a manufactured stain. However, if you wish to try a home-made stain, you can make a dark oak stain from ¼ pound of Japan drier, ¼ pound of Italian raw sienna, 1-16 pound of burnt turkey umber, one pint of raw linseed oil and ¾ of a pint of turpentine. This will make a quart of stain. The mixture is stirred thoroughly, then strained through a cheesecloth or similar material.

QUESTION: I am getting ready to worn on a project which calls for the use of umbrella screws. Nobody seems to know what an umbrella screw is, not even the owner of the hardware store where I trade. Can you tell me what an umbrella screw is and where I can buy it?

ANSWER: I do not know whether anybody makes an umbrella screw. It is a term used to describe a screw through which a small hole has been drilled lengthwise. Into this hole is placed a nail with a decorative head. The idea is to have a fastener with the strength of a screw, yet without the appearance of an ordinary screw head. Another advantage of this kind of arrangement is that it prevents the screw from being removed easily. My suggestion is that you use on of the screw types which already have decorative heads.

QUESTION: Can you tell me how to repair a concrete floor?

ANSWER: That's almost like asking how to repair an auto. It depends on what's wrong with it. I can only assume you are talking about patching the concrete, in which case you should get a bag of pre-mixed concrete, to which only water need be added. Follow the directions on the bag to make the necessary patches. But before you buy anything, you'd better tell your dealer exactly what is wrong with the floor and then take his advice on how to repair it.

Stolen Money Charge Filed In New Orleans

Charles B. Langford, a 35-year-old chef, was arrested Wednesday and charged with the daylight holdup at a Progressive bank branch.

Maj. William J. McNamara, chief of detectives, and R. W. Bachman, special FBI agent in charge of the New Orleans office, said police recovered $1,252 and a car from the Ratliffs.

The money, coupled with $6,500 previously recovered, accounts for $7,752 of the $12,990 stolen, the FBI said.

Detectives arrested Ratliff Friday night at his residence. FBI agents arrested his wife early Saturday in a Long Beach, Miss., motel.

Ratliff is being held on state charges of armed robbery investigation and federal charges of receiving stolen money.

Disc Jockey Takes Over B.R. Station

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A 28-year-old disc jockey locked himself in his station's control room Friday night and started broadcasting the same record over and over.

Bob Love began playing the rock "n roll ballad, "Sea of Love," on a dare for one solid hour, a station spokesman said.

That was at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Radio station WAIL Manager Ralph (Pappy) Burge fired Love after the disc jockey refused to stop.

So Love locked himself up and said he'd play the record until he got his job back—with a raise.

Love has gotten some 200 signatures on a petition he put outside the control room window, a station official said. The petition asks that he be rehired.

Singer Phil Phillips, who cut the record, telephoned to tell Love to stick with it. The song was listed as number one here on the hit parade.

Five Are Dead After Crash In Knoxville, Tenn.

KNOXVILLE (UPI)— A speeding car jumped the center lane and plowed into a second car late Friday night, killing five persons.

The accident occurred six miles south of Knoxville on the Chapman Highway.

Three youths in one car were killed. They were Robert J. Jordan, 22, and Joe S. Greene, 18, of Knoxville, and Jack M. Greene, 22, of New Tazewell.

Dr. Kenneth Bass, 32, a prominent dentist, and his wife, Mrs. Betty Joyce Bass, 26, both of Knoxville, were killed in the second car.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Allison, also of Knoxville, were critically injured.

Strauss Foes Claim Block Is In Waiting

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Senate foes of 63 - year - old Lewis L. Strauss claimed Saturday they have the strength to block his confirmation as secretary of commerce—by filibuster if necessary.

They renewed suggestions that President Eisenhower withdraw the nomination, a recommendation which White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty has termed "ridiculous."

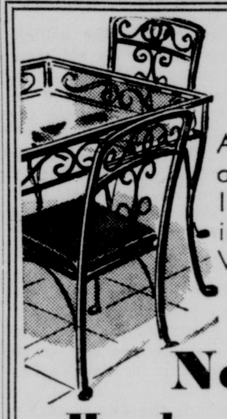

Strategists leading the fight against the former Atomic Energy Commission chairman pointedly refused to predict how long the debate will take. The Senate is expected to begin consideration of the nomination Thursday.

Newsmen seeking information were referred to a statement by Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) which contained a filibuster threat. Morse, in a Senate speech Thursday night, said he would use "the parliamentary rights available under the rules of the Senate of the United States to do whatever is necessary to prevent this enemy of the people from having his nomination ever confirmed."

"I volunteer here and now as a recruit in the rear ranks of debate to see to it that the rules of the Senate are used, if necessary, to prevent this man . . . . from ever having his nomination confirmed," said Morse, who once held the Senate record for long-distance talking.

Morse has said the President owes it to the American people to withdraw Strauss' name.

SOME STILL WAR-LIKE

War Centennial Plans Readied

By ROGER GREENE
AP Staff Writer

In the South they said, "One Johnny Reb can lick six dam Yankees any day."

In the North, members of Congress and their ladies in crinoline loaded up picnic baskets and joined a gay horse-and-buggy parade streaming out of the nation's capital to watch the blue-clad Union Army thrash the Rebels at Bull Run — or so they thought. Both sides said the war would be over in six months.

The war itself dragged on through four terrible, blood-drenched years.

Today American communities from coast to coast are already preparing to observe the "100 years after" centennial of the conflict.

The Civil War Centennial Commission, set up by Congress a year ago, found rough going at first in its efforts to coordinate a nationwide program.

Southern spokesmen balked at taking part in a "Civil War" commemoration. Although Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee himself spoke of it as a civil war, some Dixie officials insisted it should be called "The War Between the States."

LATER

Later they said that as far as the South was concerned, any activity below the Mason-Dixon Line would be known as the "Confederate Civil War Centennial." Except in North Carolina, it has now been agreed to drop the word Confederate.

Karl S. Betts, executive director of the national commission, says all the Southern states except Alabama and Florida are cooperating fully. By latest count, state centennial commissions have been appointed in 27 states, with others expected to follow soon.

Amid a host of delicate problems, the National Commission also had to quiet fears that the centennial might rekindle old and bitter passions, particularly if some event—such as a re-enactment of a famous battle — were exploited by one side to crow over the losers.

Maj. Gen. U.S. Grant III (Ret.), grandson of the Civil War general and chairman of the National Commission, discussed the problem in a recent speech: "In answer to the questions: 'Why commemorate the Civil War? Why revive the memory of fratricidal strife?' I submit that the Civil War was the greatest test our country ever faced. It was our most profound and tragic experience.

"To commemorate the centennial of this war we do not want simply to string together a series of holidays, reviving here the exultation of victory and there the sadness of defeat.

"Rather, the centennial must give us a new understanding of the way in which Americans built from sacrifice and suffering an enduring nation and a lasting peace."

With heroes and heroic memories to spare on both sides, the commission has drawn up a list of 6,500 outstanding Civil War events which it hopes will serve as the focal points for observances across the land.

These include the attack on Ft. Sumter, S.C., April 12, 1861, which marked the formal opening of hostilities, and major engagements ranging from the battles of Bull Run, Shiloh, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Vicksburg, The Wilderness and Atlanta to the final surrender of Lee's army at Appomatox Courthouse, April 9.

The four-year centennial will extend from Jan. 1, 1961, through December 1965.

Crowley Rice Grower Named Millers' Chief

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — W. M. Loving of Crowley, La., was elected chairman of the board of directors of the Rice Millers Assn. at the 60th annual meeting which closed here Saturday.

Other members elected to the board at the three-day session were: H. M. Alderson and L. C. Carter, Stuttgart, Ark.; R. E. Derby, J. W. Stokes, and E. C. McWilliams, of Houston, Tex.; C. E. Miller, Dallas, Tex.; J. C. Montgomery, Kaplan, La.; W. D. Roberts, Weiner, Ark.; Allen Smith, Gueydan, La.; and Gordon Dore, Crowley, La.

William M. Reid was re-elected president of the association. J. P. Gaines was elected vice president; T. H. Love, treasurer; and Mrs. C. W. Wise, secretary. All are from New Orleans.

Over 500 representatives of rice milling and related businesses from throughout the country attended the meeting.

OLD WORLD DREAM

Seaway Contrasts Pastoral Scenery

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ABOARD SANTA REGINA IN SEAWAY (AP)—High golden noon in French Canada.

Cattle graze languidly on the river bank. A farmer and his plow horse trace ancient designs on the rolling landscape. In the glare of the sun and under a cloudless sky, silky meadows lie down before distant mountains.

Incongruous in this pastoral setting, a huge ocean freighter moves majestically past an Indian reservation, past a weed-choked 18th Century burial ground, past steepled little town with soft French names like St. Pierre, De Lery, Melocheville; past dark spruce forests pencil striped with an occasional stand of birch.

This is the St. Lawrence Seaway.

This is the 470-million-dollar new world realization of an Old World dream, the dream of penetrating the heart of a continent by ship from the Atlantic, the dream of taming a turbulent river to link America's rich inland empire with Europe and the world beyond.

When the Seaway opened for business a few weeks ago, the Santa Regina was the first American ship and by far the biggest of any flag to enter the world's eighth and newest sea.

The 15,000-ton Grace Line freighter steamed out of Montreal on a Saturday evening late in spring. On deck her "blue sailors," as ocean seamen call themselves, found the Seaway scenery as fascinating and camera-worthy as the natives on shore found the sudden appearance of a 460-foot long freighter in their back yards.

Rising at the head of Lake Superior and filtering through all five Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence sweeps straight and wide through peaceful farmlands, then suddenly plunges down a narrow gorge in thundering cateracts until, its anger spent, it broadens into one of the grandest estuaries in the world.

For centuries, beginning with the missionaries and fur traders, canals with wooden locks were used to bypass the 110 miles of rapids between Montreal and Ogdensburg, N.Y. By 1904 ships with a 14-foot draft could make the passage. But not until Canada and the United States teamed up with the five-year efforts of 22,000 men and an armada of dredges and earth movers was the mighty St. Lawrence at last tamed and made accessible to 80 per cent of the World's merchant fleet.

But pioneering new waters can be problematic as well as picturesque, as Capt. Hawley MacDermid learned when he tried to make small talk on the bridge with the French pilot assigned to guide him through the Seaway.

"You know, pilot," he ventured. "I've never been in these waters before."

"Nee-zer have I," replied the pilot cheerfully.

At dawn Sunday the problems increased when the Santa Regina, riding high in ballast, tried to squeeze her 63-foot beam through the 80-foot wide locks at the height of a sudden squall. Banged against the concrete walls by a howling wind, she dented two hull plates, lost part of a deck railing and knocked out a red light on a lock gate.

The storm died as quickly as it came, ushering in a warm, sunlit day.

By dark New York State was off the port bowl.

Without incident, the trim, grey freighter negotiated the Snell and Eisenhower locks, the only two of the Seaway's seven built by the United States, and passed into manmade Lake St. Lawrence. The 35-mile long lake drowns out the once thundering long Sault Rapids and supplies power for the huge hydroelectric plant on Barnhart Island. Beneath its placid waters are buried seven whole towns, an old canal and the embankment for the main line of the Canadian National Railway, which had to be relocated.

Skipping across Lake Ontario at full speed under a fair sky, the Santa Regina entered the Welland Canal by nightfall Monday. The canal's eight locks hoist ships an incredible 327 feet around Niagara Falls and into Lake Erie. But the biggest ship ever to use the 25-year-old canal found the going so tight and bumpy that one lockmaster leaned over the wall to inquire in a clipped British accent, "I say are there any more behind like you."

And surveying another dented hull plate, souvenir of another losing bout with a concrete wall, Chief Engineer Bob McDonough cracked, "Maybe on the way back we'd be better off shooting Niagara Falls."

By noon Thursday she was in Chicago, ready to take on a cargo of steel, grain and crated automobiles for delivery to Central and South American ports. In 4½ days, despite numerous delays, she had sailed 1,250 miles from Montreal and climbed some 570 feet over rapids and falls, the equivalent of jumping over the Washington Monument. Travelling empty, the passage had cost $367.14 in tolls, plus another $400 for pilot fees. With a full cargo, Seaway tolls on the way back would jump to more than $1,500.

But the expenses were negligible compared with the Seaway's achievement of adding another 8,000 miles of coastline to the American continent and making seaports out of former lake ports like Chicago, Milwaukee, Toledo, Cleveland, Detroit and Toronto. By the time the Santa Regina returned to Montreal, the world's newsest sea was beginning to look like the busiest, with ships of many flags sweating out long waiting lines at the Seaway locks and Welland Canal to make the long waited passage to the Midlands.

Impose Siege In Nicaragua; Suspend Rights

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — President Luis Somoza imposed a state of siege on Nicaragua Saturday, suspending constitutional guarantees and civil rights.

Soldiers read the decree throughout the country. Everything was reported peaceful.

The move came two hours before expiration of an ultimatum from an opposition group called the "Civic Action Committee" which demanded that Somoza institute a series of reforms to solve Nicaragua's political and economic problems.

The committee met Friday night to consider Somoza's reply to a memorandum it had submitted to him a few days before.

One of the points in that memorandum called for Somoza to shorten his term of office as president, a post he took over when his father was killed. He was elected by Congress in September 1956 to fill out his father's unexpired term, and then was re-elected president by popular vote on Feb. 3, 1957. His present term runs until May 1, 1963.

The ultimatum delivered to the President after the meeting warned him to comply by 6 a.m. today.

Somoza replied with the state of siege.

Bodies Of Two Women Found In Va. Stream

CLARKSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — The mysterious disappearance of two Clarksburg women was solved Saturday when their bodies were found in an automobile in Elk Creek near here.

The bodies were definitely identified by state police at Shinnston as those of Mrs. Juanita Ferguson and Mrs. Virginia Conley. Both were in their mid 50's.

The two women were last seen the evening of April 8 as they left a restaurant on U.S. 19, about four miles north of Sutton. They had just left Beckley where they had attended a garden club meeting at the home of Mrs. Turman Sayre, daughter of Mrs. Ferguson.

State police said there was no indication of foul play. The car apparently went out of control and plunged into the creek, police said.

State police radio operator John Nay said the car was found by two boys swimming in the creek. Clarksburg state police received an anonymous telephone call informing them of the discovery, Nay said.

Only last Wednesday, state Police Capt. C. L. Walker of Shinnston said the state police and the FBI were still active in the case.

Police had dragged the West Fork River near Sutton, the Little Kanawha River at Falls Mills, Sutton Dam Reservoir and several ponds without finding a clue.

The entire area between Clarksburg and Sutton had been searched foot-by-foot by state and local police.

Corpus Hearing Set In Jasper Over Slaying

JASPER, Ala. (UPI)—A habeas corpus hearing for Mrs. Jimmie Louise Kilpatrick, 25, charged with murdering her former husband, will be held Friday, her attorney said Saturday.

Roderick Beddow of Birmingham said he had filed a petition for the hearing and circuit Judge Roy Mayhall agreed to conduct the hearing to determine whether Mrs. Kilpatrick should be released from jail.

She has been held without bond on a first degree murder charge in the shooting of Arnold Tedford Brakefield, 29, on May 22. Brakefield was shot five times at the home of Mrs. Kilpatrick's mother near here.

Police said the couple apparently argued over custody of their son, 7-year-old Lloyd Brakefield. Mrs. Kilpatrick had been awarded sole custody after a long dispute.

Stone quarry owner rates Chevrolet the toughest truck going

"Put a Chevy out there and it stays!"

At the Snyder Stone Quarry, Martinsville, Va., you see Chevrolet trucks of all ages. "They get better every year," Mr. R. G. Snyder says. "My '59's keep going with no downtime for major service . . . moving more material at less cost than any other truck I've had." The grades are steep from quarry to crushing mill, the loads big and punishing. That's why Mr. Snyder specifies Chevrolet. "You never do wear one out. You just get tired of looking at it and get a new one."

The 8403 tandem you see up above is taking on a mountain of a payload. "About 28,000 pounds of granite," Mr. Snyder states. "And it moves over the road like a light truck."

Today you sure can't assume that because a truck is trim-lined and good looking it doesn't work every bit as hard as those old-styled steam rollers. Put a Chevy on your run and see the big difference that precision-engineered chassis components and super-efficient power make. Your Chevrolet dealer will arrange the details.

Pacifist Minister Returns

Rev. Maurice McCrackin, Cincinnati pacifist minister who served more than five months of a 6-month prison term on an income tax charge, is shown coming up the steps of his home in the Cincinnati's West end yesterday. The Rev. McCrackin, released from a prison farm at Lewisburg, Pa., Friday, said he would not participate in any work program should he be returned to prison, calling work in prisons "slave labor." Pinballs, Pizza To Be Probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rackets Committee said Saturday its next inquiry will revolve around a multi-million dollar vice ring near Chicago in Lake County, Ind., with interests ranging from pinballs and pizza to prostitution.

Chief counsel Robert F. Kennedy told newsmen that hearings, starting Tuesday and expected to last two weeks, will go into whether law enforcement officials in the area helped gangsters from California and Chicago to set up the operation.

"There are gangsters in Los Angeles and Chicago who are extremely interested in the operation in Lake County and make periodic trips there," Kennedy said.

The committee's interest, he said, stems from a check into whether Joey Glimco, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Union Local 777 in Chicago, once played "some sort of role" in the situation.

Kennedy said out-of-town gangsters came into Lake County in 1953, bringing "gambling-type pinball machines" into Gary, and taking over locations formerly served by local operators.

In the process, he said, they "drove out of existence" local No. 1 of the Independent Coin Machine Operators and Repairmen's Union. He said death threats were aimed at John Testo, head of the local, and members of his family.

Kennedy said Testo would be questioned. He said the witness list also would include Metro Holovachka, former prosecutor and now assistant prosecutor in Lake County.

From California, Kennedy said, the committee has called Anthony Pinelli, of Sierra Madre, and John Formosa, a Hollywood man-about-town.

Chicago's representation, Kennedy said, will include Sam Giancanna, whom he has described as "one of the two or three most important underworld figures in the Chicago area," and a Tom Morgano.

Kennedy said Giancanna was subpoenaed two months ago in Las Vegas, Nev., after a lengthy attempt by investigators to find him.

The inquiry, Kennedy said, deals with whether underworld invaders were "taking over a community, running a union out of existence, and particularly, having law enforcement officials cooperating."

NEWS REEL

A distinguished looking gentleman bustled into the store the other afternoon, reached into his pocket and took out a carton of Kodachrome movie film.

"These are movies of my first grandchild. Just came by mail," he said a little breathlessly. "Can you show them for me?"

Sure we could—and did. (And from the pleased way that Grandpa eyed those movies, I have a hunch he'll be back before long for a projector of his own.)

Now, there's a splendid way to use movies, we thought. Movies are a great way to show distant relatives and friends how handsomely your family is growing.

Reminded us of another clever use of movies we heard of recently. A golfer in town, struggling to shave a few strokes off his handicap, got the bright idea of having his wife take movies of him in action. When he saw the movies he spotted a hitch in his backswing, went to work on it. Result: one of the sweetest swings you ever saw.

Of course, most people are still using their movie cameras to capture all those wonderful family episodes that become priceless as time rolls by. Your baby's first steps. An exciting birthday party. A long-awaited vacation.

If you've been promising your family the fun of a movie camera, why not drop in soon and see our full line of Movie Cameras.

Alarming Death Count Is Ahead

ful. The alert was to continue throughout the holiday period.

Traffic	157
Drownings	41
Miscellaneous	17
Total	215

A head-on collision near Towner, N. D., killed 4 and injured 6; 4 died and 3 others were injured in a collision south of Knoxville, Tenn.; another 4 perished and 2 were hurt in a collision near Pee Dee, S. C.; 3 high school students burned to death when their car plunged off a road and exploded near East Livermore, Maine, as they were returning from a prom.

In 1953, the only other 2-day Memorial Day weekend since World War II, a total of 241 traffic deaths were counted, a record for a 2-day Memorial Day observance.

Last year, a 3-day holiday period, 371 traffic deaths were tabulated. In addition, 132 persons lost their lives by drowning and another 88 died from miscellaneous accidents for an over-all holiday total of 591.

Liquor Tax Slash Bills For Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Rep. T. A. (Temo) Callahan of Tuscaloosa has introduced bills to sharply increase the tax on whisky and beer to finance better state assistance to the mentally ill.

Callahan's measures would place a 10 per cent tax on whisky and a one - cent per bottle levy on beer.

The liquor tax would bring in an estimated $5,324,000 annually while the beer levy would bring in an estimated $1,600,000.

Callahan said there is a "desparate need" for Alabama to raise its standards for treating the mentally defficient.

"In the old days," said Callahan, "there were madhouses where the mentally ill were confined. Innocent victims of mental illness were deserted by family and friends, scorned and ridiculed by the people, ill - treated by their keepers, insufficiently fed and left to rot out their lives.

"This is not the case in Alabama but the state ranks almost last in the nation in care for the mentally sick."

There are three mental hospitals in Alabama — Partlow State School for Mentally Retarded Children at Tuscaloosa, Bryce Hospital for white patients and Searcy Hospital for Negroes at Mt. Vernon.

Partlow is not a school. It is a custodial institution for mentally retarded children.

The cots where the children sleep are so close together they must climb over the head or foot to get in them.

The number of children capable of receiving treatment is between 25 and 30 per cent.

There are only two doctors, eight nurses and 12 teachers for the 1,685 patients.

The per diem expense per patient is $2.26. Mental health authorities say this must be raised to the bare minimum of $3.60 immediately.

Bryce is known as a "treatment" hospital.

There are 4,839 patients ot Bryce with a capacity limit of 3,000. There are 13 physicians but there should be 54. There are 23 nurses when there should be 326.

Jailbreaker Is Hunted In Alabama

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — The search for jailbreak artist Lonas Ray Caughorn shifted here Saturday when police found a station wagon he was believed to have used to flee a Tallahassee, Fla., dragnet.

The FBI reported it was checking the abandoned station wagon to determine whether the fugitive from the Knox County jail at at Knoxville, Tenn., had driven it here.

Two vehicles were stolen here Friday, after the station wagon was left in a downtown parking lot, and the FBI said the fugitive might have taken one of them in his flight.

Caughorn has been sought throughout the Southeast after breaking out of the Tennessee jail, May 6. He also is wanted for questioning in the theft of $5,000 in gems and $25 in cash from a Jacksonville, Fla., jeweler, last Wednesday.

Jeweler David Balter reported he was robbed at gunpoint by a man he identified as Caughorn after viewing a police photograh.

Officers spotted the car Caughorn was believed driving at Tallahassee, Fla., Wednesday night and it was wrecked after a high speed chase. Officers captured Earl McGinnis, 31, of Knoxville, who was riding with Caughorn in the car.

McGinnis is a former Sunday School superintendent and deacon at Knoxville. He also ran unsuccessfully for election to the city school board in 1957.

Falling Stone Kills Climber

HEMET, Calif. (UPI)—Danial Guinier, 23, a Cal Tech engineering student, was killed in a freak accident Saturday as he prepared to go mountain climbing.

Authorities said Guinier was standing at the base of a cliff with a group of climbers when he was struck on the head by a falling rock.

The mishap occurred at Devil's Slide near here. Officers said Guinier's parents lived in Paris, but they did not know whether he was an exchange student.

Early Americans often took their savings in silver coin, which they then melted down and made into flatware.

West Decides Berlin Will Stay Divided

Gromyko, in a 40-minute attack on the Allied occupation of West Berlin and the Allies' Berlin plan, expressed, however, Moscow's desire to negotiate "a reasonable understanding" on Berlin.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said that in view of the Berlin deadlock:

"The sensible way to approach this matter is to say that the path along which progress should be made is to leave the present situation basically as it is and see whether or not we can improve it in certain respects."

French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville told Gromyko:

"We are ready to make certain arrangements and certain improvements to respond to the concerns of the Soviet Union."

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter did not speak in the debate.

In stinging language, Gromyko blistered occupied West Berlin as a focal point of subversive activities and hostile propaganda directed against the Soviet Union. East Germany and other states of the Soviet bloc. He tabbed West Berlin the "cheapest H-bomb" in the West's arsenal.

He asserted that scores of foreign intelligence and subversive organizations operate in West Berlin.

"There is hardly another place on earth where the intelligence organizations of certain states feel so comfortable. The agents of these organizations work against the (East) German Democratic Republic to arrange sabotage and arson, break machinery at plants, poison livestock in agricultural cooperatives, etc," he said.

Then Gromyko turned to America's German-language radio station in West Berlin.

He accused it of "spreading out false rumors, slander, calls for sabotage and disorders—such are weapons used by that ill-famed radio station day in, day out."

Despite these bitter words, Gromyko referred again and again to negotiation and agreement to patch up the East-West clash over the former German capital. He implied that this must be on Soviet terms.

"If appropriate readiness is shown, no doubt such an agreement will be worked out." he said.

Senator Scoffs Hoffa Claims About Unions

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa's claim that the Teamsters Union has grown and prospered in the face of scandals was denounced as deceit Saturday by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark).

The Teamsters have been expelled from the AFL-CIO as a corrupt labor organization. The expulsion was based in part on findings of the Senate Labor-Management Committee which McClellan heads.

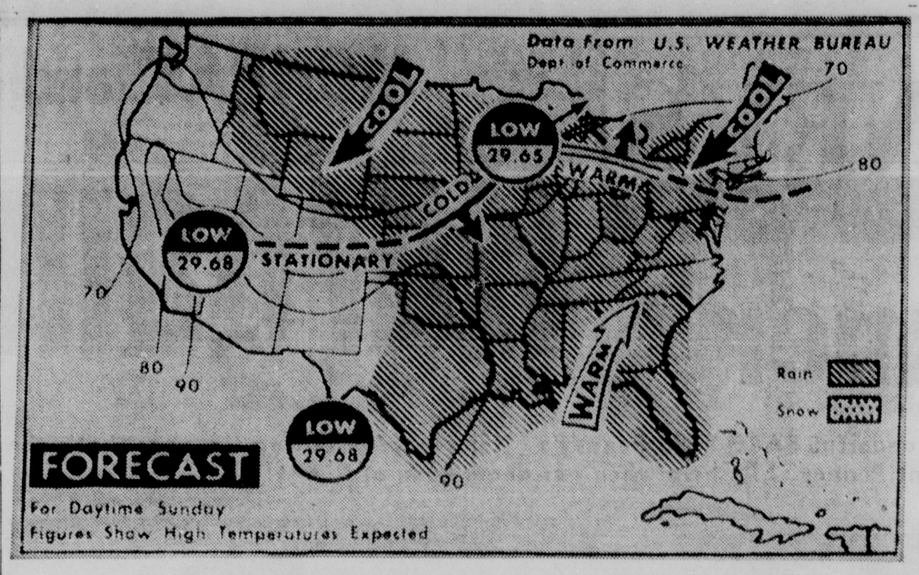

Hoffa has released statements contending the union has grown in membership to 1,632,000 since he took over its presidency in early 1958.

McClellan's statement said he had become suspicious of the figures, and had proved them false by subpoenaing the union's membership and financial records and analyzing them.

The truth is, McClellan said, that the union's average monthly membership shrank from 1,413,800 in 1957 to 1,404,070 in the first four months of 1959. McClellan said the figures are based on the union's per capita payments, a sort of head tax for each member.

McClellan said "It is of further interest to note that while the Teamsters Union operated a profit of $1,186,573.78 in 1957, it operated at a net deficit of $361,764.13 in 1958."

Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice's adventures in Wonderland," was a pen name for Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, an Anglican deacon and mathematics teacher. He was the son of an Anglican priest. The father of the original "Alice" was also a priest and so was an uncle.

Weather Forecast

Prediction for today is rain over most of area from Great Plains to Atlantic seaboard, except in New England, and over the rest of the nation mostly fair weather with clear to partly cloudy skies. It will be cooler over New England and central and northeastern Pennsylvania; warmer in the lower Lakes area and portions of the northern and central Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

It is expected that 75,400,000 babies will be born in the U. S. from 1966 through 1978, compared with 50,000,000 in the 1946-58 period.

It is estimated that only about 35 per cent of all Americans have ever seen a color television program.

FOR BUSINESSMEN

Mountain Trek Gives Big Thrill

WILLIAMS, Ariz. (AP) — Don't go around saying all modern businessmen are softies. Someone may bring up the Bill Williams Mountain Men.

The Mountain Men are an exclusive band of gents who punish themselves brutally just for fun to perpetuate the memory of the rugged trappers who carved an empire from the wilderness of the Old West.

For 51 weeks of the year they're doctors, judges or cafe owners. They live quietly in he Grand Canyon gateway town of Williams, which — like their group — was named for a Bible-totin' old trapper.

But late each winter they grow bushy beards, don buckskin clothing and give up comforts of home for a 5½-day, 165 mile horseback ride to Phoenix.

The trek is something of a publicity stunt with the ride timed ti end at the Arizona State Fairground on opening day of the annual Phoenix Rodeo. But it's no lark for a tenderfoot.

It's an overland trip through steep, cold mountains and parching desert. The parttime adventurers ride all day, cavort and spin tall tales far into the night and then try to catch a few winks in bedrolls thrown on the hard, rocky ground.

The Bill Williams Mountain Men have been making their ride for six years and only 9 starters have gone all the way.

The only non-Arizonan to stick the full distance is John F. Monroe, a 63-year old Milwaukee investment banker who did it this year.

Mosroe quickly learned why so many who try it drop out along the way — saddle soreness.

"My face was badly sunburned when we reached Phoenix," he says. "But, man, you ought to have seen the other end."

Few outsiders get invitations to join the mountain men on the trek. Monroe got his quite by chance.

3 Victims Of Explosion Still Hurt

Earlier this year, Monroe was the scene of a blistering, acid-strewn railroad explosion that sent carloads of bleeding, burning men to local hospitals for emergency treatment.

Now, four months later, three of those badly injured victims are still confined to the hospital for daily treatment and observation.

All are barely able to stand or walk, and all still have great patches of scars caused by acid burns and skin grafts. None yet has full use of his hands, and two have lost a finger each.

Joe Cooper, 209 Kentucky, was quick to answer that he had been in the hospital for exactly 4 months, seven days.

L. F. Hill, of Felsenthal, Ark., sat with his wife making plans to return home. He had been released by the hospital two weeks earlier, but is required to return often for treatment. "Home never looked so good as on that first trip," he commented, adding that it looked better each time.

Ona Bates, Negro, 3706 White St., was looking forward to the day he could go home. He was barely able to stand while soaking his acid-seared hands in a pan of cooling preparation. When would he be able to go home? "Just as soon as they give me the high sign."

The boxcar explosion was one of the area's greatest disasters, claiming eight lives and sending uncounted workers and observers to hospitals for emergency treatment.

Sports Editor In Alabama Is Retiring

BIRMINGHAM (UPI) — Zipp Newman, for 47 years the sports editor of the Birmingham News, retires Sunday to become the News' sports editor emertius, it was announced Saturday.

Newman is succeeded by Asst. sports editor Benny Marshall. who has been with the afternoon paper for 20 years.

The News said in its Sunday editions that Newman will continue to write his column, "Dusting 'em Off," several times weekly.

He will olso continue handling promotion of the Crippled Children's Clinic Football game, the East - West baseball game and the Negro anti-TB Football game.

Marshall, 39, is a native of Vincent and attended Mortimer Jordon High School and Howard College. He was in the Air Force during World War II and saw action in North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

The announcement said Jerry Bryan, a specialist in the conservation field, and Alf Van Hoose, the News' baseball writer, will be assistant sports editor.

Child Missing; Fear Kidnapper

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UPI) — A 5 - year - old boy disappeared from his home here Saturday night and police said he may have been kidnaped.

Police said that William Drew was playing in the back yard of his home when, according to his brothers and sisters, a man and a woman took the boy from the yard.

Providence police said they were questioning a woman who fits the description of the one seen in the yard. The boy was believed to be with the man.

Permits Issued For Construction

Value of new building construction and remodeling fell to $24,787 this week, as 22 small permits were obtained from the office of William C. Hines, Monroe building inspector.

Monday, May 25:

W. T. Jones, to build a frame garage and storeroom at 326 N. 10th St., size 960 square feet, cost $2500.

Merle Edwards, to add three rooms to a frame residence at 2207 Essex, size 840 square feet, cost $2762.

Elijah Tugler, to add a bath and one room to a frame residence at 3110 Renwick, 192 square feet, cost $1500.

Buttitta Inc., to build a one-story duplex frame apartment, 10 rooms and two baths at 611 Oak St., 1848 square feet, cost $2500.

Mrs. H. L. Pritchard, to add one room to a frame house at 613 Florida, 140 square feet, $175.

Tuesday, May 26:

Johnny Johnson, to add two rooms ot a frame residence at 809 K. St., 208 square feet, $2650.

A. G. Facen, to move a frame building, one room from 809 N. Fourth St. to West Monroe, size 14 by 20 by 14 feet high, cost $100.

MIDWEEK

Wednesday, May 27:

Russell Sampognaro, to build a two - room brick drug store at 1215 Orange St., 1921 square feet, cost $6,000.

Carl Trichell, to add a carport and 36 square foot storeroom to a frame residence at 910 S. Eighth St., $600.

Thursday, May 28:

Billy O. Thompson, to move a frame residence, 16 by 18 by 10 feet high from 606 Winnsboro Road to West Monroe, cost $200.

Edward Carter, to enclose a carport on a frame residence at 1709 S. Third St., 216 square feet, cost $250.

Calvin Smith received two permits to move two frame residence from the corner of Wood and Catalpa Streets, at a cost of $200 each, to Louberta Street, just off Booker T. addition.

Friday, May 29:

Leonard Rosedale, to demolish a frame garage and breezeway at 417 Moore Ave. He also received a permit to erect a frame carport, cost $500.

Typical U.S. Home Life Shown USSR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Virginia housewife and her four children are about to embark on a unique mission to Moscow—to demonstrate to the Russians how a typical American family spends its day.

The Russia-bound housewife is Mrs. John Jacobs of Alexandria, Va. She and her youngsters, all under the age of six, will spend several hours every day this summer in a model American apartment in the heart of Moscow's biggest park.

The Jacobs family will fly to Russia sometime early in June to get set for their assignment in a 5½ room modern apartment fitted out by Westinghouse for the main pavilion of the American National Exhibition which opens July 25.

Brown-haired, pretty Mrs. Jacobs says she will be happy if her family "helps just a little bit to break through the awful hostilities that exist between Russians and Americans."

EDITORS WIFE

Mrs. Jacobs is the wife of an editor for the State Department's Russian language magazine, "Amerika." Her husband will serve as a press officer with the exhibition.

Of Russian origin, Mrs. Jacobs came to this country with her parents in 1938. She speaks Russian, Czech, German and French. And part of her job will be to answer questions asked by the swarms of curious visitors expected to file past the model apartment.

"I'll frankly admit," Mrs. Jacobs said, "that we don't have exact duplicates of all the ultra-modern appliances in our kitchen back home."

"But I'll point out," she continued, "that I have all the same appliances in older models and that I would get the same ones shown in the exhibit if I went out and bought an average family home today."

HAVE PARTY

Mrs. Jacobs also thinks it's important to show Russian housekeepers that American family life isn't mechanized or regimented.

For instance, she said, "we'll show them how we help each other in democratic family relationships and how we make things, such as toys and other household equipment."

In addition to taking American canned goods along to Moscow, Mrs. Jacobs is outfitting her children with drip-dry clothes so the Russians can see how they come out of the automatic washer ready to wear.

If their assignment proves too big an order for her small children—Johnny, 5, Nell, 3½, Lucia, 2 and Kate, three months—children of officials at the U. S. embassy will pinch hit for them.

But Mrs. Jacobs says her children are eager. One project they have in mind, she said, is to invite Russian children to a birthday party for Johnny who will turn six soon after the exhibit opens.

West Monroe Youth Wins Scholarship

James Edgar Brown, son of Mrs. Emmett F. Brown, 1511 Willis, West Monroe, has been awarded a college scholarship.

He plans to enter Louisiana Tech in the fall to study engineering and business administration. He is a 1959 graduate of West Monroe High.

The scholarship was awarded by Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. Recipients are judged on aptitude, scholarship, character and ability.

Shaft Sinking For Coal Mine Set In Alabama

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The Tennessee Coal and Iron Division of U. S. Steel announced Saturday it would sink a shaft in the Warrior coal field for "the possible eventual installation of a new mine."

President Arthur V. Wiebel said the development shaft would be driven down in the Mary Lee Seam of the field near the junction of Big Shoal Creek and the Warrior River.

"The purpose of this shaft is to explore mining and other conditions at this particular location, for the possible eventual installation of a new mine to help provide the division's future coal requirements," Wiebel said.

Cotton Labor Costs Sliced By Chemicals

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — The Agriculture Extension Service said Saturday farmers who used pre-emergence chemicals on cotton fields have not had to hire hand labor to chop grass.

Persistent rains during the week kept workers out of the fields and permitted grass to grow rapidly.

Agriculture conditions by county:

Alcorn: Cotton and hill corn are planted. Some fields are grassy and farmers are taking advantage of favorable weather to get rid of the grass. Bottom land corn will be planted as soon as the grass is controlled in planted fields, pastures and home gardens are in excellent condition.

Holmes: Thrips are causing heavy damage. Farmers are poisoning but daily showers are hampering the effect of the insecticides. Most cotton fields are free of grass because of pre - emergence chemicals. Plenty of labor is available. Boll weevils are showing up in the buds of older cotton.

Madison: European corn borers are showing up with boll weevils. Wind and rain have blown down lots of oats. Hay harvesting has been closed by rains. Some cotton fields are extremely grassy and choppers are working as weather permits.

Choctaw: Most cotton is reaching a stand. Nearly all corn is planted and is growing fast. Oats are maturing rapidly,. Some oats cut for hay have been caught on the ground and damaged by rain.

Grenada: Frequent showers have kept cultivation to a minimum. Farmers who used pre-emergence chemicals estimate they have saved the cost of the chemicals by not having to hire hand labor.

Pike: Some cotton and corn are grassy, but all crops are generally good. Pastures are excellent, but hay cutting has been delayed by rains.

Newton: Extremely heavy rains have damaged some cotton and kept farmers from cultivating crops.

Wilkinson: Excessive rains caused a heavy loss of crimson clover seed. Pastures are in excellent condition. Cattle are being sprayed for control of hornflies and ticks.

Chickasaw: Half of the corn and soybeans acreage still is not planted. Little silage has been planted. Rains are delaying all farming operations. Some fields are becoming grassy.

Coahoma: Crops generally are good. Rains have covered nearly all of the county satisfactorily. Corn is exceptionally good. Soybeans are coming up to good stands. Small grains are maturing rapidly. Harvesting will begin as soon as the ground is dry.

Northeast P.O. Branch To Open Monday

A new branch of the Monroe post office will be put into operation on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus June 1, it was announced by Northeast President George T. Walker and Monroe Postmaster Woodrow Hathorn.

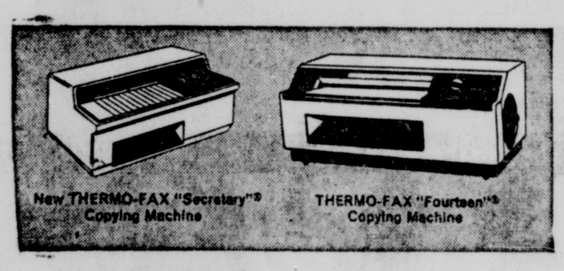

The post office will be designated as Northeast Station and will offer all of the usual post office services, such as the sale of stamps and money orders, sending of registered and insured mail and parcel post.

Mail deliveries and collections in the new station will be on the same basis as in other branches of the Monroe post office system.

Mrs. Aileen Tarver, head of the Office Services Department at Northeast will be the clerk in charge of the new station.

'Country Girl' Completes Season

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

A capacity audience was on hand opening night at Selman Field Playhouse to view the last play of the group's 1959 season "The Country Girl" by Clifford Odets.

The play was done in modified arena style with secne changes provided by new materials at the ends or at the center of the centrally located stage. While well worked out in this respect "Country Girl" was a play within a play which would have gone with better effect on a conventional stage.

PLAY UPON PLAY

The play upon the subject of shows and show people often misses as far as the audience is concerned. "Country Girl" in this writer's opinion was no exception to the norm.

Length worked in favor of motonony—the piece ran close to three hours—but in addition to that it is a critic's drama: just what a critic would come up with if he turned playwright. Clifford Odets may not be in that field but his excellent power of analysis—particularly in the character Frank Elgin the male lead played by Bid Causey—showed he had more than a superficial knowledge of actors, those people who finally make the plays. But the plot sagged.

Causey acted the part well, he went through the motions of exposing his many-sided personality with just as many moods right down to the next to the last scene of the final second act. His was the part of a one-man show who had turned alcoholic because of lack of the proper psychological props. His wife played by Beth Breese had been unable to accomplish this alone and it remained for the combined efforts of wife and director Bernie Dodd played by Bill Hatten to push the former star onstage for a successful comeback.

GOOD ACTING

While these three carried out the bulk of the action Portia Gould as the young actress Art Johnson as the playwright— he also wrote in last year's finale, "Light Up the Sky"—,Vinnie Vincent as the worried producer, and George Spelvin, American, served to keep the play at the human level of understanding. Portia Gould brought some out and out beauty to the stage and Vinnie Vincent gave every impression he felt he was staking his fortune on a drugged throughbred for his leading man.

Figuratively speaking, the main course of the action recalled the story of the drunk fiddler with the master's touch. His wife holds the fiddle and the director holds the bow in hopes that someday the old master will apply his magic touch again.

By waliking a psychological tight rope, involving all the quirks of hypersensitive threatre personalities, the wife and the director manage to get the former "great" off the bottle and on the stage, falling in love in the act.

Paying close attention to detail throughout their parts, Miss Breese and Hatten managed the most convincing love scene this critic has seen on a local stage. Hatten was completely convincing in the part of an ambitious director.

The local cast, director and stage crews did a commendable job on an admittedly difficult play. But the audience could not keep its attention in focus throughout the long ascending action. Those wanting to write a play within play should first consult Leoncavallo's one-act-short-opera, "Pagliacci."

Protectio Against Stings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A mixture of extracts from honey bees, wasps, hornets and yellow jackets can save a patient's life, Dr. Robert F. E. Stier reported at the annual meeting of the American Academy of General Practice. The mixture, he said, takes the shock out of insect stings and prevents near-fatal allergic reactions.

'Licorice Sticks'

Technical School Emphasis Lashed

By RICHARD A. McGEE
California Director of Corrections
(Written for United Press International)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The "Space Age" may mean only "space" in a prison cell for many of our children if school critics force further emphasis on technical knowledge to the exclusion of all else.

Vociferous critics, waggling warning fingers at Russian missile success, demand ever greater stress on technological education in our schools.

I do not suggest that we should not, through specialized education, project our technical knowledge to the highest point possible. especially for the intellectually-gifted few. But it must not be done at the expense of the development of the human personality.

Too little attention is paid now in our schools to character development. Educators devote great energy to training the intellect. They have recently put more emphasis on physical fitness and recreation but character is allowed to develop by chance — a kind of wishful by-product.

And three per cent of our youth are delinquents. One out of every seven 17-year-old boys are arrested each year. Chronic alcoholism is our number four public health problem. Half the hospital beds in America are occupied by mental patients and perhaps a third of our people suffer from deep - seated emotional maladjustments.

It is obvious that our human and social problems are more far-reaching, more complex, more diffucult of solution and more important than any other we face.

I am alarmed that further over-emphasis on technolofical education will cause further neglect of our social responsibility to develop a generation of citizens who can live happily, congenially, and with a sense of responsibility to each other in a world which is becoming more complex and more ridden with tensions every day.

Society is quick to deal with disordered personalities after they have become adults. The tragedy is that we have ignored the problem at the point where it could have been dealt with far more successfully and at much less cost in money and suffering.

We should be just as quick to prevent such character disorders or to correct them when the child is five or ten. The symptoms are there to be seen, the remedies more easily applied, and the treatment more certain of success.

With the gradual decline of the importance of the family and the church as the major factors in the development of personality and character, the school must assume a leading role. The teacher cannot be limited to imparting information and skills.

Nor can the schools reject the "problem child." Not only must strong support be given positive activities directed toward character building, but the child who needs them most must be brought into them.

Members of the "wrong" gang, the habitual trouble maker, the personality deviate, the withdrawn child, the physically-handicapped and the mentally - retarded must be included.

Rejection is the common lot of this group and rejection makes them rebellious and hostile. This is the material out of which delinquents and criminals are made.

Radio Progam From Stomach

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP)— A tiny radio transmitter broadcast from the stomach of a patient in the Scott and White Memorial Hospital research laboratories Saturday. Doctors said the tests were entirely successful.

The little radio did not broadcast sound, but pressures, which were converted electronically into a light beam for recording. The patient had no particular difficulty in swallowing it, and said he suffered no discomfort.

Developed by engineers of the Radio Corp. of America and the Rockefeller Institute, the transmitter and its accompanying tuner were placed at Scott and White for clinical testing by the Rockefeller Institute.

So far, only Scott and White and the Manhattan VA Center in New York have this new equipment.

The transmitter is about the diameter of a pencil and barely more than one half inch in length. It reports on pressures within the stomach or intestines.

Doctors say it can be made sensitive to almost any substance, such as acid or blood.

Orleans Child Smothers In Bag

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Three-month-old Cynthia Herd apparently smothered Saturday while playing with a plastic bag used as a mattress cover.

Willie Herd, father of the Negro infant, said the child was playing with the bag and a short time later she stopped moving. Herd was unable to make the child breathe again.

Giesler Never Went Hollywood

By RICK DU BROW
UPI Hollywood Wrtier

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The man the movie stars call when they're in trouble is a portly, balding, fatherly gentleman who looks as if he might own a general store in the Middle West.

And that is one of the big reasons for attorney Jerry Giesler's incredible success as a courtroom defender of Hollyoowd's elite.

In appearance and manner, he is the direct antithesis of the public image of Hollywood as a brash, glitterng, cut - throat town.

Soft - spoken and slow - moving, he is a homebody who attends only the most dignified functions. While other attorneys move into the new, sleek steel-and-glass buildings springing up in Beverly Hills, Giesler maintains a simple, sedate office in a small, bungalow - type structure enclosed by trees on fashionable Wilshire Blvd.

In court, Giesler's folksiness and good - natured wheedling of juries have more than once taken the sting out of resentment against some of his clients.

"The greatest burden to overcome in defending a film personality is prejudice — often stemming from envy," Giesler said in an interview.

"Believe me, there are more disadvantages than advantages in defending a movie star — particularly when it's a woman and the jury is composed mainly of women. The thing you have to watch out for is that the client doesn't over-act. It tends to bring more prejudice."

An example of a good witness, Giesler said, was Lana Turner, who retained him to help her 15-year-old daughter, Cheryl, when the teen - ager stabbed Johnny Stompanato to death in the actress' boudoir last year.

"She made a wonderful witness," the attorney said of Lana's testimony before a coroner's jury. "A good witness is one that makes sense when talking, doesn't become confused or mixed up and carries the cloak of truth."

Giesler's other well - known clients have included Errol Flynn, Charlie Chaplin, Joan Crawford, Rudolph Valentino, Shelley Winters, Zsa Zsa Gabor and Lili St. Cyr.

How does one attorney get to land most of filmland's top names as clients?

"I guess it was just because I was in on the ground floor," Giesler said. "I grew up with Hollywood."

Born in Wilton Junction, Iowa, Giesler, who says he is 72, moved as a boy to Muscatine, Iowa, and came to Los Angeles with his family in 1906 — when he was 19.

He attended law school at the University of Southern California and got a job at $25 a month after-hours with famed criminal attorney Earl Rogers.

"In other words," said Giesler, "my contacts started back in the early days before Hollywood was really much of anything. I met some performers when I formed the first social club in town.

"A client of mine, comedian Fred Mace, who worked for Mack Sennett, got me to form the club and that threw me into the active groups here. The connections simply continued over the years. So it was just a matter of being there and having the contacts."

But just being there, of course, wasn't enough. Word of Giesler's proficiency — and courtroom dramatics — soon got around. Although he still professes to deplore the use of stunts by attorneys, there are few who can outdo him in this department.

In court, he is deceptively relaxed. He sprawls in his chair with his fingers clapsed over his well - rounded stomach. Sometimes he appears to be dozing.

When he addresses a witness, he speaks softly and apologizes for nearly every question he asks. When he talks to the jury, he leans on the railing as if he were chatting with old friends. Once in a while, he pounds on the railing — and he's broken both hands that way.

As an "actor," he is worshipped by Hollywood's stars. For example:

In 1952, with a perfectly straight face, he wrapped strip-teaser Lili St. Cyr's huge white towel around his body to show the jury how she couldn't possibly have offended a nightclub audience

As a veteran defender, Giesler said he frankly thinks women are better jurors than men.

"They seem to pay more attention to evidence and are gifted by the law according to the facts." he said. "They are very fair — although I always prefer a jury of the opposite sex from my client.

"The admittance of women to juries has had the most important effect on courtrooms of any happening in my lifetime. There is more courteous conduct now than before. You don't see the old slam - bang kind of trials, with tobacco - chewing ranchers messing up the place. The whole atmosphere has improved, and I think it's a great advance for justice."

Giesler, who is married and has two married daughters and a son, lives in a comfortable home in Benedict Cayon and has few financial cares. But he still lists his name in the telephone book under two spellings — G-i-e-s-l-e-r, which is correct, and G-e-i-s-l-e-r, which isn't — so more clients can find him.

He needs them, he said, because "all lawyers die poor."

B M I GRADUATE

Juan Jose Tauil B.

Mr. Juan Jose Tauil B. from Venezuela, South America, was graduated from Millersburg Military Institute, Millersburg, Kentucky in 1957. After returning to his country for a while, he returned to America and entered Bish Mathis Institute, Monroe on July 2, 1958.

Mr. Tauil completed his Junior Accounting course and received his diploma on May 4, 1959, and returned to Venezuela on May 7. He was a very good, cooperative student and worked well with everyone here.

In a letter from Mr. Tauil, he says: "I am going to start to work as Manager in the Purchase Department of the Glass Factory in my hometown with a salary of $400 per month and no withholding tax. My training at B M I gave me the courage to present my application which gave me a job that I never dreamed about."

is leaving for a week long trip to Chicago where he will take a personal course in the latest techniques and scientific information to keep up with the new developments in his contact lens practice.

Contact lenses, Dr. Heinberg points out, are fast becoming more and more in demand due to advanced manufacturing and fitting techniques. More than two million Americans now wear them.

Pedestrians Have Way

Pedestrians have their own way as they step across new harbor bridge in Auckland, New Zealand, Sunday. Well over 100,000 people walked across the bridge during the day. It was their one and only chance to do so. Today the bridge was to be opened officially for strictly vehicular traffic. The bridge, built at a cost of over $19,000,000, and its approaches are more than two miles long. The first to cross the bridge on foot were four runners in training from an athletic club. Grains Fall In Chicago; Some Steady

CHICAGO (UPI)— Wheat was mostly firm and other grains were lower this week on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Compared with last week, wheat was unchanged to up ⅝; corn off 1¼ to 2⅛; oats (new) off ½ to 1; rye off 1⅞ to 2⅞; soybeans off 1 to 3⅝; and lard off 13 to 32 points.

Trade in wheat slowed Friday as traders were mostly inclined to wait the harvest of new crops in the Southwest. Prices were firm Thursday as mills brought wheat in anticipation of government awards. Other firmness during the week followed a strong Kansas City market. Heavy rains were reported in the harvest areas. Export sales were reported to Europe, Pakistan and Japan.

Cash wheat was also firm on a strong buying interest. Red wheat was up ¾ to 1¼ and hard winter wheat up as much as 4½ cents.

In corn, stop loss selling and some liquidation dropped prices. Stocks of corn were high here, and traders expected larger country movement when planting is finished. Commission houses and local traders sold. In the cash market, corn was off ¾ to 1¼ cents.

Oats enjoyed a small rally at the week's close, after a gradual easing of prices through the week. Some stop loss selling and liquidation was seen, especially in the July and December contracts. Cash oats lost 2 cents.

Commission houses sold rye. Soybeans followed the general market trend on stop loss selling and scattered selling. Export sales of beans and oil bolstered the market, but weakness in meal pulled down prices. Cash soybeans were off 3 cents a bushel.

Reds Without Reasons For Berlin Slack

LONDON (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev declared Saturday the Soviet Union has no reason to make any concessions to the West on Germany.

He scoffed at Western proposals on the issues of Germany and Berlin as "horse dealers' tricks."

Radio Moscow reported the Soviet Premier told a mass rally in Tirana, capital of Communist Albania, that the Western package plan submitted to the Geneva Big Four conference "does not certain a single element for negotiations."

"They say one must negotiate concession for concession," Khrushchev said. "But this is the approach of the horse dealer."

Khrushchev demanded firmer consideration for the Soviet plan for signing a peace treaty with the two Germanys.

After referring to Western "horse dealing," he said:

"When we were working out our proposals we did not act as merchants who treble the price they are asking and after bargainining sell their goods more cheaply.

"We have no reasons to make any concessions, since our proposals were not made for bargaining."

Two weeks ago Khrushchev delivered a speech in the Soviet Union saying that some parts of the Western plan deserved consideration.

Russell Long To Protest TV News Cast

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—Sen. Russell B. Long, nephew of Gov. Earl Long, Friday protested as "inexcusable" the use of film showing the governor using profanity before the Louisiana Legislature. Senator Long indicated he would protest before the Federal Communications Commission.

Owners of KSLA-TV which showed the film Wednesday replied today that a presentation of the film was in the interest of "good public service and consistent with law and regulations of the F.C.C."

Sen. Long, son of the late Gov. Huey P. Long, also said in a telegram from Washington, "Request you check any film of that speech before showing it. Expect to protest this matter to Federal Communications Commission."

Similar telegrams were sent to KTBS-TV here and other television stations in the state. Officials at KTBS were not available for comment this afternoon.

KSLA-TV owners said "Suppression of facts to which the public is unquestionably entitled would lead inevitably to dictatorial government and would be destructive of Democratic processes."

The telegram to Sen. Long, released by Winston Linam, station manager, said, "There was no intention of KSLA-TV in televising the sound film of Gov. Long's appearance before the Louisiana Legislature to either malign, defame, or ridicule him.

"We agree that his antics were regrettable. We consider, however, that a governor's speech before a state legislature — in support of pending legislation — is news of profound interest to the public."

By, for, and about WOMEN

Monroe Morning World

May 31, 1959

The approaching marriage of Miss Marianna Elizabeth Altick to Ensign George Robert Pain is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Altick. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pain of Lancaster, Texas.

Miss Truley Ann Chapman, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Patrick A. Juneau Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick A. Juneau of Lafayette, is announced this Sunday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Chapman of West Monroe. August 22 has been chosen as the wedding date.

Miss Patsy Price, Northeast Louisiana State College freshman from Ferriday, was crowned Tau Kappa Epsilon Sweetheart for the 1959-60 school year in brilliant ceremonies at the fraternity's annual formal ball. The pretty coed will represent the organization in the national Tau Kappa Epsilon Sweetheart contest during the late summer.

A July wedding is planned by Miss Wanda Lou Mouton and Jamie Lee Wilhite. The announcement is made today by her mother, Mrs. J. R. Mouton. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Wilhite all of West Monroe. Dr. Jaroy Weber will perform the ceremony in the First Baptist Church in West Monroe.

Of interest here is the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Kathryn Ann Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. Walker of Atlanta, Georgia, to Karl Virgil Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dhu Thompson of this City. The wedding will be an event of June 13 in St. John the Evangelist Church at 3:30 in the afternoon in Atlanta.

Miss Patsy Price Is Crowned Sweetheart Of Tau Kappa Epsilon

Northeast President George T. Walker placed the tiara upon the popular student's head during the ceremony, which climaxed the features of the evening's gaiety. The crown bearer held a white velvet pillow on which the regal symbol rested, and another attendant carried a mammoth bouquet of crimson roses, presented by the Tau Kappa Epsilon President Cleburne Fails. Then the couple led the dance while the orchestra played "Sweetheart of TKE."

Fraternity members and their dates were announced by J. B. Martin, a TKE officer, who also presented the ladies with attractive favors. Prettily wrapped surprise packages contained memorandum books, engraved in TKE letters, and perfumed fountain pens.

Members, their dates and guests danced against a background of spring flowers. Tables held bowls of orchids, and on one side of the building was a fountain with roses floating in the pool. A variety of the same flowers encircled the base of the fountain.

Guests attending the gala occasion included: Dr. and Mrs. George T. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kilpatrick, the latter a faculty adviser of the fraternity, Dr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Lloyd, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Annino, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Johnson, all chaperones.

Tau Kappa Epsilon members and their dates were: Cleburne Fails. and Mrs. Fails, TKE Treasurer Willie May and Miss Melba Anding, Fraternity Chaplain Bennie Cowan and Miss Jeannette McDonald, Secretary Charles Bearden and Mrs. Bearden, Sergeant - at - arms Johnny Brown and Miss Clarice Dickson, Pledge Master Harold Kilpatrick and Miss Karen Strozier, Jay Jones and Mrs. Jones, Larry Brooks and Miss Connie Ware, Marvin Pipes and Miss Jo Ellen Scroggs, Keith Causey and Miss Gay Gilliam, Tommy Allen and Miss Claudette Jones, Danny Chapman and Miss Jo Anne Dent, John Odom and Miss Gail Odom, Haynes Landrum and Miss Laura Bowles, Lewis Hardy and Miss Eileen Scroggs, Obed Kirkpatrick and Miss Linda Davidson, F. B. Davis and Mrs. Davis, Raymond Pylant and Mrs. Pylant, Bill Blanchard and Miss Rita Snider, Jim Aycock and Miss Fran Guthrie.

Patty Prophit Honored With Club Luncheon

Miss Patty Prophit, a Neville graduate, was honored with a luncheon on Saturday at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Mrs. Stanton S. Huey was hostess.

Guests present with Miss Prophit were Miss Suzonne Kellogg, Miss Connie Wheeler, Miss Ann Trousdale, Miss Evelyn Amman, Miss Landrea Ducote, Miss Lucy Turpin, Miss Sandra Knowles, Miss Jenny Williams, Miss Bunny Girault.

MRS. RICHARD CLEGG GUERRIERO, was the former Miss Jeaneal Elizabeth Pearce, daughter of Mrs. Mildred Pearce of this city and N. G. Pearce of Macon, Georgia. Mr. Guerriero is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Edward Guerriero. The marriage is of much interest in this part of the state. The ceremony took place recently in Hamburg, Arkansas. Mr. Guerriero is graduating from Tech in Petroleum Engineering in June.

When fire consumes a stand of timber, it destroys more than just standing sawtimber. Some of the oxygen supply for the earth's atmosphere is also obliterated, for trees and other growing plants take in carbon dioxide from the air needed for their growth and replace it with oxygen needed for human life.

Forest fires not only destroy valuable crops and mar the natural beauties of our countryside, but also burn the thin layer of rich soil in which trees and other vegetation first take root. It takes thousands of years to build up one inch of soil and only minutes to destroy it.

Nautical Miss

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Three coeds at the University of Michigan are rocking tradition's boat by studying naval architecture.

Their presence in what used to be all-male classes has at times caused consternation among those accustomed to livening up classes with a salty story once in a while.

On dit—they say—everyone is talking about— the end of school, vacations, trips, travels, and visitors. Our people are scattering in all directions as soon as the school doors swing shut.

Take the trip planned by the ED HAYWARDS, for instance. With their children, ALEX, PAT, KAREN, and MIKE, they leave Tuesday to drive to Washington, D. C. From thence they will fly to Hamburg, Germany. They will be in Europe until late August.

W. W. STEVENS, JR., a senior in Tulane Medical school, is here this weekend with his parents, the W. W. STEVENS. He reports aboard the U.S.S. Saratoga Wednesday for a training cruise, part of the Naval Medical Reserve program. ANN KELLY of New Orleans is also a guest of the Stevens.

STEVE NICHOLS, NAT TROY, and GEORGE VARINO are flying to New York Wednesday and will sail for Sweden Friday on the S. S. Gripsholm. They plan to work in Sweden for about six weeks and then spend the balance of the summer touring the continent. Steve's guest this weekend is KATHY BISHOP of New Orleans.

JUDY NORRIS, student at Ole Miss, arrives home today to begin her summer vacation in the home of her parents, MR. and MRS. JAMES M. NORRIS in West Monroe.

HARRY STONE of Chicago; the EVERETT CROSSLOWS; and the groom's grandmother, MRS. GLEN A. NEWCOMER.

Tuesday morning RUBY MITCHELL, VERNE JACKSON, and CHARLOTTE JACKSON will drive to Laurel. They will return home that night after the wedding.

Also driving to Laurel Tuesday morning will be the BILL JACKSONS, who are returning home after a month's visit here. From Laurel they will go to Florida for about a week stopover en route to their home in Trinidad, B.W.I.

Among the parties which honored Billie last week was the tea in the home of ANN HARPER: An arrangement of pink hydrangeas was seen in the hall, where ELOISE CANN, ETHYL JACKSON, and young miss VEE MARSHALL greeted the guests. Deep red roses were used in the living room, where Ann and Billie stood to receive. The honoree wore an airy white eyelet - embroidered shirtwaist, while Ann chose an embroidered pink linen sheath.

Green and white were the colors in the dining room, where Easter lilies, magnolias, and Queen Anne's lace in a white tureen centered the table. VERA BROWN and DAISY GRAY alternated at the coffee service. Others who assisted were DOLLY DAWKINS, CECIL FRAZIER, and BESS SHARP. About fifty guests called between three and five o'clock.

Last weekend the Alpha Omicron Pi chapter at Northeast Louisiana state entertained HELEN TANLEY, a member of the sorority's national council whose home is in Nashville, Tenn. Saturday afternoon the VERNON M'COYS and the P. C. LANDERS hosted a boat ride for the visitor and the active chapter. About thirty enjoyed a trip up the river, water sports, and a barbecue supper.

Alumnae members and officers of the AOPi chapter were invited for dessert and coffee Saturday night at the home of FRANCES HALE. Ten alumnae were present to hear Helen explain plans for the sorority's convention in Vancouver, British Columbia, in late June.

The COTHAM HADDADS and the ROBERT EASTERLINGS hosted a party for thirty-five members of the Neville senior class Tuesday. Guest of honor was BETTY ROSE HADDAD. The party was held on the terrace overlooking the bayou. Pottery mugs filled with flowers centered the individual tables. A supper of chicken, barbecued beans, potato salad, and fudge squares was served.

JUDY WILLIS celebrated the end of school with a party for a group of the junior high set. The group swam and went boat riding in the bayou behind Judy's home, and then were served a supper of barbecued hamburgers. Ten guests attended.

ALICE WADDILL, back in Monroe for the summer, was honored with a luncheon party by TEEDEE DIXON on Thursday. The table was centered with a Grecian figurine wreathed in fresh flowers. Chicken smothered in sherry and mushrooms was served with tomato aspic, asparagus rolls and peppermint ice cream for dessert. Eight guests attended.

We are losing some valued citizens who have only awaited the end of school to pull up stakes and leave town. MYRA WORSHAM, who is leaving this week end for Baton Rouge, was honored at a dessert bridge given by CAROLYN JOHNSON. Easter lilies and Queen Anne's lace centered the dining table, and gardenias were used for Myra's corsage. Myra won high as well as the guest prize, while second went to KITTY SMITH. Strawberry chiffon pie and coffee were served to two tables of players.

The HARRELL WEBSTERS honored the JOE POWELLS at a dinner party Saturday night. Hydrangeas were used in the entrance hall, and gardenias on the dining room table. Roast beef and strawberry shortcake were high points of the menu served to eight guests.

Dinner at the WILLIAM STEWARTS Saturday night was in honor of the SLADE BROWNS, who are leaving soon for Orange, Texas. Leila used Easter lilies and gardenias most effectively in her gold and white living room. Yellow day lilies with eunoymus and yellow candles centered the dining table. Rib roast with rice, string beans, congealed salad and lemon chiffon pie were served to eight guests.

And speaking of good meals, as don't we always?. the Lotus Club has been awarded the Gluttons Anonymous four star award for the Wednesday night dinners. Take this week: a small bowl of crayfish bisque followed by sirloin steak with foil wrapped potato, green salad, Burgundy, and hot rolls.

VIRGINIA GRAMBLING was named guest of honor at two luncheons this week. Monday's hostess was SHIRLEY MOSES, who entertained at her home. Roses and gardenias centered the three tables. Shirley served a plate with congealed salad and a tiered sandwich iced with cream cheese. Ambrosia russe was dessert . . . Three tables played bridge, with MARIAN ELLEN winning high: SHIRLEY MONTFORT, travelling prize; and RUTH GILHULA, low.

On Tuesday CAROLYN SAVAGE, MARGUERITE JONES, and JOANN DREYER were hostesses at a luncheon at the Paragon Club, also honoring Virginia. Yellow day lilies were used with daisies in the centerpiece. Crabmeat au gratin was served to ten guests.

Saturday night the JIM FAUCETTS were hosts at a small dinner party for the Gramblings . . . A real man - type meal of steak and apple pie a la mode . . . Incidentally, the Faucetts have house guests this week end, MR. and MRS. J. B. THOMAS of Livingston. Alabama. They will be here until Wednesday.

The RABUN SMITHS are leaving Thursday for a most interesting trip. They will sail from New Orleans for Porto Rico by freighter. They hope to leave the ship there and take another for another island stop or two before starting for home in about two weeks.

The SONNY DIXONS and son JUNO, and the JERRY RYANS, and MICHAEL and JERRYLYN are due home today after a week on the Gulf coast.

The MIKE PICKETTS and their children, PAT and MIKE, left Friday for Florida, a leisurely trip whose eventual destination is St. Petersburg. The A. C. WARNERS will leave Wednesday and meet the Picketts in St. Petersburg. The Warner boys, AMOS and NELSON, will visit relatives in Tampa while their parents are attending a meeting.

Guests from Indianapolis, Indiana, in the home of the E. J. LaMONICAS are MRS. ADA ROTH and MRS. LESTER WORDEMAN.

MR. and Mrs. C. J. DUGAS of Donaldsonville are visiting the BOB DOWNINGS this week end. Tomorrow they will take their daughter, JEANNE, and RENE and DENISE to visit another daughter and her family, DR. and MRS. GEORGE S. BOURGEOIS in Opelousas.

Visiting the JIM SPARKS this week end are MR. and MRS. JUDSON FRANCIS of Dallas . . . NELSON SMITH is the guest of the R. C. SPARKS.

MR. and MRS. PATRICK COLLINS (she is the former Jo Rhodes) have returned to Houston from their wedding trip to Sea Island, Georgia. They stopped off here for a day or two with her parents, the VANCE RHODES in West Monroe.

Here's a poem which fits all year, but is even more so when school is out. Pat McGinley's "Five P.M."

Time to put food on to cook
And see the house is tidy,
To change my clothes and try to look
Gay, glamorous, and bridey;

Time to call the children, then
To wash the little dears —
Yes, night is falling once again,
Right around my ears.

MISS ANN RUSSELL

Miss Russell Will Be Married In June To Delmas A. Jackson, Jr.

Mrs. Gentry Compliments Miss Louise Lester With Conversational Hour

The Herschel Ace Gentry home on Country Club Road was the setting for a conversational hour honoring Miss Louise Lester, bride-elect of Mr. William Norris, III.

Miss Lester was radiantly lovely in a trousseau model of pink and white with matching accessories, and a gardenia corsage presented by her hostess, who also took this opportunity to present a wedding gift to Miss Lester.

The reception suite was decorated with late spring flowers. An arrangement of particular beauty was on the coffee table in the living room, composed of white stock and Easter lilies. A tall basket of yellow calla lillies and fern was a focal point in the entrance hall, where the hostess greeted her guests. The courtyard's natural beauty was enhanced with blooming flowers in the planters, and their background of banana plants. The loggia overlooking Phillips Lake, formed the setting for interesting conservation.

In the dining room the tea table was overlaid with a pink satin cloth. The central decor was a lovely arrangement of white gardenias, ivy and white stock. Ivy and gardenias trailed up and around the silver candelabrae where tall, white tapers burned. Milk glass compotes and silver trays held petit-fores, sandwiches, candies and glazed nuts of pastel shades. At one end of the table, Miss Linda Lavender poured punch from the milk glass punch service. Miss Lavender was assisted by Miss Ja Nel Gentry, niece of the hostess.

CAPTURING THE AWARD for the most outstanding member of T. O. Brown chapter, Student Louisiana Teachers of America, is Miss Jenette McMurry of Gilbert, left, who is shown with Miss Barbara Elliott of Monroe, who made the presentation at the Northeast Louisiana State College chapter's annual banquet.

Vase Choice

Choose vases of three types so that you may have suitable ones for all types of flowers. Tall vases with wide tops should be used for roses, delphiniums and other such flowers; low spreading vases for pansies and nasturtiums and larger ones with wide top and broad base for peonies, gladoli and chrysanthemums.

Take Long Time

Douglas fir, the fabled tree of the Northwest, takes a long time to mature — about 70 years — yet one acre of Douglas fir grows up to 700 board feet in a year, as compared to the 300 board feet per acre which is considered good for tree species of other regions.

Indoor-Outdoor Kitchen For A Holiday House

Planning a kitchen for a "second" home be it a summer cottage, a week-end spot, or a retirement house — presents different problems from an ordinary ond" home be it a summer Usually, space is strictly limited. At the same time, this kind of a "retreat" is apt to have a steady stream of visitors — family, friends, and summer travelers who "just happen to be in the neighborhood"!

Often, then, it is a good plan to create one large room, rather than several small cubicles. This was the approach taken by the kitchen specialist, who in this case was called in on the project while the cottage was still a blueprint. His advice was not to partition off a tiny kitchen, dining room and living room. Instead, the plan was for one large, comfortable family-room and kitchen with a corner arrangement of kitchen equipment.

'Grime Does Not Pay' In Homes Today

Thieves slip in your windows every day and rob your home of its attractiveness and you of your precious time and energy.

Rust, dirt and grime are the criminals. These sneak - thieves take a costly toll in damage to a home's furnishings and interior surfacings. Best protection is the use of quality materials that can withstand the depredations of these "most unwanted" criminals.

Of course, a snug window fitting will help, but there's no window in the world that can keep out all dirt and grime. So set your first trap nearest the window — right on the windowsill!

Metal windowsills will rust; painted wood will gather dirt and dust. What may be recommended is a hard-surfaced material such as colorful ceramic tile which is stainproof, rustproof and durable enough to withstand the most rugged wear.

But "Griminals" (beg your pardon!) have a way of circulating inside a room if they've successfully avoided the tiled windowsill. Here's how to stop them from doing too much damage:

1. Many of the new fabrics for chairs and sofas are specifically designed to resist dirt and staining. Investigate them. You'll find they come in an amazingly wide range of colors and patterns.

2. Remember, dust gathers more dust. Rather than waiting until there's an accumulation of dust on interior surfaces, dust often. It's actually easier.

3. Light colors are pleasant but they show up dirt readily. Keep them away from window areas. Outside light will brighten nearby deeper colors anyway.

4. Watch for still, damp days to polish furniture and floors. Windy days will bring in dust and dirt that will stick to newly polished surfaces.

5. Better yet, look into surfacing materials such as ceramic tile for floors. Tile never needs waxing or polishing, and dirt and dust are quickly removed with just a swish of a damp mop.

Amo Club Meets In Castles Home

The May meeting of the Amo Club wa- held in the home of Mrs. Mary Castles with Mrs. Ruby Hatten and Miss Geneve Castles as co-hostesses.

Mrs. Lillie Mae Shepard, president, called the meeting to order and lead the members in prayer. Plans were discussed for the Family Night in August. Miss Geneva Castles gave an interesting report on the plans that had been made for the Grand Assembley of Rainbow Girls which will meet in Monroe on June 18-19.

Refreshments were served to the following members and guest; Mesdames Mildred Schrader, Lillie Mae Shepard, Callie McMullen, Willie Pumphrey, Delinda Gillham, Bessie Nixon, Pearl Foreman, Annie Douglas, Hazel DeWees, Irene Castles, Irene Goza, Floy Ham, Rubye Simpson, Lottie Wooten, Lillian Keller, Dorothe Schmidt and Miss Gyl Rowell.

Music Club Visits In Pineville

Last Saturday members of the A Sharp Coterie, accompanied by their sponsors Mrs. Grayson Guthrie Jr. and Mrs. Hugh G. McDonald entertained the members of the Melody Music Club of Pineville.

The Melody Music Club is composed of patients of the Central Louisiana State Hospital and is directed by Miss Carol Marsh. It is the only federated club of its kind in the entire United States and has received much recognition under Miss Marsh's leadership both at the state and national level. Members have received great benefit from listening to music and from participation and performance.

The visitors from Monroe were welcomed by both the president of the Melody Music Club and by Mrs. Leslie D. Fain, president of the Louisiana Federation of Music Clubs. Introduced by Diane McGee, president of the A Sharp Coterie, the girls presented the following program:

A Ground-Handel by Ellen Walker; Fantasia I in D minor—Mozart by Ginger Donald; Second Movement of the Sonata Pathetigue—Beethoven by Dianne Garrett; Rustle of Spring—Sinding by Billie Sue Dixon; Duet-Autumn Leaves Mary Jo Strausser and Billie Sue Dixon; Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana"—Mascagni by Mary Jo Strausser; Crescendo—Per Lasson by Barbara Gilliland; Introduction and Fugato in D minor—Harris by Diane McGee.

Following the program refreshments were served.

Green Thumb Garden Club Has Meeting

Mrs. C. D. Henderson was hostess for the Green Thumb Garden Club May meeting in her home on the Avant Road, West Monroe. The president Mrs. C. D. Henderson called for order and the Club prayer repeated in unison. The minutes and Roll called by Mrs. D. B. Gee. Treasurer report by Mrs. Ralph ewman. Mrs. Howell Heard was elected president, and Mrs. Earl Ferguson vice president for the coming year. Other Officers to serve with Mrs. Heard were Mrs. G. B. Gee, Secretary, Mrs. Ralph Newman, Treasure, Mrs. H. R. Robbings, Reporter. Mrs. Earl Ferguson, Chairman, introduced Mrs. John Lewis, who gave an illustrated talk and made many lovely flower arrangements. In closing the meeting Mrs. Earl Ferguson presented a lovely gift to Mrs. John Lewis. Delicious refreshment served to guests Mrs. B. F. Dennis, Mrs. Climmie Wainwright, Mrs. James Griffin, Mrs. Charles Edwards, Mrs. D. C. Metcalf, Mrs. Carl Metcalf, Mrs. A. K. Goss and members G. E. Butler, Mrs. W. A. Carr, Mrs. R. H. Hayton, Mrs. Gaston Decuir.

Miss Conley B. R. Hardwick Are Wed

A home ceremony was chosen by Miss Kathryn Juanita Conley when she became the bride of A-3C Billy Reeves Hardwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reaves E. Hardwick of Start. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard C. Conley also of Start.

The May 12, ceremony was performed by Rev. Joe C. Mongle, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church of Winnsboro. The den in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Roy Clement, sister of the bride, in West Monroe, was the setting, where an improvised altar was formed by a white arch, covered in greenery, flanked by floor baskets of white gladioli.

Miss Linda Hardwick, sister of the groom, was the bride's only attendant. She was attired in a white summer model of white sheer, featuring a midriff of white eyelet over blue. A corsage of pink carnations completed her ensemble.

The bride entered on the arm of her father and was wearing a dress of white Alcenon lace. The low square neckline was scalloped and the skirt very full. Bouffant puffed sleeves added to the beauty of the dress. A headdress of starched lace was used with other white accessories. Her bouquet of white French carnations and poufs of white satin ribbons was carried atop a white Bible, used by four intimate friends of the bride when they were wed.

Following the ceremony the guests were invited into the dining area where the bride's table was laid in lace over white. At one end of the table Miss Elsie Sullivan presided at the crystal punch service while at the other, Mrs. Clement cut and served the tiered wedding confection which was placed on a silver tray around the edge of which large red roses were fashioned. The icing of white was done in hob nail effect and it was topped by a miniature bride and groom. A low central decor of blue hydrangeas in a crystal bowl was flanked by white candles in crystal candelabra.

The couple will make their present home in Santa Barbara, California, where the groom is stationed at Vandenberg Air Base. Both are graduates of Start High School and the groom attended NLSC, before entering service.

P.T.A. Brings To A Close Year's Work

Installation of the following officers was performed by Mrs. M. L. DeFreese: Pres., Mrs. J. H. Butler; V-Pres., Mrs. J. H. Morgan; Sec., Mrs. W. L. Manning; Treas., Mrs. J. C. Dickerson.

In evaluating the year's activities it was noted that Claiborne Unit received recognition for safety posters, scrape-book, 10 per cent increase in membership and council award for attendance.

Highlighting the program was a square dance by a group of fifth graders who performed in costume. Mrs. Ivy McDonald is teacher of the 5th grade.

MRS. ROBERT THOMAS FORREST

A Twilight Ceremony Unites Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomas Forrest pledged their wedding promises at a ceremony held at twilight Wednesday, May sixth, at the Rayville Methodist Church.

The bride is the former Miss Bobbye Jane Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Dunn, of Rayville. Groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Forrest, of Brunswick, Md.

The nuptial scene was illuminated by glowing tapers, which were lighted by Lavelle Huckabee and Robert Tower. Miss Charlotte Ann Stodghill at the organ played selections, setting the scene for the entrance of the wedding party. The Rev. W. D. Boddie enjoined the vows of the double ring ceremony.

Basket standards of white mums and daisy pompoms with white cathedral tapers in floor candelabra were used at the chancel. A path of rose petals was scattered down the aisle for the bridal party by the flower girl, Jessica Hardee.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore frothy white. A filmy slipper-length skirt of silk organza was worn over heavy taffeta, and scalloped white lace formed a short over-skirt. Her fitted bodice was of lace, and sleeves of lace ended at petal points over her hands. A shoulder-length veil of illusion was caught to a coronet of lilies of the valley. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of feathered carnations and stephanotis, centered by two white cymbidium orchids.

Mrs. Lavelle Huckabee attended as matron of honor, gowned in bouffant pink organza over taffeta, with skirt of ballerina length, cut with a fitted bodice. She carried an old fashion nosegay of pink feathered carnations.

The groom was attended by Ora Gene Morris as best man. Lavelle Huckabee and Robert Tower were the ushers.

Mrs. Dunn chose a becoming model of Nile green linen for her daughter's marriage, accented by a corsage of yellow feathered mums.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony in the special rooms of the Rayville Methodist Church. The reception table was overlaid with heavy white damask, centered by a bowl of pink delight roses, illuminated by pink tapers. Pink roses were used in profusion throughout the reception rooms.

Mrs. Robert Tower and Mrs. Leon Moreland presided at serving of the tiered wedding confection. Mrs. Paul Hardee and Mrs. C. H. Buckles, Jr., alternated at the punch service. Carolyn Dampier was in charge of the guest register.

Assisting as tea girls were Juanita Ratcliff, Twanna Gully, Nancy Cloninger, Wilma Tower, and Frances Bowman.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Vicksburg, Miss. For her going-away ensemble the bride wore pale yellow casual cotton and accessories of white. Her corsage was of white cymbidium orchids.

They will make their home in Austin, Texas.

Mrs. Forrest is a graduate of the Rayville High School and attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. The groom is a graduate of Brunswick High School, Brunswick, Md., and is at present serving with the U.S. Air Force, stationed at Bergstorm Air Force Base, Austin, Texas.

Out of town guests for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tower, Jerry Tower, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Wrenn, all of West Monroe: Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Hardwick, and Alvin Hardwick, all of Monroe.

N. E. Student La. Teachers, Hold Banquet

Maypoles of vari-colored streamers and a pyramidal floral centerpiece formed the attractive spring setting for the annual banquet of Northeast State's T. O. Brown chapter, Student Louisiana Teachers Association.

Ribbons ran from the Maypoles to candelabra and extended to cards marking places for organization members and guests. Carrying out the effective theme was a large Maypole in the background of the banquet room at The Rendezvous.

Featured during the program was the presentation of a trophy to Miss Jenette McMurry of Gilbert, who was selected as the most outstanding member of T.O. Brown chapter, which she headed during the current school year. The award was made by Miss Barbara Elliott, vice president of Monroe.

Dr. T. E. Holtzclaw, dean of education, spoke briefly concerning ideals and beliefs in education. He underscored faith in the fundamental principle of equal opportunity which is provided through America's democratic system of education.

The single ladder system of training enables one to continue in school until he has reached the limit of his capacity, the dean said.

The incoming president of the organization, Mrs. Evelyn Senn, elementary education major from Monroe, was presented to the group.

MRS. RUBEN MAJICA SANTOS

Santos-McLeod Wedding Held In Crossett

The First Baptist Church of Crossett was the setting Saturday, May 30, at 8:00 p.m. for the candlelight wedding of Miss Barbara Ann McLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larche Bryant McLeod, and the Rev. Ruben Majica Santos, son of the Rev. and Mrs. John L. Santos, of San Antonio, Texas.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. L. Driskell, of Monroe, assisted by the Rev. John L. Santos, father of the groom. Miss Grace Calhoun was organist, and accompanied soloist, the Rev. Willard Burnham. Edgar L. Benton, of Athens, Texas, gave a reading. Candlelighters were Misses Beverly Spikes and Becky Stell.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional gown of white Chantilly lace flecked with sequins and pearls. Her headdress was a coronet of sequins and pearls. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and white gardenias.

Matron of honor was Mrs. I. C. Godwin, of El Dorado. Bridesmaids were Misses Sherri Woods, Sue Weir of Monroe; Helen Davis, of Bullard, Texas; Rebecca Santos, sister of the groom, of San Antonio. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Santos, sister of the groom, of San Antonio; and Miss Kristy Goodwin, cousin of the bride, of El Dorado. The bridesmaids wore identical dresses of pink crystalline over satin. They carried bouquets of white gardenias tied with pink.

The groom chose his brother, David Santos, of San Antonio, to serve as his best man. Melvis Benton, of Athens, Texas, Joe Garcia, of San Antonio, and Dub Young, of Austin, Texas, were senior ushers, and Larche Bryant McLeod, brother of the bride, and Aubrey Nolan, cousin of the bride, were junior ushers. Steve Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Scott, was ringbearer.

There was a reception in the church immediately following the ceremony.

The bride attended Baylor University at Fort Worth, Texas, and is now attending the St. Paul's School of Nursing at the University of Dallas. The groom has attended Baylor University for four years, and will enter Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth following the wedding trip to Florida. The couple will be at home in Dallas.

Miss Betty Britt, Bride-Elect, Entertained

Miss Betty Britt, bride - elect of Charles Clarke Hall, was honored with a miscellaneous shower in Saint Joseph's Hall on Benton Street Sunday May 24 from 3 until 5. Miss Dorothy Garrett and Miss Anna Marie Danna were hostesses.

The honoree wore a sheath dress of brown and white cotton. The scalloped neckline was trimmed with white pique. It had large bell sleeves and brown patent belt. With this she wore white accessories and a corsage of feathered carnations surrounded with lily of valley and ruffled net.

The party table was covered with a mint green cloth overlaid with a lace cloth. The centerpiece was an array of summer flowers with green and yellow candles on either side. Miss Dorothy Garrett dressed in yellow polished cotton poured and Miss Danna in blue polished cotton served. They each wore white accessories.

Those present were Mrs. John Spatafora, Mrs. Lannie Henley, Mrs. J. A. Sampognaro, Mrs. James Counts, Mrs. Julius Fontana, Mrs. S. C. Danna, Mrs. Ethel Anderson, Mrs. R. E. Britt, Mrs. R. E. Britt, Jr., Mrs. M. J. Fontana, Mrs. Julian Fontana, Mrs. N. P. Fontana, Mrs. Troy Counts, Mrs. Marvin Blaes, Mrs. Ray Garrett, Mrs. Ronald Stratton, Mrs. H. A. Britt, mother of the honoree, Miss Evy Lee Ritter, Miss Joan Fontana, Miss Sylvia Danna, Miss Mona Lee Ticheli, Miss Rose Messina, and Miss Mary Messina.

Wood joist home construction is liked by the nation's 1,500,000 carpenters because it provides a nailing surface when laying the finished floor.

Housewives, in a recent poll, showed preference for wood floors because they are easier on their feet and back. There is a give and resilience to wood.

Psst, Wives - -

NEW YORK (UPI)—Men endorse spring cleaning—but only for their wives, according to a cross-section of American men asked what they plan to do about the annual upheaval.

The men said, too, it's a good idea to keep the wife away from women whose husbands help them with the spring chores. It's also important, they added, to spend most spring weekends on business at the golf or tennis courts.

MRS. DONALD H. DOUGLAS

Miss DeLouche Donald Douglas Exchange Vows

The New Chapel Hil Baptist Church formed the setting May 21 for the wedding of Miss Barbara DeLouche and Donald H. Douglas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff DeLouche of West Monroe, while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall R. Douglas of West Monroe.

The Rev. Harold Cook officiated at the double ring ceremony, while Miss Sally Jackson was organist and Luther Burney the soloist. Traditional nuptial selections were rendered.

Vows were exchanged before an arch of greenery flanked by tall baskets of spring flowers. The tall cathedral tapers in the background were lighted by Bobby DeLouche, brother of the bride, and Butch McGee.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of eyelet embroidery and batiste designed with brief sleeves and a ballerina-length skirt. Her shoulder length veil fell from a crown of starched lace and pearls. Her only adornment was a string of pearls. She carried a white Bible topped with an arrangement of white feathered carnations and satin streamers.

Mrs. Frances Hood served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of beige accented by white accessories. Her bouquet was of carnations. Marshal R. Douglas, Jr. served his brother as best man.

The mother of the bride wore a powder blue dress with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink roses. The mother of the groom was gowned in navy with white accessories. Pinned to her shoulder was a corsage of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of West Monroe High School and is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. The groom is a graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, attended Northeast Louisiana State College, and is presently attending a local business college.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Henry Daricek, Irvington, New Jersey; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bell, Albuquerque, New Mexico; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hood, Baton Rouge; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Daricek, Jonesboro; Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Clark and Miss Carol Clark, Hodge.

Sherrouse PTA Final Meeting Held For Year

The recent meeting of the Sherrouse School P.T.A. was opened by the President, Mrs. W. W. Hathorn.

Mrs. Robert Bushnell, a past Sherrouse P.T.A. President, conducted a very impressive installation ceremony for the newly elected officers: Mrs. Ralph Cain, President; Mrs. W. L. Allen, First Vice-President; Mrs. M. L. Dupont, Second Vice-President; Mrs. Jack Rushing, Secretary, and Mrs. Ervin Miller, Treasurer. The pine, elm, oak (P.T.A. symbol for growth), maple, and cedar branches were used, symbolizing the offices to which the respective officers had been elected.

Reports were interestingly given by delegates to the recent P.T.A. State Convention in New Orleans. Mrs. Nell Sims spoke on "The Reading Rocket", a most timely phase of the individualizing reading instruction. "Books carry children off to other worlds, other people, and other lands." Surely books help readers to inherit the earth, reading is essential to productive learning situations.

Mrs. Ralph Cain commented on "Giving the Gifted." Emphasis is being given today to the needs of gifted children to help them progress as they are able to do and to adjust to situations.

Mrs. J. D. Hull gave the highlights of Mrs. Hobbs' address (Vice-President of National Congres of P.T.A.) Mrs. Hobbs is greatly devoted to the cause of public education. Her interest in youth is great, and she works extensively with various organizations to promote the welfare of the youth.

Reverend Ralph Cain spoke on "Features of Fitness." The home and school together have a mutua' job in working toward the fitness of pupils. The health of pupils is a vital factor in work attitude and development of ability.

Mr. O. K. Davis, Mrs. J. M. McIlwain, and several fifth grade pupils gave accounts of the fifth grade trip to South Louisiana. Mrs. Virginia James' second grade and Mrs. Wanda Abbott's fourth grade tied for the highest room counts for the year.

Mrs. Vincent told about the Reading Enrichment Program which will be in progress at Sherrouse School this summer. This program will be to provide experience and enthusiasm and to individualize reading experiences. This will help a pupil to maintain skills previously taught.

Mrs. J. M. McIlwain, past president, presented the out-going President, Mrs. W. W. Hathorn, with a life membership and pin.

A social period followed after which visits were made to the classrooms to see the art activities that are a part of the school program.

MR. AND MRS. ERVIN T. NEELEY

Neeley - Price Vows Pledged On May 18

Miss Judith Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Price, and Raymond E. Neeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin T. Neeley all of West Monroe were married on Monday, May 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the McClendon Baptist Church. Reverend D. O. Foster performed the double ring ceremony.

The church held arrangements of gladioli and magnolia blossoms with ivy.

Miss Nina Faye Martin played the nuptial music and accompanied Miss Nita Haley who sang. "Because", and "Oh, Promise Me".

The bride given in marriage by her father looked lovely in a silk organza lace over taffeta. Her bridal bouquet was an orchid surrounded by white chrysanthemums. Miss Madeline Tressner served as maid of honor and Mrs. Zara Malone as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Sue Rogers and Miss Rita Neeley, sister of the groom.

The bride chose a blue eyelet embroidered dacron dress with white accessories for traveling. She wore the orchid from her bouquet. The honeymoon was spent in Big Springs, Missouri.

The couple both graduated from West Monroe High School. They will make their home in West Monroe.

Miss Carter C. McDaniel Pledge Troth

Miss Jo Ann Carter and Cornell McDaniel were united in marriage May 16 at 8:00 p.m. in the home of Reverend L. G. Shaw in Winnfield. Rev. Shaw officiated at the double ring ceremony. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elvy Carpenter all of Dodson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. McDaniels of Sikes. She is a graduate of Dodson High School and he of Sikes High School.

Easy Treat

Want to please the youngsters? Then try making them some biscuit scones. To do this just roll refrigerated biscuits into thin rounds. Spread each with soft butter then sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Roll up and place on baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) for about ten minutes.

Chamois Is Aid After Moving Day

If you are one of the several million American housewives who have moved - or will be moving - you will welcome a few tips on easing the back-breaking job of setting up a new home or apartment.

Chamois, which has gained new popularity as a result of a new tanning process which makes it softer, more absorbent and more durable, will simplify a multitude of tasks. Here are ways it can help cut hours from your chores:

Use a small piece of chamois to polish your silver after you have unpacked. Its millions of tiny fibers will make silver shine without inflicting even a tiny scratch.

Remove the accumulated dust of moving from your furniture with a gentle polishing with a large chamois. Chamois' oil-tanned softness will bring up the patina of fine tables, chest, etc., without the problem of smearing or the danger of scratching.

Wash your mirrors with a chamois which has been dipped into a basin of soapy water. Then wring out the cloth and rub briskly until all water has been absorbed and the mirrors are gleaming.

A similar treatment will brighten the windows of your new home — which will give your morale a lift, and also make it easier for your new neighboors to see what's going on.

Also, use a dampened soapy chamois to make the tiles in kitchen and bathroom glisten.

Phi Beta - Professional Fraternity's Official Bow Made On NLSC Campus

Phi Beta, women's national professional music and speech fraternity, has made its official bow on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus. Mrs. Donald G. Malarcher, national chairman of the organization's division of extension, installed the Monroe chapter, Alpha Nu, into which eleven Northeast students were initiated and two associate members were welcomed.

Following the ceremonies, which were attended by a large group of Phi Beta members from the Shreveport chapter, a reception was held at Highland Park Country Club. Here the local patrons and patronesses were officially inducted.

Mrs. Florence Z. Allbritton, assistant professor of music at Northeast State and a member of Beta chapter of Chicago Musical College, is faculty adviser of the local group. Mrs. Virginia Popham of the Northeast speech faculty is associate adviser.

The Northeast students who were initiated have maintained a fine scholastic record, with high grades in speech. They also have participated in music and speech programs on and off the campus, and have demonstrated a serious regard for the arts.

Those who became members of the fraternity are: Glenda Bennett, Winnsboro; Clarice Brown, Monroe; Charlene Brown, Monroe; Barbara Elliott, Monroe; Linda Garrett, Monroe; Jerilyn Gilstrap, West Monroe; Linda Rogers, West Monroe; Jean Stark, Bastrop; Bobbie Strickland, Bernice; Billie Sue Swanson, Monroe; Sue Turner, Monroe.

Local persons who have given generously of their talents, time and encouragement to speech and music and who will sponsor Alpha Nu chapter in the Monroe - West Monroe area include: Mrs. George T. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Noe, Mrs. R. H. Oliver Jr., author of Cajun stories and poems of Louisiana and a civic and cultural leader; Mrs. Harry M. Lemert, assistant professor of English at Northeast State; James W. Parkerson and George C. Brian, both assistant professors of speech at the college.

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel A. Gentry, both speech enthusiasts and the latter an author; Miss Lallage Feazel, member of the Monroe Little Theatre board of directors and dramatic coach; Ivan Uttall, Little Theatre director; and Mrs. Annie Lee West Stahl, associate professor of journalism and for several seasons a critic of Little Theatre productions. All sponsors have been definitely identified with Twin City projects and organizations.

Mrs. Malarcher, assisted by Mrs. Allbritton, presided during the induction of sponsors at the Highland Park Country Club. A feature of the occasion was the awarding of a leadership pin to Mrs. Allbritton, who has gained recognition for "outstanding work for Phi Beta." The gift was presented by Mrs. Malarcher.

The reception rooms in which a social hour followed induction ceremonies was attractive with a variety of spring flowers, among which roses predominated. The refreshment table was covered with beige lace over orchid and centered with a crystal punch bowl circled by ivy and Marconi daisies.

Crystal was repeated in the candelabra holding glowing white tapers and crimson roses, the fraternity's flower. Large trays held assorted sandwiches and small cakes, and compotes were filled with orchid mints.

Mrs. Walker, who was wearing a pink frock, served punch, and Mrs. Popham, who chose a flesh embroidered organdie, assisted in the courtesies.

Participating in the initation ceremony was Mrs. L. E. Bagot, who recently moved to Monroe. Representing the Centenary College chapter of Phi Beta were Mary Jane Carter, junior alumnae adviser, and student members of the chapter there, Martha Dickens, Edna Ellis and Joyce Lundy.

Phi Beta lists among its honorary members such renowned names as Helen Hayes, Loretta Young, Judith Anderson, Ethel Barrymore, Madeline Carroll, Rosa Ponselle, Shirley Booth and Ampora Iturbi. Eva LeGalliene, one of the foremost theatrical figures of all time, serves as national speech adviser. Van Cliburn, America's young pianist of national fame, has recently become a patron of the fraternity.

THE FORTHCOMING MARRIAGE of Miss Carolyn Annice Alford to William Roden Saunders is announced today. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Needham Edgar Alford of Shreveport and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Saunders of Ruston. The wedding ceremony will be held at Noel Memorial Methodist Church at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Reverend J. M. Alford, grandfather of the bride-elect will perform the ceremony, assisted by Dr. B. C. Taylor.

Weddings Are Mainly Hard, Hard Work

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — "Dressing ushers for a wedding is tough work. They're the dumbest things you ever saw. They can't put a button in a collar or a pair of cuff links in their sleeves.

"You take the smartest guy in the world, talk to him at a wedding and all you get out of him is uh-uh-duh!"

And that is why the wedding specialist of one of the nation's most high - faluting men's clothiers turns up at fashionable weddings in a tee shirt and tennis shoes.

"I strip right down and get busy," said George Feen, who has handled more than 150 weddings for the more wealthy customers of J. Press Inc.

GETS TO TRAVEL

One anxious bridegroom paid for Feen's plane ticket to British Columbia to oversee a wedding, but his most exciting trip was to a huge society wedding on Long Island.

Feen, driving from New Haven with his car jammed with specially tailored cutaways, took a wrong turn. Instead of arriving at noon, he was still tearing toward the church at 1:45 p.m. The wedding was at 3 p.m.

But the bride's panicky father had called out the state police, who collected Feen and sped him —sirens screaming in a special motorcycle escort — to the scene.

"I got 'em dressed and to the church on time."

The weddings dearest to Feen's heart are those where the bridegroom, best man and ushers all invest in expertly tailored tails or cutaways to the tune of about $150 for each complete outfit.

"But if they insist on renting, we recommend an establishment," added the practical Feen. Even so, the purchase of shirts, ties, socks, and collars mounts up.

"We average $150 to $200 on little last - minute details," he said. Teen throws in his services — which cover a wide range.

"I have my wedding suitcase. I have a needle and thread — bridegrooms and ushers always have loose buttons — shoe horns, shoe polish, aspirin and smelling salts.

"I've had bridegrooms pass out on me so many times it isn't even funny. Fathers of the bride, too. One fellow, I tied his ascot with one hand and waved smelling salts under his nose with the other.

"I've got common pins, extra collars and shirts in a whole range of sizes, spare ascots and shoe laces. Men got all fussed at weddings and they're always ripping out their shoe laces just as the music is starting."

"I was at one wedding where the three bridesmaids somehow misplaced their dresses. That's right — lost 'em. The father of the bride was ready to die.

"I'd been at another wedding in the morning and was bringing back the bridesmaids dresses to be cleaned. So I said, wait a minute, and ran out to my car.

"The dresses were a little bit loose, but the girls got down the aisle. The bride's father nearly wept on my shoulder.

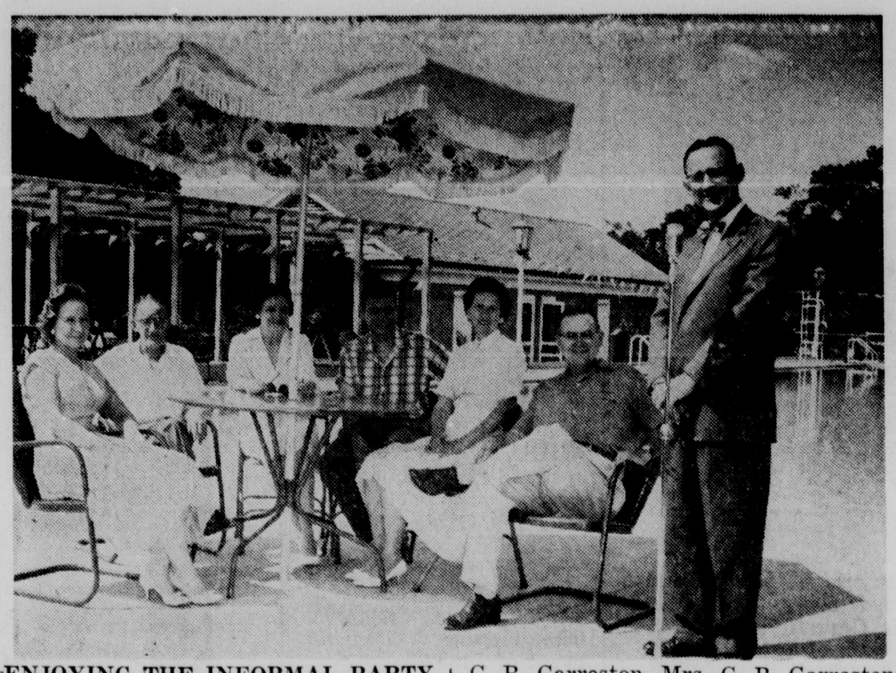

"I usually spread the bride's train before she starts down the aisle. Listen, you've got to be a showman to run a wedding!"

Then there was the New Haven customer who felt he could get along without Feen. The wedding was at 1 p.m. At 11:30 a.m., a frantic telephone call summoned Feen.

"You never saw such a mess. The rented coats didn't fit, one fellow had the striped cutaway undertakers use. One had a white vest. One had brown cordovan shoes — with a cutaway."

"I ran back and forth from the church to the store 15 times. But they were all ready to go when the music started."

'Country Club Holiday' Marks Pool Opening At Bayou DeSiard Club

On Saturday, May 23, beginning at 5:00 p.m. the Bayou DeSiard Country Club held its formal opening of the club swimming pool for the summer. The theme of the evening was "Country Club Holiday."

This was a strictly informal affair for the entire family of members. Gaily colored pennants and balloons were strung around the pool, under which tables for eight were set with colored checkered cloths. Hurricane lamps were placed at intervals, where a stage was set over the baby pool for the fashion show with 33 models showing lovely summer clothes of merchants who are members of the club.

Models participating were Cindy and Ashley Easterling, Paula Perry, Conrad Madden, Becky Bancroft, Janet Vanderpool, Mark Glazer, Cathy McSherry, Mrs. W. J. Riley Jr. and children, Patty, Bill and Paul, Mrs. Clarence Barton, Margaret Moore, Bunnie Cannon, Mrs. Kent Anderson, Jan West, Mrs. Edward Holmes, Jimmy Moore, Miss Sally Oliver, Ed Seymour Jr., Mrs. James Ewing, Mrs. Jake Ussery, Mrs. Clay Wilson, Mrs. T. A. Calloway, Mrs. Robert Ewing, Eckard Wheeler, Miss Betty Scott, Judy Searcy, Mrs. Henry Hinkle, Mrs. Benton Wakefield, Tom Hyland, Mrs. Harold Woods Jr. and Mrs. Lee Edwards.

Nat Santora and his dance team performed "Steam Heat" from Pajama Game. A background of organ music was furnished by the organist with the Mixmasters who played in the ball room later for dancing.

Just before dark a brilliant display of fireworks was seen, it was spectacular. There were concession booths for the youngsters, turtle races, water gun competition and a pop corn machine. A barbecue and buffet supper was served. The pool was opened for swimming after these activities. The committees were Chairman, Mrs. Charles Garretson, co-chairman, Mrs. John Sherrouse Jr.; master of ceremonies and chairman of entertainment were Dr. and Mrs. Fred Marx; decorations, Mrs. Thad Ryan; food, Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Touchstone; fireworks, Mr. and Mrs. George Spencer and Mrs. Doyle Hamilton in charge of fashion show and narrator Mrs. Robert Wood.

Booklet On Use - Care Is Must Reading

It's a red letter day in any household when a brand new major appliance such as a refrigerator - freezer, a range, or a dishwasher is delivered and installed. Tucked into each one is a handy detailed booklet on the use and care of the appliance which should be "must" reading for the homemaker.

In fact it's so important, according to the warranties, that failure to read the instructions carefully may result in dissatisfaction with the appliance or in extra service requirements that might be eliminated with proper operation procedures.

Some proud new owners may ignore the instruction booklet thinking they know all about a refrigerator, for instance, since they've had one around the house for many years. But with these new models, equipped with all the latest engineering features and conveniences, it behooves the lady of the house, and the man, too, to become thoroughly acquainted with all the inner workings and advantages. The booklet is really a tool to help the owner get the most for her equipment dollar.

How can it be used to best advantage? Read it through when the appliance is first installed to get a general idea of the information it contains.

Lotus Club Supper Dance Held Last Evening

Last evening at the Lotus Club members and guests enjoyed an informal buffet supper and dance. The hours from 8 until 12 o'clock. The Mixmasters furnished the music.

Mrs. Thomas C. Holmas Jr. and Mrs. Randolph Brown were responsible for this delightful affair as they were on the planning committee.

Standard black wrought iron candleabra with hurricane lamps were placed throughout the club to furnish the lighting.

There were twwo buffet tables, one in the lounge held a silver soup tureen filled artistically with pink and white peonies, this was flanked by silver candelabra with burning tapers. The other buffet table was placed in the men's lounge, which was open to all for the evening. A copper chafing dish filled with gardenias centered this table and a wrought iron candelabrum was used on either side.

Logtown PTA Holds Final Meeting

The Logtown School held its last meeting of the Parent Teachers Association in the school cafeteria. The meeting was opened by Mrs. Roy Anderson, President, after which the invocation was given.

Since there was no new or old business. the room count was taken next. The fifth grade won having the largest attendance of mothers. The meeting was then adjourned.

Evergreen Garden Club Meets Tuesday

The Evergreen Garden Club met in the Conference Room of the Ouachita Parish Library in West Monroe, Tuesday, May 19, at 7:30 p.m.

An arrangement of pink and blue hydrangeas in a crystal basket adorned one end of the lace covered table, while punch was served from a crystal service on the other. Mrs. W. C. Buchanan, Mrs. R. F. Howell, and Mrs. J. K. Ezell served as hostesses as the members assembled for the meeting.

Mrs. Roy Riley, president, opened the meeting with the reading of the club prayer in unison. She then asked for reports on various committees, each giving its final report of the year.

High light of the evening was the installation given by Mrs. Max Kulke, of newly elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. Kulke used a black footed container in which a Hargarth design, using pine branches, the club flower, and as secondary placement, white gladioli, to enforce the line design, representing the members. As representative each officer was given a lavender colored aster, and asked to accept her responsibility by placing the flower in the arrangement, with the final placement by the new president, making a very ingenious arrangement.

The speaker also gave an informative lecture of line massed arrangements, with members bringing prepared exhibits for corrective criticism. Mrs. Kulke spoke on the use of color, harmony and design with types of plant material to create an arrangement of beauty.

Members attending were Mesdames: Roy Riley, J. Phelps, Ben Farmer, Neal Collins, L. G. McCain, W. B. Hutto, I. M. McLain, Ray McEacher, C. L. Kissel, W. C. Buchanan, J. K. Ezell, R. F. Howell, and Max Kulke.

Mrs. Turner Monroe Garden Club Speaker

One of the most interesting programs of the Monroe Garden Club was the talk by Mrs. Arnold Turner of Pocahontas, Mississippi, on "Collector's Luck"! Mrs. Arnold has been collecting antiques for many years and began her fascinating description of her many years of collecting with the story of the first piece she found in the Mountains of Virginia. She collects mostly pressed glass and has managed to secure a complete set of each piece. Her adventures in securing these pieces were most entertaining.

After moving to Mississippi she continued her search for antiques to furnish the home she had bought which was the only home in that section left intact after Sherman's March through that part of Mississippi. It is completely furnished with Collector's Items that she had secured piece by piece throughout the country side.

Mrs. Stewart Hunt of Ruston had set a low Japanese Table with a lovely tea set and a centerpiece of longstemmed orchids.

Mrs. H. K. Touchstone had the English Table featuring the beautifful English mixed bouquet and using lovely china and exquisitely delicate glassware.

Mrs. Alymer Montgomery had the Hunt Club breakfast.

Mrs. Benton Wakefield featured an early American table with most unusual centerpiece of Cauliflower that was beautifully done.

Hostesses for the metting which was held at the First Presbyterian Church were Mrs. Thomas Leigh and Mrs. Allan Sholars. Junior group chairmen were Mrs. H. K. Touchstone Jr. and Mrs.

Ransom's Camp Setting For Garden Club Meeting

Patio Garden Club members recently enjoyed a picnic at Ransom's Camp on the Ouachita River. Bridge tables were set up on the porch overlooking the river. Another attraction was the large private lake where boating and fishing was enjoyed during the morning.

The occasion was the final meeting of the club year at which time new officers were elected as follows - president, Mrs. William Austin; president-elect, Mrs. Robert Holt; vice-president, Mrs. Jim Williams; program chairman, Mrs. Don Griffin; recording secretary, Mrs. Bolling Jones; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jack Fluck; Treasurer, Mrs. Darrell Brisbin; Publicity, Mrs. Edmund Brown and horticulture, Mrs. Betro McRaney.

Outgoing program chairman, Mrs. Joe Dixon, reminded the group of plans for a party in June at which the husbands of club members will be guests.

Those attending were Mrs. Stanley Bagwell, Mrs. Edmund Brown, Mrs. Darrell Brisbin, Mrs. Joe Dixon, Mrs. Jack Easterling, Mrs. Jack Fluck, Mrs. Tommy Holmes, Mrs. Robert Holt, Mrs. D. V. Loflin, Mrs. Jack Madden, Mrs. Paul Ransom, Mrs. Jerry Ryan, Mrs. Miles Sager, Mrs. Benton Wakefield, Mrs. Jim Williams and Mrs. Rudy Cannon.

Mrs. Loflin Garden Club Guest Speaker

The members of the La Petite Maison Garden Club held their May meeting in the home of Mrs. W. L. Salley on Valencia. Mrs. Salley served coffee and pastries to the attending members and guest speaker, Mrs. D. V. Loflin. A beautiful arrangement of Easter lilies and Queen Anne's lace made by Mrs. Loflin was on the dining table. After refreshments a short business meeting was held. Mrs. Lester High, vice president, presided over the meeting. Mrs. High introduced new members, Mrs. W. J. Ernst, Mrs. Amos Smelser, Mrs. S. P. Savose. She then introduced Mrs. Loflin who described the makings of three arrangements. First she made an arrangement using a figurine as part of the arrangement. Her next was a dried arrangement in which part of it could be replaced with fresh flowers. The last arrangement was made of artificial flowers. Mrs. Loflin also made several arrangements for different parts of the house at the suggestion of some of the members. Her talk and demonstrations were enjoyed by all.

The meeting was closed with the announcement that the next meeting will be a luncheon and installation of officers. It will be the last for the year. Members attending were Mesdames Reneau Breard, Robert Smith, Coy Casey, A. H. Jelks, W. McCain, Louis Breard, Sylvester Breard, J. E. Murphy, Johnston, Robert Easterling, Doyle Hamilton, John Studdard, V. O. Smith, David Pobst, Malcolm Smith, Ed Heard, Curtis Cook, Farrel Adams, and Charles Wilds.

Corsage Making Theme Of B. V. Garden Club

The May meeting of the Bayou Vista Garden Club was held in the home of Mrs. Jack Harrington. Mrs. R. W. Gregory, Jr., was co-hostess.

Two new members were voted into the club, Mrs. Grady Merriman and Mrs. Betty Moore.

Mrs. Marcus Mapp was guest speaker for the evening. She demonstrated how to make corsages. As she demonstrated the fundamentals of corsage making, each member worked on a corsage. Many interesting and helpful things were learned from Mrs. Mapp's demonstration.

Junior Girls' Unit Installs New Officers

The Junior Girls' Unit sponsored by Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary 1809 was officially instituted at the Post Home. The State Department president, Mrs. June Moore, was the instituting officer. Mrs. Moore selected Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett, President of Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary No. 1809 as instituting conductress.

The elected officers were installed by President Moore. The president is Mary Claire Hanson and 1st vice - president is Gail Perry. Toni Perry is 2nd vice-president. The Secretary is Kay Cobb and treasurer is Vickie Presnall. The chaplain will be Retta Simmons and Dolly Foster will serve as conductress. The guard is Dotty Cowan and Diane Bartlett will serve as patriotic instructor. Jane Gauthier will serve as historian and compile a yearly history of the unit.

After the installation service. Mrs. Moore stated that the object of the Junior Girls' Units is to instill into the hearts of our youth a firm belief in the principles of our Republic, reverence to the flag of the United States and to assist the ladies auxiliary and the Veterans of Foreign Wars in their activities.

The Advisory Council which is composed of the Auxiliary president, treasurer and youth activities chairman was introduced during the meeting.

After the meeting, refreshments were served by Rodney J. Hobbs Auxiliary.

Neville FHA Install Their New Officers

Climaxing the events of the year, the Neville chapter of the F. H. A. held its annual Installation Banquet in the Flamingo Room of the Hollywood. The main interest of the room was the attractively decorated tables on which centerpieces of red roses, the F. H. A. flower, and white candles were placed. The red and white colors used are the colors of the organization. Each of the outgoing officers was presented a corsage of red and white carnations by the incoming officer taking her place.

Miss Pat Hand, President, opened the banquet by welcoming the members and guests present. The parliamentarian, Miss Judy Reagan, gave the invocation. The guests present were then introduced by the president. They were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Seegars, Mrs. A. Conaway, Mrs. L. J. Bower, Mrs. W. L. Willis, and Ross Nolan. The F. H. A. sponsors, Mrs. Daisy Daniels and Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, were presented corsages of red roses by the president. Later on in the evening the vice-president, Miss Alice Bower, gave an account of the activities of the F. H. A. during the year 1958-1959. Because of their help and inspiration to the club, each of the F. H. A. mothers was given an honorary membership in the club. The F. H. A. mothers are Mrs. A. Conaway, Mrs. L. J. Bower, and Mrs. W. L. Willis. The F. H. A. beau, Ross Nolan, was given a scroll for his help during the year. Miss Alcie Bower was recognized as the outstanding Senior F. H. A. member for the year 1958-1959. Her gift was a lovely gold "Key to Success."

At the close of the evening the installation service was held. Each of the old officers lit a candle and stated a purpose of the Future Homemakers of America. The president called each of the new officers forward and they were formally installed as the officers for the year 1959-1960. The new officers are as follows: Miss Jan West, President; Miss Penny Deen, vice-president; Miss Nancy Nolan, secretary; Miss Nancy Wilson, treasurer; Miss Bunny Buckner, historian; Miss Chloe Smith, reporter; Miss Linda Bird, parliamentarian; and Miss Mary Lynn Armstrong, song leader. After an acceptance speech by Miss Jan West, the new president, the banquet was dismissed.

Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett was appointed as patriotic instructor.

Mrs. Dixie Ritchie, state department senior vice - president, was the installing officer. Mrs. Ollie Neal from Boone - McDowell Auxiliary 2277 was a guest at the meeting.

Members attending the meeting were from Rodney J. Hobbs 1809, Christian Phillips 3375 and Thomas Tyson 3977.

Garden Tour Today For Twin Cities

Eleven Twin City gardens featuring Day Lilies will be open to visitors all day today from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. according to Mrs. W. R. Gates, president of the Dixieland Society.

Those interested in seeing these places are urged to do so at the time of day convenient to them. Some will only plan to see those gardens nearest to them, while others may want to see all of them. In view of this convenience Mrs. Gates said that it would not be a formal tour, but open gardens on the come and go basis.

The gardens open today are as follows: Mrs. W. R. Gates, 404 Linderman Ave.; Mrs. June Hill, 304 Anderson St.; Mrs. Collier Murphrey, 202 Slack St.; Mrs. R. C. Pittard, Norris Lane, Mrs. J. H. Savage, 406 Clayton; Mrs. Beaulah Albright, White's Ferry Road; Mrs. Ruth Pylant, White's Ferry Road; Mrs. Mary Willett, White's Ferry Road; all in West Monroe and Mr. L. L. Price, 3800 Blanks; Mrs. Georgia Williams, 3800 Lee, Ave.; Mr. Ernest B. Turner, Swartz Road, all in Monroe.

Cerebral Palsy PTA Reports On Convention

The Cerebral Palsy Parent-Teacher Assocation met for the last regular meeting of the school year on Tuesday, May 19, at 2:00 p.m. Mrs. Walter Dunn reported on the state PTA. convention.

As installing officers, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry presented corsages to the following officers in the installation ceremonies: Mrs. U. B. Smith, president; Mrs. Ira Williams, treasurer; and Mrs. Walter Dunn, as outgoing president.

Mrs. Smith began her new duties by appointing the following committees: Program, C. Milton Blue, Mrs. Lovell Hayden, Mrs. J. Y. Pipes, Jr.; finance, Mrs. R. L. Coates, Mrs. J. C. Warlick, Jr.; magazine, Mrs. C. D. Mauldin, Jr.; yearbook, Mrs. K. Adams, Mrs. L. Meredith; membership, Mrs. Dick Young; historian, Mrs. W. M. Rasberry; sunshine Mrs. J. R. Wimberly, Jr. and Mrs. R. L. Coates.

Mrs. J. Y. Pipes Jr. was the hostess for the meeting.

Miss DuBois Luncheon Guest Of Dr. Hunter

Miss Joyce DuBois, a Neville graduate, was guest of honor for a luncheon on Tuesday at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Dr. Julia J. Hunter was hostess in the private dining room.

Guests present with Miss DuBois and Dr. Hunter were Mrs. C. W. DuBois, the honoree's mother, and the Misses Pat Smith, Jean Magee, Deane Southall, Carolyn Willis, Carolyn Jackson, Rena Conway, Georgia Burkett, Linda Coleman, Judy Reagan, Nancy Miley and Dottie Vigg.

PTA Tribute To Retiring Teachers Given

Sentiment, flowers and delightful refreshments were the order of the day for the final meeting of the 1958-59 session of the Crosley P. T. A. Mrs. W. B. Hedgepeth opened the meeting with the invocation. Tribute was paid to three retiring teachers of the Crosley faculty—Mrs. J. O. Miller, third grade; Mrs. W. B. Hedgepeth, fourth grade; and Mrs. H. M. Conn, sixth grade. Corsages of white carnations and red roses were presented to each of the honorees along with the best wishes of the entire Crosley P. T. A. Also, at this time, outgoing president, Mrs. Grover Bedenbender, was presented a corsage of appreciation by the unit. A lovely cake of red and white denoted 113 years of combined efforts of the three teachers in teaching ABC's.

Officers installed for the 1959-60 session were Mrs. W. E. Hux, president; Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender, 1st vice-president; Mrs. J. M. Marshall, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. W. T. Painich, secretary; and Miss Elaine Golson, treasurer.

Mrs. R. C. Joyner reported on the Louisiana P. T. A. Convention held in New Orleans. The auditing report was brought to the unit by Mrs. T. C. Cockerham. Arrangements and hospitality for the meeting were under the direction of Mrs. W. D. Sawyer. Mrs. Armstrong's fifth grade won room count.

Comedy Skit Entertains Highland PTA

The Highland Elementary School PTA was entertained with a comedy skit, "School Daze at Razor Ridge School," written and produced by Mrs. Irvin D. Owens fourth grade class.

Mrs. V. O. Wilson installed the new officers. They are: president, Mrs. Clotel DeLand; vice president, Mrs. Marion Huntsman; treasurer, Mrs. Jack Thompson; and secretary, Mrs. Alvin Arledge.

Mrs. Jack Thompson gave a financial report for the year and Mrs. Norma Nix, outgoing president, gave a brief resume of the year's activities.

Following the business meeting, refreshments were served and everyone enjoyed a time of fellowship.

Aren't You Planning To Go To College

Most everyone knows of young men and women who are capable of going to college, and whse parents want to sent them — but whose education was somehow never completed.

Why?

A clue can be found in a new study, made recently with the support of the National Science Foundation, reports the Institute of Life Insurance. The survey, which covered more than 35,000 twelfth-graders in about 500 high schools, sheds considerable light on the factors that influence students' decisions to go to college. The findings, incidentally, can be very useful to fathers and mothers who want to encourage their children to pursue a college education.

As might be expected, the students' experiences in high school, as well as home background, have a lot to do with their attitudes toward college. Three things seem to bear an especially important relation to college plans: good grades, the number of friends with college plans and the degree of discussion the students have had with teachers or guidance counselors.

Thus a youngster who develops an interest in college, associates with students whose interests are similar, and proceeds to talk about college with people who are in a position to encourage his hopes and aspirations. Moreover, the college-bound student quickly realizes that in today's competitive world, good grades will help him all along the way.

Apparently the single factor of discussing college plans with advisors is a very good sign. Parents as well as teachers might keep this in mind if they would like to see a youngster develop a desire to enter college. It was evident from the study that some students with ability were not being sufficiently encouraged to go on to college.

Asked why they were planning on college, the youngsters said they recognized the need, in general, of a college degree for a career. Among the other reasons they gave were the financial rewards; the desire to explore different kinds of work; and enjoyment of study.

The most frequent reason given for not planning on college was, of course, financial. What is more, students with more than two brothers and sisters were plainly discouraged about the possibilities of college for themselves. Those who were counting on considerable financial assistance from their parents were naturally likelier to have college plans than students who could expect little assistance.

These responses from the youngsters themselves point up what many fathers and mothers already know—unless there is a keen desire to send children through college, backed up by long range financial planning, they may never even reach college. Even families of modest means have been able to give their children a full education this way.

Perhaps the greatest tragedy occurs when the loss of a family breadwinner cuts short the education of a promising child. Many families protect against this ever-present possibility by obtaining additional life insurance earmarked for a youngster's college education, should anything happen to the father. The insurance, of course, is on the father's life. If the father lives, as he probably will, he can continue to build family savings that can be used for his child's college education.

THANK YOU!

FROM THE NEW OWNERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT OF MONROE FURNITURE CO. FOR MAKING THIS YEAR'S PRE-INVENTORY SALE THE BEST IN MANY, MANY YEARS.

Yes, your tremendous response to this year's Pre-Inventory Sale made it the best in the past several years. This indicates to us that you like our lower prices and friendlier service. We are grateful for your patronage and hope that you will come to see us often.

TO SERVE YOU BETTER WE HAVE CLOSED OUR WEST MONROE FURNITURE STORE.

Yesterday was the last day of operation for West Monroe Furniture Co. Our decision to close this store came after much thought and consideration. We sincerely felt that our West Monroe store building, which is not air conditioned, was too small and did not allow the comfort, selection of merchandise and service which we want our customers to have. It was for this reason that we closed this store and moved everything over to our Monroe store, where we will concentrate our efforts and energies to provide this entire area with the finest furniture store in North Louisiana. Mr. Harold Miles, who managed our West Monroe store, is now associated with Monroe Furniture, where he welcomes all of his friends and customers to visit him.

BIGGER and BETTER THINGS TO COME FROM MONROE FURNITURE CO.

All of us at Monroe Furniture are working hard toward the aim of making this store a real credit to our Twin Cities, to North Louisiana, and the entire State. With the plans which we have underway we think everyone will be saying, "You see more, you save more at Monroe Furniture." It is our pledge to bring you a wider selection of merchandise, lower prices, better service and a friendlier, more courteous atmosphere.

La. Finance Bills Ready For Actions

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Legislature will meet in joint session Sunday night to hear why Gov. Earl Long left the state for medical treatment.

The explantaion will come from Sen. Russell Long (D-La), the governor's nephew, who issued a statement Saturday after the governor flew to Galveston, Tex., for treatment by Dr. Titus Harris, a noted psychiatrist. The senator said he did not expect any more statements would be issued until Sunday evening.

Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar became acting governor.

A five-day race to pass millions of dollars of appropriations will begin in the Legislature Sunday night.

The final day bills can be received by the governor is Thursday. By law, money bills must be on the governor's desk five days before the Legislature ends on June 9.

The largest money bill in the session — the 476 million dollar general appropriations bill — comes up for Senate floor action Sunday night.

Action in the House slowed considerably after the representatives did a giant-sized job of pushing out the paper load toward the Senate.

The Senate Finance Committee has been doing the bulk of the detail work on bills from the House.

Sen. B. B. Rayburn of Bogalusa, administration whip in the Senate, indicated he will ask the rules be waived and the big spending bill be put ahead for special consideration.

Among other bills ready for Senate floor action are Long's move to set back two weeks the Dec. 5 Democratic primary, with other adjustments, and the governor's bill to further control the small loan business.

The total of all appropriations outside the administration's spending bill has been estimated at 140 million.

The main issue to be settled will be in the education phases of the general fund and the other bills

The administration and education forces remained at odds over teacher pay — the administration attempting to hold the teachers pay increase to 75 per cent of the 1956 pay scale and the educators sticking to the 100 per cent gained in the House.

The governor threatened to veto the teacher pay funds after education forces amended his spending bill to provide the full scale.

There always is the possibility of a compromise, but the teacher forces have not indicated any move in that direction.

A separtae 21 million dollar measure that the House passed and sent to the Senate covers full implementation of the teacher pay raise. It calls for $21,464,205. And would be something to fall back on if the Senate trims out full implementation from the general appropriations bill.

Fifteen bills have gained final passage in the fiscal session. One, the governor's first administration bill, directs the register of the state land office to fix minimum prices on property sold by the state after it is obtained in court action.

The governor signed one bill into law. It was a $654,540 appropriation to defray cost of the 30-day fiscal session.

Eye Chance Of Labor Bill Into Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both Democratic and Republican members of the House Labor Committee expressed optimism Saturday about getting labor-Management legislation to the House floor.

Chairman Graham Barden (D-NC) said he is going to do everything he can to bring a bill to the floor as soon as practicable.

Two subcommittees, meeting in joint sessions, have been holding hearings for about three months.

Indications are that the public sessions will close in a week or 10 days. Then the subcommittees can draft recommendations for the full 30-member committee, which in turn must decide what it will recommend to the House.

Nobody is predicting what the House will do.

Rep. Roy W. Wier (D-Minn), a subcommittee member, said in an interview he is sure the committee can offer the House "a bill that will be quite reasonable in dealing with the guilty and still protect the operations and local autonomy of international and local unions."

Another subcommittee Democrat Rep. Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey, said he is reasonably confident the committee will draft a bill "which both sides can live with."

"It definitely won't be punitive and I'm quite sure it won't be innocuous, either," Thompson said.

Two Republican subcommittee members said they also want to get a bill out of the committee to the House floor.

Rep. William H. Ayres (R-Ohio) said the House members should have an opportunity to express their views on labor legislation.

Ayres predicted the bill eventually will be written on the floor.

Rep. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) said he feels the more controversial aspects will have to be settled on the floor. He said it is inconceivable that the committee will not report a bill to the House.

Just because there are pressure groups opposing various provisions for various reasons is no reason for Congress to take no action, Griffin said.

Both union and management groups have objected to the Senate-passed measure, known as the Kennedy-Ervin bill.

OF INDONESIAN TRAIN

Hint Conductor May Have Caused 140-Death Wreck

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI)—A preliminary report Saturday said a train crewman and not sabotage may have been responsible for the worst railroad accident in the history of Indonesia.

At least 140 persons were killed and 125 seriously injured in the accident, which occurred early Thursday morning. An estimated 500 persons were aboard the Bandjar to Bandung express in western Java, and many of these were less seriously injured.

The preliminary report did not pinpoint exact responsibility, but said that the conductor may have been at fault for uncoupling the coaches.

Earlier, it was thought that rebel forces might have sabotaged the train.

The accident area is so remote that officials did not learn of it until hours later. It was almost 24 hours afterwards before any substantial outside help reached the scene.

The state railway director's office told United Press International in a telephone interview from Bandung that an investigating committee's report indicated the conductor was responsible for the wreck.

The report said the train was made up of a converted armored car on rails out in front with a military guard, an engine and four coaches—two of them wooden and two steel—and a caboose.

The engine stalled while trying to make a grade near Tjiawi, about 156 miles east of Jakarta and about 62 miles from Bandung.

The crew asked for an emergency engine from the nearest station to get the train over the hump. But, even with two engines pulling, they couldn't get the train started from a dead stop.

The report said the conductor, on his own initiative, then decided to break the train into two parts. He ordered the coaches uncoupled. When he did, they began rolling backwards down the grade. They picked up speed as they rolled and, about two miles back, hurtled off into a ravine at about 60 miles an hour.

Th wooden coaches were splintered and the steel coaches overturned, the report said.

It did not pinpoint responsibility for the accident, but said that if anybody was to blame it would be the conductor.

Rhymed Slang Vanishing Art With Cockneys

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

Sound crazy?

It's cockney rhyming slang, now a dying form of communication but once almost a bogus language among the cloth-capped inhabitants of London's East End.

In plain English the example above means:

"The old man (pot and pan) and his wife (struggle and strife) decided to go (scapa flow) for a walk (ball of chalk) with their kids (saucepan lids).

Most cockney rhyming slang was born in the riotous days of the music hall, invented by comedians and comic singers. Some of the expressions passed into general use among the lower classes of London — the street traders and those on the fringe of the underworld.

Technically, a cockney is a Londer born within the sound of the bells of Bow Church in the East End. But it has come to mean the biggest part of the population of east and parts of southeast London.

Rhyming slang provided the cockneys with a language all their own. To outwit eaves-droppers they often omitted the last part of a slang phrase, the part that rhymed and provided a clue to the real word. That made it double difficult for an outsider to understand.

For instance, what could you make of a man who said:

"I didn't have the bird to ball to the rub-a so I got on the dog and had a chew with him. I told him I had some tom and he asked if it was half. When I said it was he said he would send his currant round in the jam to have a butcher's."

If you heard that, you ought to be yelling for the cops. It goes like this in plain English:

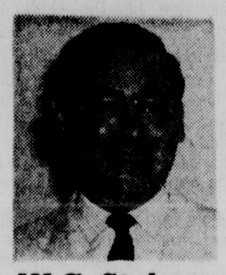

"I didn't have the time (bird lime) to walk (ball of chalk) to the pub (rub-a-dub) so I got on the 'phone (dog and bone) and had a chat (chew the fat) with him. I told him I had some jewellery (tom foolery) and he asked if it was pinched (half inched). When he said it was he said he would send his son (currant bun) round in the car (jam jar) to have a look (butcher's hook)."

Modern communication is killing rhyming slang. First radio and now television is spreading the Queen's English.

Rising standards of living also are helping to kill rhyming slang. The cockney's aren't so insular and no longer feel the great need for "a language of their own."

Nowadays, with speedy communications, all slang is short-lived. It becomes current overnight but within a few days it is swept away by a new phrase.

Graham Relates Views On Tour

EDITOR'S NOTE: Evangelist Billy Graham, completing an extended crusade in Australia, sums up his impressions of that country and its people in this dispatch written for United Press International.

By BILLY GRAHAM
Written for UPI

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — I have just spent four months in Australia. During this time I have learned a great deal about this land "Down Under."

There is an exhilaration, a happiness, and cordiality and a hospitality here that is beyond anything in my experience thus far.

The average Australian appears to have little respect of wealth and little envy of riches. There is more contentment here than in any country I have been to thus far. The average Australian is skeptical, even cynical about some things, and is not easily impressed. He has few inhibitions but a wonderful sense of humor. He is friendly, generous, hospitable, tolerant and is rarely sentimental except over children.

I doubt if there is a country in the world more friendly to the United States than Australia. Almost everything American is sought after and liked. Americans are greeted with open arms everywhere. Australians are criticized for their drinking, gambling, "white Australian policy," and allowing a well-organized Communist Party to thrive. While there is a great deal of drinking, yet I have seen practically no drunkenness, and am convinced that the Communists have very little hold on the majority of the people and that Australia is irrevocably tied to the west.

RESPONSE STUNS CLERGY

During the past three months I have preached to over two million people and seen more than 125,000 respond to the invitation to receive Christ as Lord and Savior. This has surprised me and stunned the clergy. There is a spiritual hunger and interest here that few of the clergy suspected. Before coming we had been told that the press, radio and television would not be friendly. The press, radio and television have given us the most generous and sympathetic coverage we have ever had anywhere in the world. The entire country has been touched.

The Right Rev. R. C. Kerle, bishop of Sydney, told me, "this is the biggest thing that has happened to our churches in the history of the nation." In checking some of the attendances in his diocese he found that since the crusade began many of the congregations had doubled and trebled in attendance.

St. Stephens Presbyterian Church, which is the largest in the country, counted 600 people who had requested spiritual help as a result of the crusade; and the minister said, "the amazingthing about it is that 80 per cent of them are new people to us."

BIBLE SALES ROCKET

There is a boom in Bible sales. Canon Arrowsmith of the Bible Society said that in a single evening his Bible store had sold more than $2,000 worth of Bibles and Testaments.

The Sydney Daily Mirror had a story on the social impact of the crusade on Sydney. It said, "the crusade has cut crime in parts of Sydney by an estimated 50 per cent." It went on to give a number of case histories of criminals giving themselves up to the authorities, gunmen handing over revolvers, and burglars surrendering their kits of tools.

For the first time in my ministry I believe a spiritual impact of major proportions has been made. For the first time we have been able to reach an entire nation.

Australia had never had a national spiritual awakening in its history, such as America and Britain have had. There were many factors that contributed to all of this. We had the greatest unity among the churches here of any place we have ever been. Sixty per cent of the church people of Australia are Anglican. We have had almost full participation of the Anglicans in Melbourne and Sydney. Sydney is one of the largest Anglican dioceses in the world and almost every church participated. All three bishops were in the services night after night.

ON HIGHWAYS

New Tester May Help Cut Deaths

By BOB POWELL

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — What would you do if your right front tire blew out while you were driving at 60 miles an hour?

How would you react if a child darted in front of your car on a busy downtown street?

There are no set rules for driver reactions but there may be patterns of human behavior which figure in that instance when you could save a life — maybe your own.

Engineers at Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory Inc. don't profess to have the answers but they think they have a device that could play an important role in lessening the number of highway deaths.

The dynamics division at CAL recently completed a feasibility study for such a device which they say would investigate scientifically the factors that effect the driver in traffic situations.

Comprised of four basic parts — a mock - up, driving simulator, visual display system and physical environment phase — the device could be useful in gathering data for future highway construction, automobile design and legislation aimed at reducing highway slaughter.

As far as CAL is concerned the device can be constructed to good use. That's the affirmative report made to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Estimated total cost of construction: Nearly four million dollars.

The CAL plan calls for an automobile to be placed within a half hemisphere. The walls of the hemisphere would serve as screens for highway scenes which would be piped in through a closed - circuit television network.

To make the driver more at home — or on the road — the simulator would provide bumps and other highway shocks to the chassis of the car. Engine noises, controlled by the acceleration pressure, would add to the sensation of zipping along the highway.

Engineers liken the simulator to an airplane mock - up which is used in training military and commercial airline pilots.

However, the device would be more useful in the study of driver reaction than the pursuit of driver training. One designer in the dynamics division of the laboratory summed it up this way:

"Accident reduction is our immediate goal . . . the first consideration to be studied is the behavior of the driver in accident situations."

Baker Becomes Matador, But Not For Dough

By CHESTER SELTZER
United Press International

JUAREZ, Mexico (UPI)—Santiago Conde, a bullfighting baker, gets thunderous applause from cheering sections made up of his bakery customers every time he steps into a Juarez bullring.

But Santiago, a barrel-chested man who is five feet, five inches tall and weighs 200 pounds, said he is never sure whether his customers cheer him for his art with the cape and the sword or with the mixing bowl.

Santiago, 50, operates the "Wheat Stalk" bakery in the Arroyo Colorado neighborhood. He fights bull as "El Panadero (The Baker)."

He was a success as a baker long before he killed his first bull last May. While still in his 20's, he gained regional renown for turning out pastries called "volcanoes" in his bakery.

"But nobody applauds a baker," Santiago said, "so when members of the Juan Saldana bull fight club were looking for someone to fight two bulls at a benefit festival last summer, I volunvolunteered."

Santiago borrowed a cape, muleta and sword and went down to the Juarez stockyards to train against fierce and fast-charging calves.

His family and friends, fearing he would be killed, tried to dissuade him.

"They told me 'not even drunkards eat fire'," Santiago said. But he refused to back down.

"I knew all the bullfighting passes by heart because I hadn't missed a fight since my boyhood," he said. "When I was a boy, I was like many other Mexican youths who dream of becoming great matadors but people told me bullfighters need genius and figure and since I had neither, I gave up my ambitions."

Business stopped in the Arroyo Colorado that Sunday last May when he had his first fight. The "Golden Curl Barber Shop," usually open on Sundays, closed for the day.

So did the "Good Tortilla Shop" the "Cataracts of Niagara Grocery" and the "Hospital for Aged Sombreros."

Residents of the populous Arroyo Colorado, Santago's friends and customers, thronged into Albert Balderas bullring to form "porras," or cheering sections for him.

Santiago said they all hoped for the best but expected the worst. They got a little of both.

Fighting before 5,000 spectators, Santiago used all the passes he had learned in more than 35 years of watching bullfights.

He crowned his performance with a sword thrust that sent a 400 - pound bull named "Butterfly" toppling into the sand with his hoofs in the air. This is a finish, the critics says, that marks a classic kill.

But the second bull, a beast named "Fou Cornfields," caught Santiago and gored him, but not badly. Over-all, his performance was judged so good that he was awarded the ears and tails of both bulls.

Santiago said he conquers his nerves before fighting not by drinking tequila, pulque or sotol as some matadors do, but by listening to the songs of the Tierra Vlanca colony in Durango where he was born.

"When I hear the brave songs of Durango, I feel ready to go out and fight the fiercest bulls in all Mexico," he said.

Everything's Kosher

NEW YORK (UPI) —Alexander the Great, a 700-pound circus lion, had a king-size stomachache recently, but everyghing's fine now that he's getting 40 pounds of kosher meat every day.

The beast, according to a "lion doctor," got the tummy-ache from eating frozen meat. Kosher meat, freshly - killed, is more like what he had been accustomed to in the jungle.

MANY SCHOLARSHIPS

Tech Students Get Financial Awards

RUSTON (Special)—Financial grants totalling $33,162.50, plus accompanying benefits, were made available to Louisiana Tech students or prospective Techsters during the school year now closing.

The awards, scholarships or fellowships, were provided by other educational institutions, industry, banks or foundations.

Philip Washington, Haynesville, was awarded a $450 cash scholarship, plus tuition, fees and books, by The California Co. He was selected for this award as the outstanding senior in petroleum engineering at Tech.

LARGEST

The largest aggregate amount is the $4,000 scholarship provided by the forestry division of the Continental Can Co. This scholarship has been presented to Kenneth Ray Johnson, Athens, who will enter Tech in September as a freshman in forestry.

Virginia Ann Crowley, Ruston, graduating senior in English and French, has just received the largest single grant available to a local student. She obtained a Fulbright scholarship for nine months of study at the University of Bordeaux in France.

A Tulane University scholarship of $2,650, payable over a three-year period, was awarded to Don Carroll of Oak Grove.

The Louisiana section of the American Chemical Society this year awarded a $1,700 scholarship to Carl Webb Townsend, New Orleans, a sophomore in engineering at the college here.

Two Tech students were granted Woodrow Wilson fellowships of $1,500, plus tuition and fees. They are Gordon Robertson, Pollock, who will do graduate work in history at the University of North Carolina, and Catherine Kendall, Clay, who plans to work on a master's degree in English at the University of Michigan.

FORESTRY

Yale University's School of Forestry awarded a $1,300 fellowship to Kenneth W. Rockett, Lillie, who will graduate from Tech June 1.

Robert G. Meece, Shreveport a graduating business student, has been given a $1,200 scholarship of the W. A. Paton Fund at the University of Michigan to pursue advanced courses in accounting.

Four graduating seniors in the department of botany and bacteriology have received grants. They are John E. Bergmann, Sedalia, Mo., a $2,500 scholarship at Iowa State College; Sam S. Thompson, Monroe, a $2,000 fellowship to Purdue University; H. Larry Stripling, Bullard, Tex., a $2,000 fellowship to Florida State University, and Jere M. McBride Jonesboro, and $1,800; fellowship to Louisiana State University.

Four chemical engineering students at Tech this year were given $250 scholarships each. The Columbian Carbon Co. of Monroe presented these awards to Kenneth G. English, Sterlington, and Jimmy E. McClary, Sarepta. Similar grants were given to Charles Ray Lott, Ruston and James E. Wyche III, Monroe, by the Universal Oil Products Co. of Des Plaines, Ill. Wyche also received a check for $100 from the Louisiana Engineering Society.

The First National Bank of Shreveport awarded scholarships of $100 each to Barney Hunter, Sibley, Perry Bramlett, Arcadia, and Luther Phelps, Logansport. This bank also renewed a 75th Anniversary Scholarship of $300 granted to Jeff Cole of Grand Cane.

The Magale Foundation, administered by the First National Bank of Shreveport, awarded $350 to Rudolph Francis, Shreveport, and $262.50 to William A. Kennedy, Bernice.

DOUBLE

Double honors have been received by Billy R. Blanchard, New Orleans, an electrical engineering senior. He has been awarded a master's fellowship by the Hughes Aircraft Co. of Culver City, Calif., and a $1,000 Convair Fort Worth Fellowship Award.

Jewell Toney, Ruston, an electrical engineering senior, also received the Hughes master's grant. Blanchard plans to attend California Tech and Toney will enroll at the University of Southern California.

Donald D. Butler, West Monroe, a forestry student, is the recipient of the Kellogg-Crandall scholarship of $50 for this semester and $100 for the next school year.

Kappa Sigma, national social fraternity, has presented scholarships to two Tech members of that organization. Kay Larry Fletcher, Lecompte, received $100 and Harry Grady McMath, Strong, Ark., was awarded $500.

LSU Spring Graduation Honors 939

BATON ROUGE (AP) — President Troy H. Middleton told 939 Louisiana State University graduates Saturday "Either we will educate more people, and we will educate them better, or we will not survive."

Degrees were awarded at LSU's spring commencement.

"The American idea of taking every child where we find him and teaching him as much as he can grasp is fundamentally sound," Middleton said. "What I am suggesting is that we do it—not just talk about it.

"And if we don't start now, we may not get a second opportunity. Through our own negligence, we have found ourselves in a struggle for survival. Our education system has become an instrument of national defense, and our mission is a grim one."

He urged new graduates to take an interest in education in their communities.

He also suggested that every teacher should have well balanced undergraduate training which includes, in addition to professional education, "the liberating studies and specialization in depth."

Vicksburg Car Crash Is Fatal

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A Mississippian was killed Saturday when he lost control of his car, went through a guard rail and turned over, the state patrol reported.

The driver was identified as William K. Purks Jr., 22, of Baum St., Vicksburg, Miss.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Boom Forces Spurred Economy To New Highs

NEW YORK (AP)—Boom forces spurred the economy to new highs this week.

No matter how you looked at it, you couldn't escape the conclusion that May would go down in the books as the biggest business month on record.

Consumer appetite for cars, clothes, food, houses and corporate stocks showed no sign of letting up. Construction activity scored bigger than seasonal gains; business failures touched a new 1959 low; industrial production continued its headlong race to beat a June 30 steel strike deadline.

Machine tool orders racked up a massive increase over the recession lows of last year—a sign that heavy industry has decided it's time to start spending again.

With business booming all around, the Federal Reserve Board made a new move to tighten the screws on credit. The board flashed an okay to five of the nation's twelve Federal Reserve banks to lift their discount rates—the interest they charge on loans to commercial banks.

Commercial banks had been borrowing at 3 per cent, and loaning the money out to their customers at interest scaled upward from 4½ per cent—the minimum or "prime" rate charged the biggest borrowers with the best credit ratings. Now they'll have to pay the reserve banks 3½ per cent—the same as in late 1957 before the recession took over.

One effect of the higher discount rate will be to curb the fast growth of the nation's money supply, already swollen by rising demand for consumer and mortgage credit.

Its avowed purpose is to check the creeping rise in prices and costs that even in these prosperous times has strained family budgets.

Stock sales totaled 14,872,535 shares compared with 15,969,910 the preceeding week. The volume was the smallest since the week ended Feb. 14 when 14,792,690 shares were traded. Bond sales in the latest week had a par value of $26,373,100 against $26,099,000 the previous week and $20.771,500 for the corresponding 1958 week.

Costs—particularly wage costs—were uppermost in the minds of steel industry leaders gathered here for the 67th convention of the American Iron & Steel Institute this week. Consensus of steel's big men: The industry must form a united front against the wage increases sought by David J. McDonald's United Steelworkers Union.

As steel wage negotiations recessed until after Memorial Day, both sides seemed farther apart than ever. The union stuck to its contention that high profits should enable the steel companies to raise wages without hiking prices. Management continued to insist that a wage boost now would be inflationary.

Steel's biggest customer, the auto industry, throttled down its production this week after turning out 1959 models at a rate that promised to put an inventory of one million new cars in dealers' hands by June.

The construction industry made news this week, and just about all of it was good. F. W. Dodge Corp. reported that contracts awarded last month for future construction soared to more than 3¾ billion dollars—highest for any April and up 31 per cent from a year ago.

Residential contracts were up 48 per cent. Significantly, contracts awarded for new schools and new factories moved ahead, apparently ending a slump. School construction hit the skids some months ago after homeowners rebelled against fast-climbing property taxes; factory construction has been in the doldrums for a year.

Briefly over the business scene: Annual stockholder meetings were on the optimistic side this week... President M. J. Rathbone told Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) stockholders that earnings for the first four months of 1959 were up 20 per cent from a year ago... Gen. Edmond Leavey, outgoing president of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., forecast record profits this year... A record attendance of 6,000 is expected when the fifth World Petroleum Congress opens at the New York Coliseum Monday... The stock market, as measured by the Associated Press 60-stock average, finished the week at a new high... Red ink department: the total debts of all people, businesses and government bodies in the United States climbed last year to a record high of 770 billion dollars... You'll pay two to four cents more for electric light bulbs this summer. Prices go up in July... To'edo & Fixture Co. has a new customer—Sheik Fahad Al Salim Al Sabath, ruler of oil-rich Kuwait on the Persian Gulf. The sheik has placed an order for 72 steel cabinets. He's having the palace kitchen modernized.

Lake To Stay Open In 'Bama After Violence

SELMA, Ala. (UPI)—The Conservation Department said Saturday it would not close a fishing lake near here because of recent reports of racial violence.

Three Negroes reported they were dragged from their cars and beaten near the lake by white men last Saturday, the day Bell disappeared.

Dr. C. J. Rheling, state toxicologist, said an autopsy showed Bell died of a heart attack.

JONESVILLE — A contract for widening and resurfacing of Gilbert - Sicily Island highway, Star Route 15, has been awarded by the Louisiana Department of Highways it was announced yesterday by State Representative W. S. Peck Jr.

Plans calls for grading, drainage structures, widening existing 18-foot concrete pavement to 24 feet and bituminous hot-mix surfacing. Work is already in progress and will require 14 months for completion of the 11.9 miles project.

ENTERPRISE — Officers elected for the 1959-60 term of the Enterprise FFA chapter are president, Charlie Cassels; first vice-president, Wayne Haygood; second vice - president, Frank Sheppard; third vice - president; Laverne Prudhomme; secretary, Luther Holloway; treasurer, Darryl McGuffee; reporter, Carl Boothe, and sentinel, Dale Boothe.

JONESVILLE — Dr. J. A. Coleman, director of the Catahoula Parish Health Unit, urges parents to see that all school children go to their local health unit immediately after school is out to begin immunizations and receive booster shots.

Children need to begin immunizations at the age of one to two months. They should not wait until school age, he said.

A full time immunization program cannot be carried on through the schools. Please call at your local unit at these given hours, he urged.

Jonesville — Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

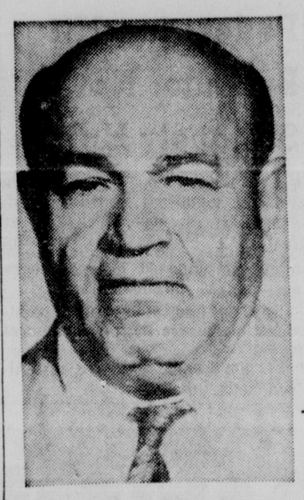

Sicily Island — Friday — 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Harrisonburg — Friday — 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.

COLUMBIA — The Clarks Chapter of the Royal Arch Masons will be host for the 6th District Chapter today at 2 p.m. at the Lions Club Arena north of Columbia.

The open air occasion will feature the conferring of Royal Arch degrees on 15 candidates by a degree team composed of members from throughout the state.

Grand High Priest Charley Burgess will be present at the meeting and entertainment for the ladies will be provided at the Caldwell Community Center.

IN NATIONAL CAPITAL

Beatnik, Art Lively Issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beatnik and art are the lively issues in your national capital this merry spring.

For Washingtonians, the troubles of poet William A. Walker and art lover Morris Engle are causing more of a storm than budget battles and-or summit sessions.

Both Walker and Engle have tangled with the law as passed by the United States Congress for the vote less District of Columbia. Well, perhaps not the law, but with regulations issued thereunder by the district government.

Twenty-four years old, married, a student of George Washington University, author of an unpublished collection of poems entitled "Aw Hell," Walker specializes in talk and coffee—a combination least likely to lead to trouble with the police.

NO HEED

The national capital paid no heed to Walker, his talk, or his beard, until he founded, in Washington's Foggy Bottom section, "The Coffee and Confusion Club." He sold the former; furnished the latter free.

Now foggy bottom, where the State Department is located, is old if it's nothing else. To many it is much too sedate. There were some who feared more confusion than in Foggy Bottom with Walker's beatnik club.

Be that as it may—motives aside—Walker was hauled to court to answer charges that (1) he had no coffee selling permit; (2) the area had zoning limitations on public coffee places if not public confusion; (3) the building was not approved for public gathering

"Like they said," explained Walker, "I had to have a statement from a structural engineer that the floor could support 70 pounds per square foot."

Foggy Bottom was rid of the coffee and confusion club. But not Washington. Walker rented a "K" Street store in an area perhaps as old as Foggy Bottom but certainly for less sedate.

But "beatniks unwanted" became a rally cry along K. Street. Fifty-one anti-beatniks filed formal complaints. A K-street fortune teller took some shots at Walker and put a bullet through the coffee and confusion club's front window.

ALLIES

However, Walker was not without allies, Washingtonians, who have no vote to call their officials to account, started calling them names in letters to the editor.

David Battaglia wrote that the "urge to own a business" might be just the thing for beatniks. "Who knows," he said, "he might even take a course in restaurant management, shave off his beard and join the Washington board of trade."

A formal hearing was held. And it seems now as though Walker will get a license for his club of coffee and confusion.

Art lover Engle's troubles with Washington law were less involved. Engle is the owner of Harrigan's bar on Ninth Street, certainly not the swankiest section of the national capital. The bar was preparing for its annual spring display of the works of local painters who couldn't afford gallery exhibition when word came from the alcohol beverage control board: take those paintings down.

Board Chairman Frank weakly explained: Restaurant - liquor licenses allow activities limited to the serving of food and drink and those incidental thereto. Art displays didn't qualify.

Bohemia beat bureaucracy again. The ABC board backed down, changed its ruling so that the paintings could be displayed but not sold.

Nourishment for the artists' soul but he'll still have to seek elsewhere than Harrigan's bar to earn his bread.

Rites For Four Who Drowned Set In Alabama

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (UPI)— Funeral services for four members of one family who drowned in a Winter Haven, Fla., boating accident Tuesday were held near here Saturday at Union Grove.

The victims were Raymond Miller, 33, and three of his six children; Lee Troy, 8, Shirley Jo, 7, and Andy Wallace, 4.

After their boat overturned, Mrs. Miller was able to reach shore with the other three children. The accident occured in a lake near Winter Haven.

The family had gone to Florida to visit Miller where he had been working recently.

The plumcot fruit was produced by Luther Burbank by crossing a plum and apricot.

NORTH AND SOUTH

To Refight Battle At Manassas, Va.

By SAM FOGG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The North and South have agreed to refight the first battle of Bull Run near the little town or Manassas, Va.

Plans for the re-enactment of the opening conflict of the Civil War were announced Saturday by the Civil War Centennial Commission.

The re - staging of Bull Run, which saw Union troops routed and Washington imperilled, will be the first important ceremony marking the centennial observance of the War Between the States. It will be held on July 20 and 21, 1961.

Twenty-three states have been asked to participate, 12 in the North; 11 in the South. Sixteen states have already declared their readiness to participate.

Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana advised the commission: "We certainly do want to cooperate and participate in this very important event."

Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania wrote that he has asked his adjutant general to make plans for his state to be represented.

Officials of the commission, the Defense and interior departments, the Virginia Civil War Commission the Prince William County Chamber Commerce and the town of Manassas met Saturday to initiate plans for the staged event.

Authenticity will be the keynote. Units wearing replicas of uniforms of the time, including brightly colored Zouave costumes, will be on hand. Troop movements during the two days will follow exactly the pattern that took place 100 years ago.

Francis F. Wilshin, superintendent of the Manassas Battlefield Park, explained: "It is our desire for eyewitnesses to get the feel of the battle as their grandfathers fought it, to take in the kaleidoscopic panorama of uniform against the green of the rolling hills, to go away with a clear understanding of how the battle waged back and forth before it finally ended in a victory for the South."

Bull Run was where a Southern general named Jackson won the nickname "Stonewall." It was also the battle where congressmen from Washington drove forth in carriages with picnic lunches to watch the fun. They skedaddled all the way home.

A crowd of 100,000 is expected to attend the re-enactment. A similar affair in the 1930's drew 30,000.

In addition to the battle itself, there will be a grand review, dances and other social activities. Loudspeakers will be set up to describe the action as it takes place on the battlefield.

Right Cross For Nation Is Important

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Developing a good right to the jaw is more important to the nation than concentrating on blocking a smash to the solar plexus, Sen. Stuart Symington said in effect Saturday.

"I believe the greatest defense in the world today is a good offense," Symington said in a news conference prior to a "major speech" before San Diego County Democrats.

The tall, Missouri Democrat was sharply critical of what he called a "lack of leadership" by the Eisenhower administration both in the missile program and in foreign affairs.

Symington said the United States' ICBM is the weapon the Russians fear most. Yet, he said, the secretary of defense recently said the U. S. has allowed the Russians to take a 3 to 1 lead.

"It's so fantastic it attacks your credibility. It just doesn't make sense," the senator said.

The former Air Force Secretary said the nation should do three things:

Develop the ability to wage limited war successfully.

Symington said the nation has the ability to retaliate today but he didn't know about tomorrow.

The senator said he favored production of more offensive weapons. He thought it could be done without costing the taxpayer much more—if any—money by re-examining the nation's defense program.

Symington said the Republican administration was trying to balance the budget by cutting on missile expenditures and justifying it by claiming that newer missiles were just around the corner.

But, he said, it was farther around that corner than most people realized.

Turning to politics, Symington said he felt the Democrats would win a "tremendous victory" in 1960.

2 Are Killed In Early Ala. Holiday Count

United Press International

Alabama could count at least two victims of Memorial Day weekend accidents late Saturday as the 54-hour holiday got off on a wet, rainy start that kept many motorists off the roads.

The two victims, both south Alabamians, were killed in a two-car head-on collision on a rain-slickened highway in Clark County. In addition, a Tuscaloosa woman was killed in an auto mishap in Villa Rica, Ga.

John B. Du Bose, 59, of Monroeville, and Negro Ensyn Packer, 33, of Lower Peach Tree, was killed early Saturday when their cars smashed head-on on U. S. 84 in Clark County 1.3 miles west of Gosport.

Packer's wife was critically injured while Du Bose's daughter suffered a broken leg. The Highway Patrol said Du Bose's auto was on the wrong side of the highway.

Mrs. George B. Brentley, 53, of Tuscaloosa was killed Saturday when the car in which she was riding was struck by another car at Villa Rica, Ga. Police said Mrs. Brentley's car pulled into a line of traffic from a side street.

Next to Vatican City, Monaco is the world's smallest state, only about 370 acres in area.

SOME DOUBT YET

Monks' Trip Hints Pilot Space Hops

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists voiced optimism Saturday that the successful missile flight of monkeys Able and Baker shows that human beings, too, can safely venture into space.

One warned, however, that "it is dangerous to extrapolate from monkeys to men." By that he meant that what might be easy for a monkey might be harder on a man.

But Able and Baker have established that small monkeys, at least, can withstand fantastically abrupt changes — including multiplication of their weight 38 times — with no yet discernable ill effects.

"One can reasonably hope," said Col. Robert Holmes of the Army Research and Development Command, "that the same thing will apply to humans. We can be optimistic. We have to be cautious."

Holmes and 20 other officials and scientists of the Army, Navy, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration shared the klieg lights at a news conference in which Able and Baker were the top attractions.

For the monkeys, nearly 100 reporters and photographers were told, the news conference ordeal was considerably worse than the 15-minute ride they took early Thursday aboard the nose cone of a Jupiter intermediate range ballistic missile fired from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

For one thing, they were alone to all intents and purposes during their 300-mile-high, 1,700 - mile-long flight. Although side by side, they were housed in different capsules and neither knew of the other's nearness.

For another, they made their 10,000 - mile - an - hour trip in a comfortable temperature of only 84 degrees fahrenheit. On the platform at the NASA conference room Saturday, with the lights beating down, the temperature was above 100 degrees.

Still, neither voiced any objections during the 16 minutes of frenzied picture taking with photographers barking orders. Neither then, nor during their brief introduction to reporters, did either monkey say a word — unless you count the occasional chirping "peep, peep" emitted by tiny Baker.

Able is a sad - eyed, seven-pound rhesus monkey who was born in the Independence, Kan., zoo something under a year and a half ago. Baker is a one-pound, vivacious squirrel monkey, born "somewhere in the Americas" about 3 ½ years ago. Both are girls.

On Thursday they became the world's first ballistic missile astronauts. Not even the Russians claim to have fired animals on a space flight that subjected them to the perils of re-entry into the atmosphere like those braved and survived by Able and Baker.

Today for the first time since they were fished out of the Atlantic north of Antigua Island before dawn on Thursday some of the facts about their reactions were disclosed.

These facts were reported by radio from surgically - planted electrodes which registered such things as heart beat and breathing.

Dr. Donald Stullken naval research physiologist who freed Able and Baker from their capsules, helmets, and electronic gear aboard the Navy salvage tug Kiowa, said "We thought they might be a little roughed up."

Little Mad

But they weren't. They "were just a little mad about the whole thing." Saturday's news conference, in fact "is the worst thing that has happened to them."

Capt. Ashton Graybiel of the Navy Aviation School of Medicine, Pensacola, Fla., reported what the radio waves said about the monkeys' physiological reactions on the way up, during the nine minutes of "zero gravity," or weightlessness, and the immensely greater ordeal of re-entry into the atmosphere and impact into the ocean.

"The physiological changes throughout the flight were extraordinarily small," he said.

For Able the seven - pound rhesus monkey, the heart rate is normally 130 to 180 beats per minute. On Thursday, during blastoff and burnout of the jupiter's rocket, when the force of gravity reached a peak of 15 times normal, Able's heart rate rose from 140 to 175 beats per minute. At the peak of the rocket's upward thrust, his apparent weight jumped from the normal seven pounds to 105.

Ringing Bells Is No Job For A Weakling

By GERALD MILLER

ALFRED, N. Y. (AP) — The bells have been ringing for Professor Ray Wingate for 22 years and, frankly, he wouldn't want it any other way.

At the age of 72 he still has the wrestler's satmina needed to clang out bell concerts from the carillon tower at Alfred University.

It takes a lot of brawn plus a gymnast's agility to reach and push down all the heavy oak levers and foot pedals that touch off a tower's bells.

"I love two pounds during a concert," says Wingate. "I turn up the heat to 85 degrees in the control room on winter days and strip to shorts and thick - soled shoes. I perspire a lot. Probably drink two quarts of water during the hour."

The exertion doesn't bother him though. His stocky build and muscular arms are both a partial result of his arduous art and evidence that he can take it.

He spurns the physical ease of modern electronic keyboards for aesthetic reasons. Keyboards may take the contortions out of carilloning, he explains, but they also rob the bells of poetic nuances.

"I can't vary my tones and get the expressive effect I like on an electronic instrument," he says.

Wingate's devotion to the carillon hasn't always been so keen. Until 1937 he taught singing at Alfred and his knowledge of musical bells was practically nil.

Then the university installed the carillon and Wingate was picked to play it.

Wingate says there are 108 carillons in the United States but many go unheard because there are only 38 carrilloneurs.

He has had offers of appointments elsewhere but he always refuses.

"I don't want to leave my Alfred bells," he says.

Pedestrian Hit By Auto; Not Seriously Hurt

An 18-year-old student from Monroe, identified as Hilda Bradberry, Rt. 4, was hit by a car yesterday as she was walking across Hudson Lane toward a parking lot behind Searstown.

She was rushed to St. Francis by a Hixson Brothers ambulance, where she was treated for minor bruises and burns, attendants said.

Driver of the automobile involved was identified by authorities as Mary M. Powell, 200 Isabelle, who said she did not have time to stop after seeing the pedestrian step into the street.

Miss Bradberry commented that she looked both ways but did not remember seeing any car approaching from either direction.

No charges were filed in the case.

On The Dot

MOSCOW (UPI) —An exact "clock" that is not expected to skip a second in hundreds of years has been developed at the USSR Academy of Sciences, according to the newspaper, "Izvestia."

The inventors, Drs. N. G. Basov and A. M. Prokhorov, have been nominated for a Lenin prize. Their "clock" actually is a "molecular generator," a device in which ammonia molecules emit radio wavse. As molecules never wear out, Izvestia noted, their "waves" are always accurate.

POLICE BLOTTER

ARRESTED

A 20-year old housewife, Mrs. James Standifield, 2900 South Grand, was arrested yesterday by Monroe police on a peace warrant. Her bond was originally set at $500 but she was released on recognizance because she had infant children at home unattended.

Lonnie L. Pumphrey, 18, Monroe, was released on $500 bond after being charged with disturbing the peace.

Doris Landrys, 25, 502 North 8th St., and Namette J. Ackerman, 26, 813 "K" St., were arrested on charges of drunkenness and disturbing the peace. They both posted $80 bonds and were released.

In jail last night on a vagrancy charge was Bertie Wade, 39, 202 6th St. Her bond was set at $350.

Deaf Mute Is Top Designer For Seaway

By GERALD MILLER

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) —Jonn J. Nash has never heard the sound of a rushing river or the horn of a ship and doctors say he never will.

But, despite the fact that he has been a deaf mute for nearly all of his 42 years, he has played an important role in the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway and the government has cited him for his work.

Nash is a top draftsman for the United States Corps of Engineers, the agency that built the U. S. sections of the seaway.

Besides drawing plans he makes most of the large art maps and illustrations sent to Congress from the Engineers' Buffalo district office.

"He can do anything anyone else can do except hear and talk," says Armin Wittkowsky, supervisor of the district's general drafting section.

Wittkowsky calls Nash his most able draftsman.

"He does the kind of drawings we show to congressional committees when we need appropriations for a project," Wittkowsky says.

"If you can show them a clear picture of what you want to do, chances are you'll get the appropriation. John's drawings have gotten us a lot of appropriations."

Nash has been with the Corps of Engineers for 20 years and represents something of a family tradition in the organization. His father was chief civilian engineer here for 22 years until his death in 1941.

Loss of speech and hearing struck Nash in his infancy as a result of scarlet fever. He attended a school for the deaf, went on to a technical high school and also studied drawing.

He is married and has two daughters.

Nash talks to his colleagues by writing on slips of paper. He reads lips well enough to understand the technical directions involved in his job.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

BIG 8, LEGION START

The Big Eight Baseball League, Louisiana's oldest amateur circuit, rolls up the curtain on another season Tuesday as the diamond sport in this section gets into high gear for the summer. The new La-Ark Amateur League has been in action for a week, and the American Legion Juniors of the Fifth District of Louisiana will get busy this week.

Larry Fox, president of the Big Eight which has Tuesday openers at Bernice and Homer, extends best wishes to the La-Ark, headed by Ed Head of Bastrop.

"I sincerely hope that the new La-Ark League is a success as we need to revive amateur baseball here in north Louisiana to absorb the youngsters coming up from the kid leagues," says Fox.

Ruston plays at Bernice Tuesday night in a league opener that brings together clubs that have been members of the league since it was organized in 1946. Minden goes to Homer for the other Tuesday opener in this four-club circuit. Second openers Thursday send Homer to Ruston and Bernice to Minden.

Billy Henderson again will manage the Ruston club. Johnny Emmons runs the Bernice team, Al Bullouch is the Homer manager, and Wayne Thrash, onetime LSU athlete, makes his managerial debut at Minden.

"The Big Eight will be much faster this year, and the more compact circuit will save on travel expenses and develop keener rivalry," predicts Fox.

Umpiring Tuesday's openers will be two oldtimers in the Big Eight, Frank Futch of Spearsville and Johnny Metro of El Dorado. Metro is also an ex-Cotton States League ump. Sid Yawn of Ruston, former professional player and umpire, is on the staff of Big Eight umps.

American Legion Junior baseball, with the longest unbroken active history of baseball in northeast Louisiana outside the high school level, launches a Fifth District schedule for eight clubs this week.

R. D. Farr Jr., district chairman, has Ruston, Columbia, Bastrop, Rayville, Monroe, Oak Grove, Farmerville, and West Monroe ready for a round robin schedule that will offer three playing dates each week through July 10. Only this week's games fail to follow the regular pattern as games are slated on four days—Monroe at Oak Grove, and Farmerville at Rayville, Monday; West Monroe at Bastrop, Tuesday; Oak Grove at West Monroe; Rayville at Ruston, and Bastrop at Columbia, Wednesday; Columbia at Oak Grove, Ruston at Farmerville, and Bastrop at Monroe, Friday. The Bastrop-Monroe date may be changed to Saturday to avoid conflicting with a La-Ark League game already scheduled for West Monroe and Monroe here that day.

BENDEL MEMORIAL

Bendel Memorial Stadium, the kids' baseball park built with funds raised by friends of the late Dr. William L. Bendel Sr., benefactor of area athletes for nearly 30 years untill his death, February 10, 1958, will be dedicated in ceremonies on the Little League baseball program at the stadium's Forsythe Park location Tuesday evening.

Little League and Monroe Recreation department officials are planning the dedication program that will include the unveiling of a memorial plaque honoring Dr. Bendel, an organizer and first Little League president here.

The Rev. Dennis Curren, former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher who is assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, will give the dedication prayer. Little League, recreation department and city officials also will participate on the program.

WHERE ARE THEY?

Wayne Causey, Art "Little Red" Swanson, Dickie Crowe, Fred Frickie, and Billy Hardy came up in Monroe high school and American Legion Junior baseball about the same time for the best crop of professional baseball talent Monroe has even turned out in such a cluster.

We get lots of requests about where they are or how they're doing.

Causey, property of the Baltimore Orioles, is with Vancouver in the Pacific Coast League where he opened the season as a shortstop and is now playing third base. Paul Richards, skipper of the Orioles, wants him to work both those infield positions, plus duty as second base. If he gets back to the Orioles he'll be ready for multiple duty. Wayne writes home that he is "hitting some good balls but somebody seems to be always there to catch them."

Swanson, chattel of the Pittsburgh Pirates, is at Columbus, O., of the International League, working as a relief pitcher. The Pirates have one of the finest "short" reliefers in the business in Elroy Face. They want to develop a "long" reliefer, one capable of going into a game around the third inning and staying to the finish. Swanson is being groomed toward this goal.

Dickie Crowe and Billy Hardy are playing in the same circuit, the Midwest League, but they didn't know it until one night last week when Waterloo, Ia., the club for which Hardy plays, met Crowe's Kokomo, Ind., team. Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Crowe, Dickie's parents here, had made the trip for the two-game series and were as pleasantly surprised as Dickie to see Billy. Mrs. Crowe brings back this dope: Dickie is batting .362, leading his team in base hits, and had four home runs to his credit a week ago.

Frickie, a graduate of the University of Alabama, is playing in the outfield for the Mobile Bears of the Southern Association. He's doing pretty good with a first division club and gets nearer home than that of our other pro players when the Bears are playing at Shreveport.

Little Boys

Four pitchers combined to hurl a no-hitter as Ouachita National Bank plastered Farmer-Heard, 15-5, last night. T. Laws and Williams was the winning battery, while May was tagged with the loss. Preddy was his battery mate.

T. Laws and P. Laws collected two hits in three trips for the winners.

McLemore went 3-3 and Compton slammed a home run as Louisiana Power and Light beat Pulp and Paper Union, 4-2, in a seven-inning affair. McLemore and Nelson worked for the winners and Bell and Pennington formed the losing battery.

Land Falls To Richardson In Tulsa Tennis

TULSA Okla. (AP) — The two top-seeded players in Tulsa Tennis Club's Invitational Tournament came through with victories in semifinal rounds Saturday.

Ham Richardson, former Davis Cup player from Washington, D.C. scored a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Gene Land of Oklahoma City, unseeded player who pulled a major upset Friday when he beat third-ranked Earl Buchholz of St. Louis.

Barnard (Tut) Bartzen, second-seeded player from Dallas, squeezed out a 7-5, 11-9 victory over Chuck McKinley of St. Louis in the other semifinal match.

Rodger Ward Speeds To Record-Breaking Win At Indianapolis

Only 16 Of Original 33 Finish Race

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Rodger Ward, 38, the beau brummel of auto racing, gunned his Leader Card Special to a record-breaking triumph in the 43rd 500-mile Speedway race Saturday.

Ward's first Speedway victory in nine starts came with a masterful display of consistent driving by the Los Angeles veteran, who controlled the race from the 82nd lap of the 200-lap grind.

In beating out runner-up Jim Rathmann of Miami by 23 seconds, Ward tromped the throttle of his sleek white racer at a 135.857 mile - per - hour average. This broke the 1957 record of 135.601 by Sam Hanis of Pacific Palisades, Calif.

The pole car driver, Johnny Thomson of Boyertown, Pa., was third in a race that had five accidents with two serious injuries, but no deaths.

Tony Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., was fourth and Paul Goldsmith, St. Clair Shores, Mich., fifth.

The victory unofficially is worth $100,000 to Ward's car. The driver normally gets 40 per cent. A total melon of about $300,000 will be sliced at Sunday night's victory dinner. The official final standings will be announced Sunday morning.

Only 16 of the starting 33 cars were still running at the finish of the race, held in warm, humid weather which threatened rain at the start, but wound up with the sun shining as the checkered flag flashed on Ward.

Sixth was Johnny Boyd, Fresno, Calif.; seventh was Duane Carter, Indianapolis; eighth, A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex.; ninth, Bob Veith, Oakland, Calif., and tenth, Al Herman, Allentown, Pa.

Ward required only three pit stops — of 23, 24 and 26 seconds—as he moved ahead of Rathmann in their battle for the national championship point lead. They had been tied with 320 points each. Ward collected 1,000 points by winning the 500.

Bryan, whose Belond Special had won two previous 500s and set the old mark of 135.601 miles per hour, couldn't get his car started when the pace car lined up the 11 rows of racers and sent them through the parade lap.

Finally, Bryan's car got going, but after circling the two and one-half mile track twice, began smoking badly from an oil leak and had to be withdrawn from the race.

The other former champion, Pat Flaherty of Chicago, who won in 1956, was forced out of the race after hitting the outside wall on the brick main stretch and careening across to the head of the pit area. Flaherty, who was nearly killed in a Springfield, Ill., crash soon after his 1956 victory, hopped out of his car after running in strong contention for 167 laps.

The most serious mishap was a four-car accident in which Chuck Weyant's machine spun, was hit by Mike Magill, and two others driven by Jud Larson and Red Amick, had to plow into the infield. All four cars were knocked out of the race.

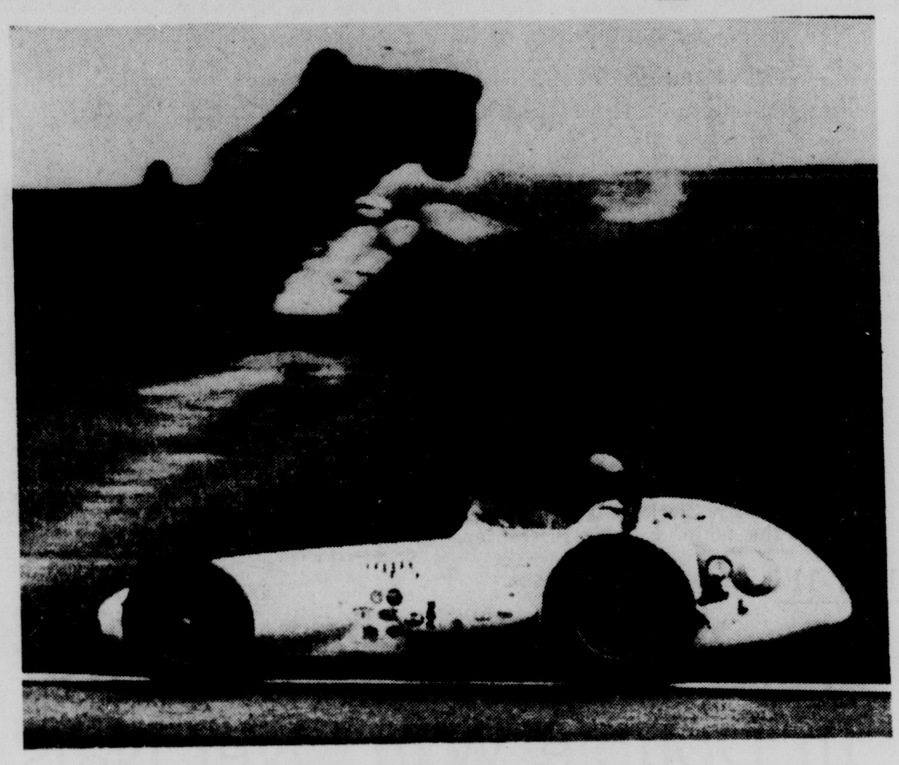

At the start, Jim Rathmann, Ward, Thomson and Flaherty took turns charging into the lead.

While most drivers are near exhaustion after the Indianapolis 500 Ward was bubbling over and even hopped in the pace car with Sam Hanks and toured the track to the cheers of the immense crowd jammed all around the course. Ward's wife, Jo, and their little terrier were in the car.

Most serious casualty was Ray Crawford of Pasadena, Calif., who suffered four broken ribs and a possible ruptured spleen when his car hit the northeast wall on the 134th lap.

Dick Rathmann, brother of Jim, had his car catch fire during a pit stop. He leaped out of his car with the back of his uniform steaming. The fire was put out quickly, but one of Dick's mechanics, Joe Alexander of Northville, Ill., suffered first and second degree burns on his hands and arms.

ROBERTS, PHILLEY CLASH

Phils Engage In Clubhouse Scrap

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Word leaked out Saturday that some of the Philadelphia Phillies — feeling the strain of their losses on the playing field, perhaps — have been scrapping among themselves.

As the reports have it, just before the team left the clubhouse in Cincinnati Thursday night to take on the Redlegs again, Dave Philley and trainer Frank (DOC) Wiechec threw some punches. At least Philley did.

The outburst came about this way:

Wiechec spied a ball in Philley's locker. He latched onto it. Philley objected and clipped DOC on the cheek. It's a bit hazy whether DOC, after recovering, reached for a haymaker, or whether things happened so fast nobody really kept up with developments.

Roberts chimed in with the reproach: "That's a real 'bush.'"

To which Philley snapped: "if you want some of me, come and get it."

Gene Freese, third baseman who was starred as a pinchhitter this season, tried to restrain Roberts. He needed help from three others.

Big Robbie treated the whole business in light vein. Before going on the field for Saturday's game with the Braves—which the Phils lost 4-2—Robbie said:

"I blew my cork. But I'm lucky nothing happened because I couldn't fight my way out of a paper bag. Make that a wet paper bag. I'd be a lot better off if I could get some favorable publicity on my pitching."

Wiechec refused to talk about the incident.

"A personal thing," he said, with a handwave of dismissal.

Not a peep came from Philley, who plays both outfield and infield and has been a pinch hitting mainstay of the club.

Manager Eddie Sawyer, not letting on whether he had known about it all along or the news only Saturday, commented with a dash of bitters in his tone: "Maybe a real fist fight would do this club some good."

Dodgers Nip Cards, 7-6, In Ninth Inning

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ninth inning home runs by Ron Fairly and Gil Hodges brought the Los Angeles Dodgers from behind for a 7-6 victory over St. Louis Saturday night before 28,994 fans.

Fairly opened the ninth with his third homer of the season, a 390-foot blast over the right field barrier. Hodges belted a drive of equal range into the left center field seats to break up the game after one was out. Hodges scored his 1,000th National League run when he trotted across with the winning run.

Ken Boyer had pushed the Cards ahead 6-5 in the top of the ninth with a two-run inside-the-park homer, as Duke Snider failed to make a shoestring catch. It was Boyer's 10th homer.

Reliever Clem Labine, tagged for the two St. Louis runs in the ninth, got the victory, his second against five losses. Lindy McDaniel, who relieved Howard Nunn after Fairly's home run, was the loser. He now is 3-7.

Snider slammed his fifth homer of the season for the Dodgers with the bases empty in the seventh inning.

Sports Drop Ruston, 2-0, In Exhibition

Ruston, La. (Special) —Carroll George gave up only two hits as the Monroe ports downed the Ruston Ramblers, 2-0, in an exhibition contest here last night.

George, a righthander, turned in the third consecutive stellar pitching performance for Bob Carter's Monroe entry in the La-Ark League. Jay Gross and Jerry Rouse hurled shutouts in previous games for the Sports.

Gross had been nominated to open for the Sports when they invade Oak Grove this afternoon at 2:30 for a league battle.

The Sports were able to gather only four hits off the combined efforts of three pitchers for the Ramblers, an entry in the Big Eight circuit.

The Sports jumped ahead in the fifth inning, scoring a run on four walks. In the four walks. In the sixth, first baseman George Bryan doubled, stole third and romped home on Larry Reeves' base hit.

Butch Mixon, J. W. Mercer and Sonny Parker worked on the hill for Ruston. Parker, a southpaw, was charged with the loss.

Mickey Yerger and James Mock got the other Monroe hits.

Gonzales Wins

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP)—Pancho Gonzales clinched his fifth consecutive world pro tennis title Saturday by whipping Mal Anderson 6-2, 6-0 while his arch rival, Lew Hoad, downed Ashley Cooper, 6-4, 7-5.

The championship is determined by money won. Gonzales so far has earned $28,550 on this year's tour, Hoad $27,950.

McCLURE TOP COACH

Trio Unanimous On All-TC Team

Neville outfielders Ronnie McNabb and Dooley Haddad and Ouachita shortstop James Cromwell were unanimous choices heading the 1959 All-Twin Cities baseball team in a poll sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Dan McClure, West Monroe mentor, was named "Coach of the Year."

Selecting this year's dream team were coaches from local high schools — Charlie Brown of Neville, J. E. "Pat" Patterson of Ouachita and McClure. Jim Mahoney of St. Matthew's did not submit a ballot.

West Monroe's Rebel nine, which gained the state AAA semifinals, landed four players on the squad, followed by Neville with three and Ouachita with two.

Cromwell, a sure -fingered, pint-sized shortfielder, provided the Lions with a fine leadoff man and a holler - guy in the infield. Possessing a strong throwing arm and sharp eye at the plate, Cromwell was charged with only two errors all season long.

McNabb and Haddad, a couple of fleet outfielders from last season's state AA championship team, steadied the outer gardens for this year's Tiger edition which lost to Minden in the semifinals.

Included in the infield with Cromwell are Charlie Dykes, West Monroe first baseman. Jerry Stovall, West Monroe second baseman, and Ronnie Sims, Neville third baseman.

A classy mittman around the first base bag, Dykes batted in the third slot for the Rebs and posted a .256 average. Stovall, a senior, was shifted to the leadoff position midway in the season and was adept at getting on base. Included in his .261 batting record were two home runs.

Sims was considered one of the better glove men at the hot corner, and in addition to being a perky hitter, occasionally worked on the mound in relief.

Roscoe Holcomb of West Monroe nailed down the third position to round out the outfield. One of the steadiest performers for the Rebels, he batted .333 and slammed three homers.

West Monroe righthander Ronnie Haile and Ouachita's Tommy Crowe combined to form the all-star battery. Haile utilized a fine curve and a blazing fast ball to chalk up six wins against three defeats and a 2.01 earned run average. He was also a better -than-average swinger at the plate.

Crowe, one of a family of ball players, climaxed a three - sport career with the Lions with his all-star selections. A veteran footballer and basketballer, Crowe also turned in an able job behind the plate and was a fine handler of pitchers.

McClure earned the top catch rating after his Rebels got off to a slow start in district play and then staged a stretch drive to take top honors after a three-way deadwill be honored by a banquet at the Jaycees' regular meeting Monday at the Penn Hotel, George Luffey, Northeast baseball coach, will be the principal speaker.

West Monroe — Tommy Lolley, third base; Buck Fox, outfield; Roscoe Holcomb, outfield; Leon Miletello, shortstop; Roy Lee Scroggins, outfield, and Kelton Bacon, catcher.

St. Matthews— John Varino, first base; Ah Elias, shortstop, and Corrent, outfield.

MORGAN VICTIM

Wild Pitch, Balk Give Chisox Split

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Veteran righthander Tom Morgan wild-pitched one run across in the eighth inning and made a costly balk leading to the decisive run in the ninth as the Chicago White Sox took the nightcap o' a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers 4-3 Saturday. The Tigers won the opener 4-2.

Morgan replaced Jim Bunning in the eighth with the bases loaded, two out and the Tigers leading 3-1. He served a wild pitch to Billy Goodman and rookie Norm Cash charged home.

In the ninth, Sherm Lollar led off with a pinch double. Morgan got Luis Aparicio to ground out. Then Nellie Fox doubled to score Jim Rivera, running for Lollar, with the tying run.

With Fox on second and first base empty, Morgan had a lapse and threw to first base. Tossing to an unoccupied base is an automatic balk.

Fox advanced to third, then Johnny Romano singled off shortstop Coot Veal's glove and Fox raced home with the decisive run.

HENDRICKS POSTS WIN

Vols Tag Dubach With 4-0 Defeat

Wayne Hendrix scattered six hits as he blanked the Dubach Hornets, 4-0, here Saturday afternoon and gave the West Monroe Vols their second straight victory in the La-Ark League.

The Vols take the field again this afternoon at 2:30 for a scrap with the Bastrop Larks at Legion Stadium. Coach Dave McKenzie has named either George Fruge or Jackie Norman to open on the mound for the locals.

Hendricks, a strong righthander, kept the Dubach batters in check for six innings until the invaders loaded the sacks in the final frame. He then breezed a called third strike past Jim Ferguson—his 12th strikeout victim—to preserve the shutout.

The Vols wrapped up the game in the first inning, pushing over three runs on only one base hit. Shelby Aulds opened with a base on balls and John Freeman, attempting to sacrifice, beat out a bunt.

Jim Penton, the losing hurler, threw wild on the close play at first and Aulds sprinted to third. First baseman Kelton Bacon was issued a free pass and Tuffy Antley drilled a long fly to center scoring Aulds with the first marker. Freeman counted the second run a moment later on a passed ball and Bacon scored on an error.

West Monroe capped the scoring with a single tally in the fifth inning. Hendricks stroked a single to center to start things for the Vols. Aulds and Freeman went down on strikes and Bacon came through with his second extra-base hit of the game—a long triple down the right field line to score Hendricks with the fourth run.

Penton settled down for Dubach after the wild first inning and didn't walk a man after the three costly passes in the initial frame. He struck out four batters, including three in the fifth.

Mixing a sneaky fast ball with a fine curve, Hendricks struck out the side three times in registering 12 strikeouts. He walked three and hit one batter.

Gil Colvin slapped a long three-base hit in the first inning but Bob Colvin and Grady Bagwell fanned to leave him stranded.

Again in the second, Dubach threatened with two out but shoddy baserunning halted the rally. Following a single by Tom Colvin and a walk to John Bridges, Penton belted a short single to center. Colvin rounded third and held up, but Bridges, running from first, steamed into third base also and was tagged out in the rundown.

Hendricks got Fuller and Bagwell on strikes three times each and Gil Colvin whiffed twice.

Bacon and Ralph McNabb had two hits each to pace the Vol attack while Penton led Dubach with a pair of singles.

Yanks Display Old Power In Double Win Over Nats

By WHITNEY SHOEMAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The New York Yankees played the vaguely familiar part of the world champions Saturday and swept a doubleheader from Washington. Don Larsen hurled a 11-0 four-hitter in the windup after Art Ditmar breezed to an 11-2 triumph.

These were the Yanks of old, crushing the opposition with power—four home runs in the opener—and superb pitching.

Still the Yankees couldn't escape the American League cellar. Boston won both its games with Baltimore and held into seventh place.

The double rout did sink Washington into fifth behind Kansas City, which divided two with Cleveland.

Larsen hurled a masterpiece before 26,046 holiday customers at Griffith Stadium, striking out nine and never letting a Senator get beyond second base. The shutout represented his fifth victory this year without a loss.

The Yanks pelted four Washington pitchers for 14 hits to make Larsen's job easy. Tony Kubek slammed four of them, along with a scoring squeeze bunt, while batting in five runs.

Ditmar was tagged for eight hits while pitching his first complete game in the opener but the big right-hander relaxed all the way. The Yankees blasted out Hal Griggs in the first inning on four hits and two walks before a man was retired.

Bill Skowron drove in three with a bases-loaded double and Elston Howard two with the first of a pair of homers. Howard's shot into the left field seats finished Griggs. Hal Woodeshick was banged for two runs and Dick Hyde for three before John Romonosky took over and allowed only two hits through the last five innings.

Mickey Mantle poked four of the Yanks' 12 hits, including his ninth home run. Hector Lopez also homered for the Yanks and Harmon Killebrew for Washington. It was No. 18 for Homerin' Harmon, who leads both leagues.

Mantle went 5-for-8 for the doubleheader, raising his average to .331—a climb of 68 points in the last 11 days. The Yanks' center fielder was on base seven consecutive times before Killebrew made a diving catch of his liner in the fourth inning of the second game.

Ditmar struck out six and had an 11-0 bulge before a walk to Faye Throneberry, Bob Allison's double and Killebrew's grounder produced a run against him in the fifth.

The homer was the only hit of the afternoon for Killebrew, who fanned twice in both games. The Senators could touch Larsen for only four singles in the finale.

11-2 OVER PHILS

Mathews, Aaron Pace Brave Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Home runs by Eddie Mathews and Henry Aaron and the steady nine-hit pitching of Bob Buhl carried the league-leading Milwaukee Braves to a 4-2 victory over the last place Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

Aaron's 14th homer broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning and pinned the defeat on Don Cardwell, who also allowed nine hits.

Buhl struck out six and walked two in balancing his record at 3-3. He had his most serious trouble with Wally Post, who had a double and two singles, and Carl Sawatski, a former teammate, who hit his third home run and a single.

Mathews' home run was his 16th. Aaron also had a single and raised his league-leading average four points to .436.

The Phillies scored a run in the first on a walk to Ed Bouchee and a double by Post. Two innings later, Bill Bruton singled and Mathews put the Braves added a insurance run in the eighth on Mathews' double and Joe Adcock's. single.

WILLIAMS STARS

Red Sox Sweep Pair From Birds

BOSTON (AP) — Ted Williams, master of baseball drama, celebrated his 20th anniversary in the game Saturday by hitting a decisive two-run homer in the nightcap as Boston swept a doubleheader from Baltimore.

The Red Sox took the nightcap 8-3 on the 40-year-old slugger's belt in the seventh inning after capturing the opener 5-4.

For Williams, there could not have been a more auspicious moment for his first home run of the season and 483rd of a colorful career.

Boston trailed 3-2 in the seventh with two out and Pete Runnels on second with a double. A loss would have dumped the Sox into the American League cellar, replacing New York in that spot.

When 20-year-old right-hand sensation Jerry Walker had a 2-2 count on him, Williams drilled his homer down the right field line into the stands and the 19,403 Fenway Park fans stood in roaring tribute.

Williams, who missed part of spring training and 25 games this year due to a neck and shoulder ailment, came within one of the coveted 2,500 hit mark with the blast.

Entering the doubleheader with an anemic .157 average, Williams raised his mark to .203 with a 4-for-8 performance. He also scored twice and drew a walk.

Williams' poke cost Walker his first major league setback. He had a 5-0 record, 4-0 this season.

The double loss weakened Baltimore's third-place position in the league.

The Sox won the opener, also in the seventh inning, when an error resulting from a traffic jam at first base, enabled Don Buddin to scamper home from second with the winning run.

INDIANS COP OPENER, 3-2

Coleman Pitches A's Past Cleveland In Nightcap, 3-1

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rip Coleman gave up only six hits in pitching the Kansas City Athletics to a 3-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the second game of a doubleheader Saturday. The Indians won the opener, 3-2.

Coleman, a 27-year-old lefthander, gave up four hits in the first four innings and then retired the next 12 men in order before the Indians got to him for two more hits in the ninth. The victory was his first of the season. He has lost three.

Cleveland broke on top in the nightcap with a run in the second inning on doubles by Ed Fitzgerald and Held.

The Athletics got their first two runs in the sixth on doubles by Dick Williams, Ray Boone and Lumpe. They added another in the seventh on a double by Bill Tuttle and a single by Williams.

Johnny Kucks, making his first appearance for the athletics since he was obtained from the New York Yankees this week, blanked the Indians for eight innings of the first game.

Jim Piersall led off the bottom of the ninth with a walk and Vic Power was safe when shortstop Joe DeMaestri fumbled his grounder. A double by Minnie Minoso scored one run and that was all for Kucks, who was replaced by Tom Sturdivant, also acquired in the Yankee deal this week. Rocky Colavito was purposely passed, filling the bases, and then Russ Nixon drove in the tying run with a single to left field. Held's game-winning single to right field followed.

The Athletics scored their runs off Herb Score, who limited them to five hits in the seven innings he pitched. They got one hit off Al Cicotte, the last of three Indian pitchers who was the winner. It was his first decision of the season. Kucks was the loser. It was his second defeat against no victories.

Dancer Cops Metropolitan Over Oldsters

NEW YORK (AP) — Sword Dancer, the classy 3-year-old who had been flirting with $100,000-plus purses all spring, finally grabbed a big one Saturday when he drew away with authority in the stretch and beat 10 older horses in the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

He is the first 3-year old to capture the rich mile since Greek Ship, also owned by the Brookmeade Stable, did it in 1950. With Willie Shoemaker in the saddle, Sword Dancer finished 3¼ lengths ahead of Myron N. Goodwin's Jimmer, surprise winner of the Carter Handicap May 20. Jimmer was 2¼ lengths ahead of Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Talent Show, who nosed out Edward Potter, Jr.'s Plion for third money. Plion, in turn, nosed out Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock for fourth.

Swosd Dancer, nipped by Tomy Lee in the Kentucky Derby and also second in both the Preakness and Florida Derby, stepped the mile in a scoring 1:35 1-5. Only two Mets have been run faster, botn in 1:35—Jack High in 1930 and Midafternoon in 1956.

The Claiborne Farm's Nadir, the 2-1 favorite with Ednie Arcaro up, was last all the way and pulled up lame. Arcaro immediately took off by helicopter with Nader's owner, A. B. Hancock, for Garden State Park, 110 miles away, to ride Dunce for the same stable in the $50,000 Jersey Stakes.

Ariarc got the 'copter ride but Shoemaker, who flew here from California during the night, made off with the money. It was his second straight Metropolitan, having won a year ago when Gallant Man defeated Bold Ruler and Arraro.

Sword Dancer, who ran with Oligarchy as an entry and carried 114 pounds, paid $7, $4.10 and $3.30 as the second choice of the crowd of 43,671—largest of the season in New York.

FIRST WITHOUT FOX

Big 8 Opens 14th Season Tuesday

RUSTON, La. (Special) —The Big Eight League starts its 14th baseball season Tuesday night, the first without Major Larry Fox at the helm.

President of the league since its formation in 1946, Fox will be out of the state most of the summer and Jack Madden of Ruston, former loop secretary, has been named president.

Minden will be at Homer and Ruston at Bernice in the opening games Tuesday night. Bernice will have a home-grown club with stars like Ben Carroll, Billy Till, Bill Carr, Northwestern's Billy Jack Booth, Bobby Elkins, Duck Farrar, Bubba Colvin, George Moore and Al Doggett. Larry Williams, who pitched Ole Miss to the Southeastern Conference championship, and A. L. Gatewood of Arkansas State will be Bernice's top out-of-state players.

Homer will have only five local players, Charlie Ruggs, Pat Foster, Larry Andrews, Ray Wilkins and Wright Clements. Gary Dempsey of Miss. State, Guy Parker a Richard Shelton of Ole Miss., Northwestern's Ralph Conrad, LSU's Frankie Naff, J. T. Rougeau of Louisiana College, Butch McCullum of Baylor and Allan Koch of Auburn will be Homer's top college players.

James Rhea Love and Don Stahl of Centenary, Bob Weaver, James McCabe, Clyde Thompson, Harry Smith and Charles Francis will be Minden's local players and Pat Centilli, Dick Dyer and Roy Eberlan of Sam Houston and Sammy Booras, Monty Montgomery, and Buck Fulco of Shreveport will be their top imports.

Star footballer Lance Alsworth of Brookhaven, Miss., and the University of Arkansas and Glenn Schuler of Louisiana Tech will be Ruston's only new players. Seven former or present Techmen, Dickie Hinton, Bill Bagwell, Sonny Parker, Wade Scott, Jackie Moreland, W. and J. W. Mercer will be back along with Butler Powell of Loyola, Butch Mixon of LSU, and Carl Trepagnier of SMU.

Richard Mitchell of Calhoun, formerly in the Yankee chain, will be back after an absence of four years.

Georgia Puts 4 Players On All-SEC Nine

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Six members of the Southeastern Conference have placed players on the 1959 all-SEC baseball team selected by the league's head coaches.

Four players are on the Georgia Tech team, which won the eastern division title and lost the championship to western division winner Mississippi. The latter placed three players on the team.

Florida and Kentucky placed two men each on the squad and Georgia and Alabama placed one each.

Perry McGriff, Florida, first base; Mike Thomas, Georgia Tech, second base; Dickie Parsons, Kentucky, shortstop; Jake Gibbs, Ole Miss, third base; Rog Kaiser, Georgia Tech, Bobby Grissinger, Florida and Tommy Lewis, Georgia, outfielders, George Inman, Georgia Tech, Bob Khayat, Ole Miss, catchers; Ray Blemker, Georgia Tech, Jerry Sharp, Kentucky, Larry Williams, Ole Miss, pitchers; and utility-man Ken Chapman of Alabama.

Named to the second team are: Gordon Moore, Alabama, first base; Andy Bourgeois, LSU, second base; Al Bullock, Miss. State, shortstop; Mickey Ellenburg, Florida, third base; Gerald George, Auburn, utility; Larry Gore, Miss. State, Alan Koch, Auburn, and Tommy Samuels, Vanderbilt, outfield; Gene Beard, Alabama and Paul Booher, Florida and Bob Linkner, Kentucky, catchers; Pete Reaves, Alabama, Lloyd Nix, Auburn and Butch Mixon, LSU, pitchers.

Ticket Sales Open Monday At University

BATON ROUGE, La., (Special) —Advance ticket sales for what promises to be the biggese season ticket demand in the history of football at Louisiana State University will open Monday, June 1 Athletic Director Jim Corbett has announced.

Business Manager Jack Gilmore said that reservations will be accepted by the LSU Athletic Business office from re-order season ticket holders, new season ticket applicants and individual game tickets, both home and away. Reorder cards will be mailed to reorder patrons June 1.

Gilmore also said that season tickets assigned on the East side will be moved to the end zone for the Tulane game because of contractual agreements with Tulane University. Tulane receives the entire East Stadium ticket allottment when the game is played in Baton Rouge, just as LSU receives the East side when the game is played in New Orleans.

No tickets will be delivered during the sale, but tickets ordered will be mailed out in late August.

Sideline and corner stadium season tickets are priced at $25.00 north end at $17.50 and South end at $16.50. A 25 cent handling charge is assessed each order.

Neves Seriously Injured In Spill At Inglewood

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Ralph Neves was dangerously injured in a spill during the third race at Hollywood Park Saturday and doctors planned immediate brain surgery.

A first examination revealed that Neves had suffered painful back injuries. Then, when the little jockey became drowsy, doctors gave him a more thorough examination and reported he had a basal skull fracture and a blood clot on the brain.

He was immediately readied for surgery at a hospital near the track.

Neves was knocked unconscious when his mount, Rhin, fell after running up on the heels of golden rage at the head of the stretch. Rhin got to his feet and ran off down the track.

Initial examination disclosed that the jockey had suffered a compression fracture of his seventh and eighth thoracic vertebrae.

Hanson Stays In Virginia Beach Lead

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—Beverly Hanson added an even par 69 to her opening-round 67 Saturday for a 36-hole total of 136 that kept her one stroke in front in the $6,000 Virginia Beach Women's Invitational Golf Tournament.

The Indio, Calif., professional's two-round score over the Cavalier course tied the Ladies' PGA record for 36 holes set by Jackie Pung in St. Petersburg, Fla., in 1957.

Going into Sunday's final 18 of the 54-hole tournament, Miss Hanson's closest pursuer is Mickey Wright of Bonita, Calif. Miss Wright, after a 70 Friday, carded a 2 - under-par 67 for 137. She toured the back nine in 2-under-par 32, a woman's record for the course.

Bonnie Randolp of Naples, Fla., dropped to third place with 140 when she carded a 72.

Miss Hanson had to rally to hold her lead after taking a double bogey six on No. 12, where she overshot the green. Brilliant chips shots brought her birdies on the 15th and 16th holes. On the 16th, she picked up the stroke that enabled her to stay in front of Miss Wright by holing out a chip shot from 25 feet off the green.

The leaders:

Service Tilts May Go To AF Academy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another step has been taken to provide home-and-home athletic games among the Air Forre, Army and Navy academies, Sen. Gordon Allot (R-Colo) said Satorday.

Army Academy officials announced last year West Pointers would not play at the mile-high Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., claiming the altitude would be bad for the Cadets.

Allott, a former National AAU track champion, criticized this as "fragile reticence" and demanded that Army and Navy teams be brought to Colorado Springs.

"The only arrangement which will be satisfactory," Allott said, "will be true home-and - home games."

Allott said he has been told that future scheduling would be arranged to "the satisfaction of all academies." He quoted from a letter from James G. Dunton, director of the eDfense Departments office of public services:

". . . Plans have been completed for the Air Force to play Army in New York in 1959 and Navy in Baltimore in 1960. These are considered home games for the Army and Navy. Home games for the Air Force, and other games after 1960, have not been scheduled.

". . . Although final decision as to scheduling of games will be left to the service academies, we believe schedules will be arranged to the satisfaction of all academies and in a manner that will be agreeable to members of Congress and other interested parties."

RUSTON DEFENDING CHAMP

American Legion Baseball Season Opens This Week

Eight northeast Louisiana American Legion posts will be sponsoring teams in the junior baseball program opening this week with Ruston as defending Fifth District champion. Monroe was runner-up for the district title last year after taking the state title in 1957.

Contenders this year are Ruston, Columbia, Bastrop, Rayville, Oak Grove, Farmerville, West Monroe, and Monroe. Delhi had planned to compete this year but later pulled out.

The season opens tomorrow with Monroe at Oak Grove and Farmerville at Rayville. A single game is scheduled Tuesday with West Monroe at Bastrop. Home openers for West Monroe, Ruston, and Columbia come Wednesday when Oak Grove is at West Monroe, Rayville at Ruston, and Bastrop at Columbia. Monroe and Farmerville wind up the "home opener" business Friday when Bastrop invades Monroe, and Ruston goes to Farmerville. Also on the week's wrap-up card Friday is Columbia at Oak Grove.

Ralph "Red" Sims, beginning his fifth year as coach of the Monroe team has only six players back from his district runner - up team of last summer, including three pitchers. Ten others are ready for Legion action for the first time.

Harry "Rabbit" Crowe, James Cromwell, and Bob Satterfield, all Ouachita High athletes, and L. M. Welch, Ronnie Sims, and Edddie Kincaid, a trio from Neville High, are the veterans back with Coach Sims.

New additions are Charles Biggas and Victor Zagone, products of St. Matthew's High; Carl Guinn, Johnny Roach, and Jim Vestal, from the Ouachita ranks: and Hershel Walker, Ralph Roberts, Joey McGinn, Neal Gunn, and Frank Keith, all Neville athletes.

Welch and Satterfield are pitching veterans of the club. Gunn, up from Teener League, is being counted on as a third starting chunker, while Coach Sims plans to use Guinn and son Ronnie in relief roles.

Dick Howard, beginning his second year at the helm of West Monroe, will also have only six boys back from last year's squad.

Ronnie Haile, ace of WMHS's mound staff along with Charley Dykes, Roy Lee Scroggins and Roscoe Holcomb, who also starred on the Rebels district championship team, and Jim Steele and Glen Dowdy.

New players include two starters off the high school team, Buck Fox and Leon Miletello, and Ricky Fields, Gary Fields, Butch McMillian, Charles Taylor, John Covington, Jimmy Vanzile, Nicky Rogers and Larry Danna.

The Schedule:

June 2-West Monroe at Bastrop.

Giants Turn Back Bruins By 5-2 Count

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants whipped Chicago 5-2 Saturday on the five-hit pitching of Mike McCormick.

The 20-year-old southpaw struck out 11 in winning his third game and drove in a tie-breaking run in the sixth with a sacrifice fly.

Fancy base running by Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda, who each got two hits, helped the Giants. In the eighth Willie stole second and went to third on Earl Averill's throwing error. He scored on Cepeda's single. Then Cepeda stole second and scored on Daryl Spencer's single.

The Giants picked up two runs in the second inning on Jim Davenport's single and doubles by Cepeda and Leon Wagner. The third run came in the sixth on a walk, single and McCormick's fly to right field.

The Cubs' two runs came in the fifth on singles by Bobby Thomson, losing pitcher Bob Anderson and Tony Taylor, a walk to Averill and Spencer's error.

A Memorial Day crowd of 21,890 saw Anderson touched for nine hits until he was relieved by John Buzhardt in the seventh. Elmer Singleton pitched the eighth.

Face's Relief Stint Saves 3-1 Buc Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Roy Face, Pittsburgh's relief pitching artist, came on in the eighth inning Saturday to save what had been a brilliant hurling job by Bennie Daniels and the Pirates edged the Cincinnati Reds 3-1.

With one run in, one man on and one out, Face stepped into the breach, got Johnny Temple on a foul and fanned Vada Pinson.

Until the eighth Daniels had allowed only three hits.

Jim O'Toole, Reds' rookie, was almost as good. He survived a shaky first inning in which he walked three and then throttled the Pirates with only one run until they nicked him for two more in the eighth, one a homer by Bob Skinner.

The Pirates' first run was a bit tainted. It came in the third when the Reds let Smoky Burgess' high fly get away for a double with two out. He then scored on a single by Dick Stuart.

O'Toole was in command then until the eighth when Skinner homered and doubles by Don Hoak and Bill Virdon produced two more runs.

Meanwhile, Daniels moved down the Reds after giving up two hits in the first inning. But he finally showed signs of weakening in the eighth.

With one out he walked Roy McMillan, uncorked a wild pitch and gave up a double to pinch hitter Johnny Powers that scored McMillan. That brought Face to the rescue.

Joe Christopher, rookie Pirate outfielder, suffered a deep cut on his left hand while diving for a liner in the second inning. He was taken to Christ Hospital and reports were there was no fracture as had been feared.

CRACKS PAR AGAIN

Goalby Takes Five-Stroke Margin In Kentucky Open

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Big Bob Goalby shattered par Saturday for the third straight round to open a five-stroke gap over the field in the Kentucky Derby Open Golf Tournament.

The Belleville, Ill., pro who registers out of Crystal River, Fla., shot a 2-under-par 69 by sinking an eagle 3 on the 18th green to give him a total of 201 going into the final round.

For three rounds, Goalby is 12 under par on the hilly, 6,452-yard Seneca Golf Club course and five strokes up on his nearest challenger, roommate Doug Ford. Par at Seneca is 35-36—71.

Ford, playing out of Paradise, Fla., turned in a 67 for a 206.

Goosie shot a 66, Whitt 73 and Ferree 69 in the third round.

Tom Nieporte of Bronxville, N.Y., had a 69, Don McMullin of Fair Oaks, Calif., 71 and Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., 72 to deadlock at 208.

Goalby saved his most spectacular shot for the last hole when he hit a brassie on to the green and sank a 15-foot putt for an eagle three. To that point he had played even par.

Ford, troubled by a bad putter the first two rounds, got on his game and was two under par for the day on both the front and back nines.

NO DISQUALIFICATION

Barney Puts Belt On Line Monday

Bill Barney again braves the assault of Firpo Zybysko at B&B Arena Monday night, confident that "with the support of the people, I'll be able to keep the belt."

Only man in the Twin Cities ever to hold the Louisiana heavyweight wrestling championship, Barney put down Zybysko's challenge last week when the New Yorker was disqualified for slapping referee Al Massey around. Monday there'll be no disqualification and no time limit.

Angered, Barney last week offered to meet Zybysko anywhere, anytime, saying "I don't like that guy's foul tactics. . .. anytime he starts that jazz around here I will personally wise him up."

Zybysko, on the other hand, is confident that with the new set up, no disqualification and no time limit, he's a cinch to beat Barney. Along with the avoiding of personal embarassment, Zybysko has another incentive to win—the winner will take all, the championship and the entire purse.

A newcomer who's said to be heading for a world title bout, Trach Phillips of Spokane, Wash., will make his local debut in the Monday night semi-final. 202-pounder, Phillips will meet Omar Khyam, a 208-pounder from Persia, over the 60-minute route with two falls to win.

Millie Stafford of Columbus Ohio, will meet China Mira of Cuba, making a repeat performance, in the night's first match, slated for one fall with no time limit.

Al Massey will again be the referee.

YOUNGEST AMERICAN

Beman Defeats Hyndman For British Amateur Title

SANDWICH, England (UPI) — Deane Beman, a 21-year-old junior at the University of Maryland, became the youngest American ever to win the British amateur golf championship Saturday when he defeated Bill Hyndman, 3 and 2, in the all-U.S. final.

Beman, shooting steady sub-par golf in the sweltering heat that seemed to bother his 43-year-old opponent, never trailed as he won one of the most coveted amtaeur titles in his first try. He was one under par, not counting the 17th hole, for the 34 holes it took him to turn back his Walker Cup teammate.

A brilliant two-under-par 33 on the first nine gave Beman a 2-up lead and he never was headed. The 43-year-old Hyndman, an insurance broker from Abington, Pa., made a run at Beman on the final nine of the afternoon 18 but ran out of gas after he had won the 31st and 32nd holes to cut his deficit to 2 up.

But then Beman's accurate approaching and putting came to his rescue and he closed out the match with a par on the short 34th hole after winning the 33rd.

"Well done, you deserved it," Hyndman shouted to the cool, nerveless Beman as he sank a two-foot putt on the 34th hole to match Hyndman's par and end the match—the fifth all-American final since World War II. Beman was the first American to win the title since Joe Conrad captured it in 1955.

"I almost hated to beat such a great guy," the happy Beman beamed as he accepted the trophy from Royal St. George's captain, Ron Chittenden. "I hope to come back to defend my championship."

Beman said he had no thought of turning pro because "this is a tough way to make a living." He plans to fly to Washington Sunday and will attempt to qualify there Monday for the U.S. Open. He said he had been under the impression that if he won here he would qualify automatically.

The happy Bethesda, Md., golfer, said he "never was sure I was going to win until the 34th hole when Bill missed that long putt."

Hyndman blamed his putting for his defeat.

Looking tired and drawn, with his wife Niain tears as she embraced him, Hyndman said, "I just couldn't get any long ones down."

"Beman ddin't hole many long ones either, but his approach game was much steadier and more accurate than mine and he certainly deserved to win."

Arcaro Loses Attempt For 2 Stakes Victories

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Arcaro's attempt to win two stake races at two tracks on the same day failed Saturday. He never came close.

His first ride was on Claiborne Farm's Nadir in the $115,900 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park. Nadir, the favorite, trailed all the way and pulled up lame.

The 43-year-old jockey then took off from the infield in an helicopter for Garden State Park, 110 miles away.

He arrived about on schedule and made a little better showing as Dunce, stablemate of Nadir and also the favorite, finished fifth in the $50,000-added Jersey Stakes.

Cook Equals Dash Mark In Cal Relays

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Oregon sophomore Roscoe Cook tied the world record of 9.3 seconds for the 100-yard dash in the California Relays Saturday night while a Texas quartet smashed the world mark in the 440 relay with a :39.6 clocking.

Cook, who "never dreamed of a 9.3," flashed ahead of a field that included three other runners who had matched the world mark—Texans Bobby Morrow and Bill Woodhouse and Ray Noton of San Jose State.

The Texas fousome of Wally Wilson, Eddie Southen, Holis Gainey and Ralph Alspahgh barely edged San Jose, anchored by Norton. Alspaugh held on for victory by less than a step. The former world record of :397. was set here last year by Abilene Christian.

In the 100, Norton finished second. A long stride behind was freshman Sidney Gorton of East Texas State, third. Bobby Boynton of San Jose was fourth and Morrow fifth.

Norton, Gorton and Poynton all were given the same 9.4 clocking.

Cook won both the PCC 100 and 220-yard dash championships but wasn't given much chance in this select field. He was off to a fast start and pulled away at the midway point.

Cook won his heat in 9.4. as had Norton, who had been a questionable entry because of a knee cramp suffered Thursday.

Presbyterian Group Okays Birth Control

By TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

Week in religion:

The three million-member United Prebyterian Church resolved that "the proper use of medically approved contraceptives may contribute to the spiritual, emotional and economic welfare of the family."

It was the first time in nearly 30 years that the United Presbyterians have taken notice of birth control. The last time, in 1930, the general assembly went on record against it.

In recent years more and more Protestant churches have found it necessary to make some sort of official statement on the subject, religiously one of the most controversial of the present day.

While the Presbyterians were preparing to discuss their resolution, the Rt. Rev. James A. Pike, Episcopal bishop of California, was urging repeal of state laws which interfere with planned parenthood.

He told the annual forum of the National Conference on Social Welfare in San Francisco that such laws are a violation of the constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion.

Bishop Pike was reaffirming the stand taken by his world wide Anglican Communion last year that contraception is not only permissible but recommended as a liberating force in the family.

The General Conference of the Methodist Church also has gone on record as believing that "planned parenthood, practiced in Christian conscience may fulfill rather than violate the will of God."

The most redoubtable opponent of artificial birth control among the churches is the Roman Catholic Church, which regards contraception as "a serious and unnatural sin . . . contrary to the law of nature."

Get Garage Ready Now For Summer

A home handyman in one or two weekends can transform a garage interior into a neat and functional area. Compact storage areas for gardening supplies and sporting equipment can be added at the same time to provide plenty of handy storage space during the outdoor living season.

The lower garage walls can be covered to a height of 4' quickly by nailing large panels of Masonite ¼" Tempered Presdwood over the existing studs. Extremely durable, the hardboard panels will not split, splinter or crack from hard wear or abrasion.

Upper walls can be "put to work" if they are covered with ¼" Peg-Board paneling, which is strong enough to support such heavy items as lawn mowers, wheelbarrows, large ladders and shelves for paint and auto supplies. Heavy duty fixtures are available with the perforated hardboard at lumber dealers.

Since the fixtures can be slipped in and out of the perforations easily, a garage storage pattern can be changed quickly without marring the paneling.

For a bright and cheery garage, prime and paint the panels.

A free plan showing how to "face-lift" a garage interior can be obtained by writing a postal to the Home Service Bureau, SUIT 2037, 111 W. Washington St., Chicago 2, Ill., requesting plan No. AF-326.

'Welcome Home' Church Of God Slates Revival

A one-week revival service at the Welcome Home Church of God, 131 Arant Road in West Monroe, will feature a young speaker and student at Northeast State College as evangelist.

The Rev. Paul Owens, pastor, announced the Rev. Baxter Brashier will serve as preacher for the occasion. Rev. Brashier, described as young and energetic speaker, is a student at Northeast.

Rev. Owens said the services will open at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow and continue throughout the week, closing with the Sunday evening worship period on June 7.

He invited the general public to attend any or all of the services.

Packers boast they use all of the pig but the squeal, but they aren't the only industry noted for complete utilization. Modern lumbermen can now claim that they use all of the log — including the bark. Bark from Douglas fir, grown in western Oregon, Washington and northern California, is processed into commercial products like natural vegetable wax and tannin.

More than 500,000 new housing units are required each year, says the West Coast Lumberman's Association, just to replace the units lost through urban renewal, expressway building and other federal and state governmental projects.

EDUCATORS DISAGREE

Is Summer School Vacation Correct?

Most of America's schools will soon shut down for a three-month summer vacation.

This custom dates back to the time when this was an agricultural country and children were needed on the farms in summer.

Does it make any sense today?

Some educators, and many taxpayers, are convinced it does not. Across the nation there is a growing demand for year-round use of the schools.

One plan which has recently won a lot of attention from governors, state legislatures and school boards is called the "four quarter system." Its primary purpose is to save money.

It calls for setting up an all-year school with a spring quarter, summer quarter, fall quarter and winter quarter. One fourth of the children would be on vacation each quarter while the other three fourths attended school.

Advocates contend this system would increase the capacity of existing school buildings by one-third, and therefore sharply reduce outlays for new classrooms. They say fewer teachers would be required, since only three-fourths of the students would be in school at any one time, and they could be paid higher salaries since they would be working year-round instead of nine months.

Most educators are strongly opposed to this idea. They point out that it is not new. More than a dozen U. S. communities have tried it at a various times since 1900. And every one of them abandoned the experiment.

Here are some objections to the four-quarter system, based on the experience of these communities:

1. The staggered vacation idea invariably runs into bitter opposition from three-fourths of the parents who are told that their children must go to school in the summer (when the family was planning a trip) but will be home in the winter, spring or fall (when there is nothing for them to do but get under mother's feet.)

2. Maintenance of school buildings and buses is more difficult when they are in year-round use. Often repairs must be done at night or over weekends, at overtime rates, thus wiping out some of the theoretical savings of all-year use.

3. With a different group of children starting their school year every three months, it is necessary to conduct four separate sections in each major subject in each grade. This is practical only in schools with very large enrollments—about 750 for elementary schools and 1,500 for high schools.

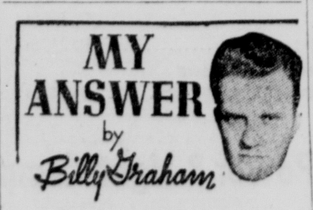

4. It is difficult to conduct classes in hot weather, especially in the South, without air conditioning classrooms, which runs up costs.

5. Many teachers, especially in elementary school, feel that they simply can't take year-round exposure to a classroom full of children.

There is another plan for all-year use of schools that many educators favor. It is aimed primarily at enriching the educational diet of American cnildren, and instead of cutting school costs, it would increase them by about 20 per cent.

This plan calls for hiring teachers on a 12-month basis, with appropriate increases in salary. The regular school term continues to be nine months long, but during the three summer months the school offers a broad program of studies on a voluntary-attendance basis. Children who are behind in their schoolwork can get remedial instruction and make-up courses. Able and ambitious students can take extra courses in science, foreign languages or a wide variety of electives, and perhaps accelerate their progress toward college by a year or so.

Advocates contend that this system does not work a hardship on any family, since participation in the summer program is voluntary, and with staggered course schedules can be arranged before or after a family trip.

QUESTION: Our fifteen-year old son has been at boarding school for the past two years. During that time his health wasn't so good. We decided to take him home, where he always wanted to stay and work on the farm. No matter how we try to persuade him to go back to school, he won't go. He says the only thing he wil ever be happy doing is working on the farm. Do you think we did wrong in taking him from school, or should we have made him stay on? E. W.

ANSWER: It is not unusual for a fifteen-year-old boy to want to get out of going to school. I imagine most of them, if given a choice, would rather stay around the house and escape the classroom and school responsibilities.

My oldest daughter is going to a Christian school away from home and last winter she put on a campaign to come home, but of course we did not yield to her pleas. Now she is happy and glad that we made her stay in school. Parents must think in terms of what is good for the child, not in terms of their desires. A child in its early teens simply does not have the intelligence and judgment to decide as they ought, and I personally believe that modern parents are too inclined to cater to their every whim.

I do not know about your son's capabilities, but even if he wants to be a farmer, a good agricultural education is practically a must these days. If your son is able, I would get him back in school. He has many years to farm, but these earlier years should be spent in preparing himself for his chosen vocation. I would also be sure about his spiritual life. Pray with him and for him.

Southeastern Protestants Set July Meet

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Leaders of Protestant church life in the southeastern United States will meet in July at Black Mountain, N. C., to discuss ways to strengthen understanding and to promote cooperation among the denominations.

The Fourth Ecumenical Institute starts July 19 under the sponsorship of the Southern Office in Atlanta, Ga., of the National Council of Churches. The institute will be interdenominational. It will bring together clergy and lay leaders engaged in church and council activities to consider ways in which churches and church people can work together more effectively and productively.

The Rev. John S. Chambers, executive secretary of the Kentucky Council of Churches is chairman of the planning committee. The Rev. J. Edward Lantz is executive director of the National Council's Southern Office.

Morning workshops will study such questions as the use and understanding of the Bible; Christian responsibility on a changing planet; public schools and religion; educational evangelism; and youth fellowship.

A Bible Hymn Festival will launch the institute on Sunday evening, July 19, with a massed choir recruited from churches in the Asheville area under the direction of Allan Guy of Montreat College. Mrs. Mary E. Aleshire of Black Mountain, N. C., is chairman of the Festival sponsoring committee.

Leaders of the institute include: The Rev. Arthur L. Gilmore, pastor, First Methodist Church, Cedartown, Ga.; the Rev. Edward A. Dricoll, executive secretary of the Georgia Council of Churches; Prof. J. Howard Rhys, University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn.; Mrs. Norwood Phelps, past president of United Church Women, Florida; and Mrs. John T. McColl, past president, United Church Women, Tennessee.

Other leaders are: A. E. Cox, director of rural developemnt, Memphis, Tenn.; the Rev. V. A. Edwards, director of leadership education, Tuskegee, Ala.; Bishop S. L. Greene, AME Church, Atlanta, Ga.; Bishop H. B. Shaw, AME Zion Church, Wilmington, N. C.; Bishop William R. Moody, Lexington, Ky.; and Prof. Carl J. Landes, Southern Union College, Wadley, Ala.

Revival Slated Next Week At Antioch Church

A revival has been scheduled at the Antioch Methodist Church on the Jonesboro Road in West Monroe throughout next week, according to Rev. Jimmy Pyle, pastor.

Services will commence at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow and continue through the evening service on Sunday, June 7.

The Rev. Jim Garrett of Chatham will serve as evangelist for the week-long revival. Rev. Pyle will lead the singing assisted by Mrs. Bernice Grant.

The pastor extended an invitation to persons in the area and the general public to attend the services.

Lake Providence Event Will Have Miss America

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special)—The reigning Miss America, Mary Ann Mobley of Brandon, Miss., will grace the 10th annual Miss Louisiana contest to be held here July 2-4.

Miss Mobley will make nightly appearances at the pageant and will preside over the crowning of the new Miss Louisiana when the state - wide contest reaches its climax sometime near midnight on July 4, Pearce Bailey, pageant chairman, announced.

Miss Shearon Regenold, 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Shearon, Regenold of Lake Providence, has been selected to serve as Miss Hospitality for the occasion.

Miss Regenold is a sophomore at Northeast Louisiana State College and an accounting major.

Lovely girls, representing every section of Louisiana, will participate in the contest. The winner will receive a $1,000 scholarship, generous wardrobe and, most important, represent Louisiana in the Miss America Pageant to be held in Atlantic City in September.

If you want something a little different for an accent wall, try paneling it with a prestige wood like vertical grain west coast hemlock. Instead of installing the panel boards vertically, the usual way, place them diagonally on the wall for a distinctively contemporary touch. Hemlock should be finished clear to capture its unusual champagne coloring.

Educational Worker Here Is Honored

An educational assistant at a Monroe Methodist Church has been awarded a scholarship for graduate study in the field of Christian education.

Jo Ann Richardson, educational assistant at St. Paul's Methodist Church, was among five in the nation receiving the John Q. Schisler Award for study toward the position of director of Christian education.

Miss Richardson has been at the local church in her present capacity for two years, having come here from Baton Rouge.

Funds for the awards are contributed by Methodist churches through the annual student day offerings. The scholarship is named in honor of Dr. John Q. Schisler, Nashville, Tenn., retired former executive secretary of the Methodist General Board of Education's Local Church Division.

Miss Richardson plans to enroll in the Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University, in September. She now holds a bachelor of arts degree from Centenary College, Shreveport, and she served for two years as worker at Centenary Methodist Community Center in Nashville.

Others receiving the scholarships were: Betty M. Bailey, Forsythe Ga.; Hazel P. Correll, Boston, Mass.; Kathryn Haynes, New Haven, Conn., and Hulda Ruth Whitely, High Point, N. C.

Hydrangeas Come To Life

By MILDRED SWIFT

We never cease to be amazed that a plant that can look so dead and woeful in the winter can produce such a dazzling mass of beauty in May. That's the hydrangea. Keep the dead blooms cut and that will probably be all the pruning the plant will need.

To keep the blooms fresh, take a pot of boiling water to the garden with you. As you cut a hydrangea bloom, plunge the stem in the hot water. Leave the blossoms there until the water cools. Blooms kept for eight days in an air conditioned building after they were treated in this manner.

BEARDED IRIS

Bearded iris need some bone meal at this time. If you can safely work this in the soil without injuring the rhizoines, fine. Otherwise, just put a generous sprinkling of this food over the ground. It's impossible for me to tell you the exact amount as I don't know how close you have planted the iris, the size plants, etc. I'd say about a handful around each bulb would be good.

Don't be afraid of bone meal. It won't burn. It's the food that makes bloom and that's what we want. Next spring we'll give the plants a feeding of complete fertiizer.

Many people like to mulch the bearded iris bed to keep the weeds and grass down. A heavy mulch holds dampness and causes rhizome rot. A light sprinkling of pine straw can be used and replaced as it decays. Mulch gives acid to the soil. Iris like a more alkaline home, but your bone meal should take care of this.

If you get busy, right now, you can divide these bearded iris if they need it. Spade the bed well, work in bone meal, set rhizomes high, where you can see the top of the bulbous root. Firm soil, water.

Very soon these iris will go into a dormant stage to set blooms for next spring. They should not be moved during this time. It's either now or in August.

GARDEN IRIS

No two plants give us more pleasure as cut flowers than cleome and purple sage. If you have extra plants, give them to a fellow gardener. Three or four plants will give you cut flowers for the home and for your church.

If you want a long blooming season for your daisies, keep the blossoms cut. They'll stand a sprinkling of fertilizer about now, too.

Climbing roses should have finished blooming about now, so prune. Cut out the oldest canes. Instead of pulling on this long cane to get it loose, take the shears and chop it in small pieces. They'll fall to the ground and there you are — all pruned, with none of the accompanying scratches.

Anytime anybody will give you a piece of coleus, just stick it in the ground. Keep it moist and it will root and grow and grow and give you lots of pleasure for color and for cutting.

For mildrew on any plants, use dusting sulphur, being sure the plant is dry before applying.

If you'll keep your annuals and perennials cut back, they'll not get so leggy and fall over in the beds. A little fertilizer sprinkled around these plants and soaked in will help to keep them blooming.

When you pinch back the poinsettias to take them "bunch," give the "pinchings" to a gardener. They root easily.

The red spider lilies should be ready to transplant very soon. Watch the foliage. When it dies, separate and replant. That is — if they need separating.

The rains have made the weeds grow in a hurry. While the soil is damp, that's a good time to get these weeds out, by the root. They'll use food the plants need and eventually take over an unmulched bed.

OLEANDERS

Aren't they beautiful? These oleanders belong to the acacia family. Had you noticed the oleander's foliage points upward? The accacia foliage points down.

Be free with cutting of your oleanders, taking nice long stems. This may be all the purning they'll need. However, as they cease blooming, you can do some heavy pruning, if this is not too late. As soon as you prune, new foliage will come out. This must have several months to harden before winter frosts, or you'll lose this new growth. I plan to do some heavy pruning about the second week in June.

Summer Color In Periwinkles

By AUDREY DAWSON

Periwinkle or vinca is one of the most satisfactory plants for color in the garden during the hot summer months to come. Few if any insects or disease attack periwinkle or vinca. I have used this plant for years and have never had any trouble with disease or insects. It is also quite resistant to heat and drought. In August, when everything needs so much water, the periwinkle seems to get greener and prettier without any moisture. Plant a few in beds, rows or window boxes — you may plant the seed or buy the plants from your nurserymen, and they are not a bit expensive. I think you will like them.

For some quick blooms from late planted flower seed, the following are good — zinnia, alyssum, marigold and poppy. Seed will usually come up in five to seven days and the plants grow quickly — they produce blooms in 30 to 40 days.

Remember that most flowers except bearded iris do better when mulched. Put on the mulch 2 to 3 inches thick. Mulch helps hold moisture and also discourages grass and weeds in your flower bed.

Watch for mildew on your crape myrtle — it is very damaging. Dust with sulpher to lessen the damage.

BUYING FURNITURE

If you are planning to buy a piece of furniture, here are a few suggestions I know will help you make the selection. You can't judge furniture from outside appearance alone. Look behind, inside and under each piece to see of what materials it is made and how well constructed. Be sure to read the label to find out what hidden materials, such as chair padding and mattress fillings are used. Plan ahead even though you buy only one piece at a time. Have complete masurements of floor and wall space so that the furniture will be a fit, not a misfit. Buy the "right" piece of furniture when you need it. Don't buy a piece just because it's a bargain.

COOLER HOUSES

If you are planning to build a home, I know you will be interested in research done by the Mississippi Experiment Station on choice of color and finish for exterior walls in keeping interior of house comfortably cool in the summer. The test showed that houses with outside surfaces painted dark colors were much hotter inside than those with similar surfaces painted white. Color was not the only answer to cooler interiors. The study showed that some building materials absorbed more radiant heat than others and thus, caused higher interior temperatures. The interior temperatures were lowest in houses having exteriors of white concrete block, white painted brick and white asphalt shingles. Test houses built for the study were identical except for the exterior covering material and color. All had hip roofs with attic vents, concrete slab floors, the same windows and floor space, east-west position and the same size and shape.

ABOUT THE STUDY

Because many southern families build wide roof overhangs up to 3 feet as a means of keeping the house cool, the station also studied this; but found that under most circumstances it had little effect on interior temperature. Although wide overhangs cool the walls somewhat by shading the outside, they did not affect interior temperatures enough to make a difference in comfort of the occupants of the room.

THOUGHT

Life is like a bank account — you get back only what you put in. Experience is the interest.

Exposure To Danger Not Sound Policy

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

How safe is your youngster in your home? Are you one of those parents who believes baby should be exposed to danger, that he will become rugged after those falls down stairs or that he will learn to toddle on a slippery floor if he takes a spill now and then?

This is unsound reasoning, and many a child has suffered permanent injury or fatal accident because Mom takes the attitude that coping with danger is part of baby's development.

Here are ways to child - proof your home, until your little one can take booby traps in stride. Older folk will thank you too for some consideration in that respect:

If floors are bare and slippery, an inexpensive burlap or felt may be put down in the room where baby toddles. It may be tacked at strategic spots and removed when company comes. Get a fabric that is wide enough to roll up and leave it on the tube so that you can just as easily roll it back up.

PREVENT FALLS

Keep baby away from stairs. A gate is a good idea at lower stairs to keep baby from climbing, but don't trust a gate upstairs. Many a mother has forgotten to lock an upstairs gate, and her young one has taken a bad fall.

The upper section of bookcases is a good place to keep matches, lighters and other breakable items such as ash trays. These may be brought out for the convenience of guests.

If there are 3 or 4-year-olds running about, don't trust to luck with the medicine chest. They'll find ways to reach and open it even if it is locked. Remove dangerous medicines and store them on the highest shelf in the kitchen. Ditto poisonous household cleaners, paint and spot removers normally kept under the kitchen sink. These are better off stored high up until the children are on their own.

Keep out of sight small objects that children might put in their mouth. Many small children have choked on little objects that parents do not consider dangerous, such as tiny balls, candy, small rattles, nuts, mints. Chicken bones fall into this category.

UNPLUG LAMPS

It's a good idea to keep floor lamp cords up out of the way and above the lampshade during the day. Also be sure that kitchen appliance cords do not dangle to attract tiny children who could pull them down, and that pot handles on the stove are not left sticking out for the same reason.

It's best to place barricades at tables to keep baby from crawling underneath as this is a likely spot for bad head bumps.

It may be a good investment to change the lock on the bathroom door to one of the new "child safety" type. These may be opened from the outside even if locked within. Some parents seal the windows so they open only from the top.

There should be no need to remind anyone that unused refrigerators should have the doors removed unless they are to be disposed of at once, but still every year a great many small children lock themselves within these abandoned refrigerators, causing deaths, due entirely to the carelessness of adults.

Conditioners For Soil Not Always Good

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeature Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y.— A few years ago the big excitement in garden circles was "soil conditioners." While the makers didn't exactly say so, the nation's gardeners began to get the idea that all soil needed the new conditioners—sandy soil, clay soil, even what they'd always thought was pretty good growing dirt.

The rage for soil conditioners passed, and now the packaged products are mostly used to break up and lighten close-packed heavy clay soils. We've gond through phases where we concentrated on feeding the soil; then came the great gardening war against crab grass which has emerged from all the publicity as the greatest scourge of the lawn. And, of course, there has been all the attention given to the new chemical insecticides and herbicides.

Meanwhile, back on the home lot, the week-end gardener has been interested — and amused sometimes— but has probably bought more garden supplies and equipment as a consequence than he ever thought he would. However, on almost any good Saturday morning during the late spring, one can still find a lot of gardeners working over the dandelions and other garden weeds with an old-fashioned hand-tool: digging them out.

Chemical gardening may be a breeze but there is a lot of personal satisfaction in chopping out a big dandelion with an asparagus knife—even when you know there's a root left from which it will come back. And I defy anyone to find a substitute for the virtuous feeling one gets on an August day after an hour hand-pulling crabgrass at the expense of manicure and in defiance of all the chemical crab grass banishers.

Most garden work, in truth, does become a bit burdensome by the time the mid-summer months come, when the sun is hot and the ground has baked hard. It is a good idea to take advantage of the cooler weather now to accomplish as many of the heavy chores as can be done; get the weeds under control so that keeping them down is merely a maintenance job; spend extra time getting the lawn in shape; clean up the areas around the shrubs.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

French Host Flower Show

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The French and the English have done it again! In the last days of April and the first of May, a combintion of English and French horticultural talents produced in Paris the most remarkable flower show that has been staged in modern times. It was held under the triangular roof of the new Palais de la Defense, a building ideal in its light and its airiness for a flower show. In this beautiful structure, it was not difficult for the lighting experts to produce what seemed like outdoor conditions.

ENGLISH

The English went to great expense in their exhibitions of the typical woodlawn garden of azaleas and other woods lovers from all over the world. They had a very outstanding exhibit, also, of orchids, and took home the top honors in both of these fields.

Chief feature of the show was a pool with a design of colored pebbles in the bottom. This was in a large garden designed for the Paris nursery of Vilmorin-Andrieux by Mr. Russell Page. Since all the groundfloor exhibits could be viewed from above in this huge building, the visitors could enjoy all the gardens and the whole show over and over again as they walked around. No flower show in modern times has had such an airiness and feeling of spaciousness, for the Palais de la Defense has 120,000 square feet! So the modern architecture of today has come into its own for flower shows.

The visitors seemed to enjoy to the fullest the presence of the Queen Mother from England. Of course, all the dignitaries like Mr. David Bowes-Lyon (brother of the Queen Mother), President of the Royal Horticulture Society and M. Andre de Vilmorin, senior vice-president of the National Horticultural Society of France were there. The English were assisted with the greatest possible cooperation in the tremendous effort they made to go all out for this show by the French and have expressed their eternal gratitude for this courtesy. A stupendous amount of work is necessary to take whole gardens from one country to another and arrive with them alive and fresh! Most of the plants must have been seasick after crossing the Channel.

Readers of the column who are going to England this summer should be sure to visit Kew Gardens at the end of the subway line in London and Wisley Gardens (Take Green Line bus from London) where the RHS tests plants and runs a school. Either garden is worth a whole day. In Paris, visit Bagatelle, the rose test garden and surrounding gardens in the large parc called the Bois-de-Boulogne.

TO HONOR WAR DEAD

More Americans Visit Cemetery

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — The nation's tenderness for its nearly half a million dead in the last three wars is surging anew with the passing years.

On the green-clad hills of Arlington National Cemetery, more and more Americans are pausing to pay homage to those who gave their lives in two world wars and the Korean conflict.

Daily, as on this Memorial Day weekend, the scene is re-enacted. The silent, slow-moving throngs, the uniformed sentry pacing back and forth, the sound of muffled weeping and the melody of birds singing about the quiet hilltop plaza.

Near the sentry stands a blue and gold sign: "This shrine is sacred to the people of the United States."

Officials say the scene has been more frequent since last Memorial Day when the nation put the latest two Unknowns to rest beside their World War I comrade.

"The shrine now concerns more people and there is a general renewed interest in coming here," says William E. Daniel, who has been sergeant of the guard, Tomb of the Unknowns, for more than two years.

The shrine, lying across the Potomac from the nation's capital, represents the estimated 479,202 military dead of the last three wars.

Many persons are drawn to the graves at noon and 5 p.m. when chimes in the great marble amphitheater overlooking the tombs play hymns. The strains reach across the hills and can be heard as far away as the Pentagon.

Most people ask about the Unknown of World War II and Korea, says Daniel, a veteran of both wars.

President Eisenhower led the nation last year in three-day ceremonies honoring the new Unknown, but, Daniel says: "Every body wants to know where the tombs are. Many don't know when they were constructed or where the Unknowns came from."

It is easy to miss the new tombs. Unlike the Unknown Soldier's tomb rising white above the plaza, the new tombs are set into the granite floor, their tops flush with it. Unless a person stands directly in front of them, they can be readily overlooked.

In the presence of the Unknowns, the feelings of Americans seem to fall into patterns.

"Numerous women, especially older ladies, cry for a minute or so," says Siebert. "From time to time you might see 500 women all crying at once.

"Women will come up to the commander of the relief guard and express their feelings. Occasionally a woman with tears in her eyes will say 'I had a son lost in Korea' or 'I have someone who never came back from the war.'

"The older men are affected, too. They want to know who's guarding the children (the Unknowns) and they express how they feel about the tombs."

The sentries are members of the 1st Battle Group, 3d Infantry Regiment. Its colors have flown over 32 battlefields since Valley Forge.

Daniel says the scene doesn't affect most young people. "Those under 15 years don't realize what the tombs mean."

Yet when the average crowd of 1,000 to 1,500 people gather around for the hourly guard ceremony, the teen-agers become silent and motionless with the rest.

"Sometimes there is a smart-aleck remark," says Daniel. "But there is little irreverence."

Siebert says those in the 25 to 40 age group, which includes veterans of the last two wars, don't usually show emotion—on the surface.

They stand and gaze at the tombs, lost in memory. Then they turn away.

Strong Hint Pointing To Venus Visit

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

Early in June Venus invites a come-see-me rocket visit from the earth.

There are strong hints the Soviets will try this first flirtation when chances are most favorable for reaching Venus.

And there will be no rival. Despite earlier hopes, U.S. scientists won't be ready for this difficult space shot.

REASONS

Difficult it will be, for three main reasons:

1. The truth is no one knows exactly where Venus is, within about 50,000 miles.

2. The space probe has to be launched with fantastically precise speed. An error of one foot per second in final speed means missing Venus by 25,000 miles.

3. The probe must carry a powerful enough radio voice to report back millions of miles what it learns.

Some problems in sooting for Venus are outlined by Dr. Homer J. Stewart of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Distance to other planets are measured by angles from eartn. But it's a short base, and the exact size of the earth isn't known accurately and the angle measurements have small errors, Dr. Stewart explains.

This means measurements to Venus can be off by 50,000 miles, to Mars by 20,000 miles, or Saturn by 200,000 miles.

FAVORABLE

June is a most favorable time to shoot, for the probe can fall into a wide orbit until it intercepts Venus when Venus is on the opposite side of the sun from earth. That trip would take about 150 days, but offer the biggest payload for the least cost in speed or energy.

By MARY JARDINE

Sunday, May 31, Dixieland Daylily Tour — Monroe and West Monroe. Please add garden of Ernest B. Turner, Swartz Road, Monroe, to those listed in May 17 column.

Tuesday, June 2, Iris Garden Club, Flower Show, Delhi at the Presbyterian Church, 3:30 to 7 p.m. Theme "Say It With Flowers and Music."

Wednesday, June 17, Peaches and Posies Festival, Ruston.

EAST CARROLL CLUB

Talented members of the East Carroll Garden Club, Lake Providence exhibited at the Garden Center this week. In the horticulture section blue ribbons were awarded for outstanding flowers as follows: Mrs. C. A. Marlette for Rose Gerbera Daisies and Mrs. W. Y. Bell for Pink Dream Daylilies.

Mrs. W. P. Rushing was awarded top score in the design division. Driftwood on a cypress slab was the feature of this delightful composition. Curved, gnarled and washed smooth by the river waters the driftwood formed a fitting background for the ancient Chinese philosopher figurine who seemed to be contemplating the scene. Spanish moss concealed the needle point holder. Small leaf gray mullein and yellow chrysanthemums were arranged at the base of the wood. The materials combined with the driftwood had the textural affinity which the eye seeks.

Mrs. W. Y. Bell also selected driftwood for her composition. The base was of weathered wood which had acquired a beautiful patina through exposure to the elements. The underside of the wood had a charred effect. A curved drittwood branch had white mums brushed with bronze in the natural contours of the line. Green euonymus (trailing) emphasized the natural lines. A small brown fawn was placed in the background as an accessory completing a most pleasing composition.

LASTING FOLIAGE

A long lasting foliage arrangement was designed by Mrs. C. R. Brown. A round black bowl was selected for the line-mass arrangement. Rolled aspidistra leaves formed the vertical placement with several straight leaves to add depth. Looped aspidistra formed the placements on either side. Rosettes of yellow and green euonymus foliage were grouped as a focus of attention. Cool and refreshing to the eye and long lasting, this design should appeal to the busy home-maker.

Mrs. C. A. Marlette used Easter lilies in a different manner in her free-standing (seen from all sides) dining table arrangement. The lovely white lilies were arranged in a horizontal pattern in a creamy white pottery bowl set on its own stand. Actually the container was a salad bowl modern in design. The lilies were skillfully placed so that the beauty of each individual blossom was apparent. For filler material between the bold blooms were pink and white larkspur and rose-pink gerberas and the deeper rose-red tones of the pineapple guava. The combination of colors and materials and the relation to the container was excellent.

IN BLOOM NOW

The hydrangeas are blooming again and already we have had many calls on how to condition these. They will last four to nine days depending on the type if picked at the proper stage, that is when half the panicle is open. Split the stems about 1 inch. Remove any foliage not necessary for decoration. Sear the stem-end for about 15 seconds. A cigarette lighter is ideal for this. Then submerge the big flowerheads in cold water until crisp. The lovely oak-leaf hydrangea (H. quercifolia) one of our natives, with its deep lobed leaves which resemble an oak leaf is now available in the trade. While the flowers have the hydrangea look they are arranged in panicles instead of the rounded heads of flowers. Very showy and fragrant. Leaves turn wine red in the fall. In this section hydrangeas like morning sun and evening shade.

When home floors are built of wood in joist construction detail, they are elevated above the ground, thus eliminating the need of special moisture barriers.

State Envoys Fear Balkan Crisis Ready

WASHINGTON (UPI)—State Department officials said Saturday that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may be brewing a Berlin-type crisis in the Balkans.

The department's cold war strategists kept a sharp eye on statements and threats from the Communist boss during his mystery-clouded visit to Albania. His threats against neighboring Greece and Italy prompted a strong blast from the department Friday night.

Officials speculated that a Communist summit meeting may take place sometime next week in the tiny Balkan satellite which is isolated from the Soviet Union by Yugoslavia. The latter has shunned Khrushchev's overtures.

They said they believe Khrushchev had several purposes in mind in the new attack on North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) plans for modernizing the forces of Italy and Greece, both NATO members.

Italy already has decided to allow establishment of U.S. missile bases on her soil while Greece has agreed to permit introduction of "modern weapons."

One of the reasons State Department officials fear a new Soviet inspired crisis is a Russian move to keep Greece from agreeing to establish missiles sites on her soil and also to frighten her out of the NATO alliance.

Also, officials said, the Berlin crisis has lost much of its momentum as far as the Soviets are concerned. In addition, Iraq revolutionary leaders are displaying increasing independence of their previously close Communist supporters.

Hence, officials reason, the Soviets need a new area of unrest to maintain the cold war initiative they have tried to hold since World War II.

East German Premier Otto Grotewohl and Chinese Communist Defense Minister Peng peh-Huai have already joined Khrushchev in Albania. A North Korean leader is expected early next week. There also were indications that leaders from Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Poland may show up.

Baccalaureate At La. Tech Today

RUSTON (Special) — Programs for two senior events at Louisiana Tech have been announced here. Both will be held in Howard Auditorium.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at 8 p.m. Sunday by G. Aiken Taylor, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Alexandria.

Commencement is scheduled for Monday at 10 a.m., with the address to be given by Edward H. Jackson, president of the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce.

Following is the baccalaureate program:

Processional, "March of the Priests" (Mendelssohn), by Dr. Marshall E. Bretz, organist; invocation, Rev. Virgil D. Morris, pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church in Ruston; "Te Deum" (Holst), Tech Choir, conducted by Dr. Bretz and accompanied by Mary Pearson Jones; the baccalaureate sermon; "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" (Watts and Croft), audience and Tech Choir; benediction, Father Donard Paulus, O.F.M., St. Thomas Catholic Church, Ruston; recessional, "Marche Religieuse" (Jongen), Dr. Bretz.

The commencement program is as follows:

Processional, "March of th Priests"; "The Star-Spanled Banner," led by Kenneth Williams; invocation, Rev. Joseph N. Cathcart, rector, Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Ruston; "Concerto in D Minor" for two violins (Bach), Dr. and Mrs. John R. Luce, accompanied by Duchein Cazedessus; address by Jackson; "Der Nussbaum" (Schumann), Jeralyn Shipp, mezzo-soprano, accompanied by Dorothy Day.

Presentation of candidates for degrees by the deans; conferring of degrees and awarding of diplomas by President R. L. Ropp, assisted by Miss Mabel May, registrar; presentation of the senior class gift to the college by John E. O'Shea, vice-president of the class; acceptance of the gift by President Ropp; "Alma Mater" (Graham), led by Harry Thompson; benediction, Rev. A. H. Johnson, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church, Ruston; recessional, "Marche Religieuse," Dr. Bretz.

After the commencement exercises, an informal reception will be held in Iva Adams parlor for the graduating seniors, their relatives, friends and members of the faculty. A commissioning ceremony by the Air Force ROTC will be held in the Little Theater following the graduation program.

Asia's Problem

By WES GALLAGHER

Within a space of a few yards the canal was being used as a sewer, toilet, bathtub, garbage disposal, water fountain, swimming pool and a watery thoroughfare for small boats hawking merchandise.

The young man symbolizes the problem of awakening Asia. He knows there is a better life than the one he lives. He wants it. He is trying to get it. But even in the simple matter of personal hygine his environment prevents him from achieving it.

Worse still, the prospects are none too good for him to improve his situation in the future.

Does this mean that he will look to the Chinese Communists and their methods as the answer to his problem?

FORCES

Forces pull at him from opposite directions.

A top American diplomat said that Red China's advance toward the nations around her border has been stopped for the last two years. With each day, Asians and their governments — many of whom have known freedom only since the end of World War II — are learning more about the harsh, brutalizing tactics of the Chinese Reds.

The rebellion in Tibet underlined these tactics, particularly in the bloody way it was suppressed. Like Tibet, Thailand and Burma are predominantly Buddhist nations. Other millions of Buddhists live in Japan, India, Indonesia, Malaya and Ceylon. The spectacle of the Dalai Lama fleeing for his life has shocked them. In the rice paddies and on the rubber plantations, peasants may not understand politics. But they cannot fail to understand the naked display of force against a revered religious leader.

OTHER SIDE

In the Far East, the way of life has changed little in hundreds of years. Today, Asian youth is no longer satisfied with it.

Ironically, Western aid, particularly in education and communication, is spreading dissatisfaction at an ever-increasing pace.

In the propaganda war with communism, the United States has spent millions in telling Asia of the Western way of life. Movies point up the higher standard of living. Newspapers and radios, aided with American money, hammer away on the point that there is a better way of life and everyone should enjoy it.

Students go to the United States to see for themselves and convincing them is not difficult. But improving conditions on their home grounds is quite a different problem. One Asian newspaperman, who toured the United States for several weeks on a subsidized trip, said:

"Sure it was wonderful. But when I come home what have I got? Nothing. I'm back where I was. Just unhappier with the way things are."

Singapore, former British naval base, a major commercial center, gateway to an empire of rubber and tin, is an object example.

Very soon, too, it may be a weather vane of the prevailing winds in the Orient.

On May 30, Singapore will become a free state, governed by a city election. The population is predominantly Chinese. Singapore is probably the best administered area in southeast asia. It has less visible poverty, a higher level of education, an efficient police force, and other advantages not found to the same degree in most Asian cities.

BETTING

Yet the betting is that a left wing group, the Political Action Party, will win the May 30 election. Some British firms already are planning to shift headquarters to Kuala Lumpur, the capital of Malaya. The left wingers are favored because they won 14 of 32 seats on the city council in 1957 —although seven leaders of the group are under detention for subversive activity.

Why, in view of the relatively better conditions in Singapore, would a Red-tinged party appear to have the best chance of winning the coming elections?

Because of that same factor, opportunity.

The young people, although they come from middle class families seem to see more hope in the arguments of the left wing groups. Red cells have been organized in the schools. They have made an impression. The promises of the Chinese Communists for a better future have more appeal than the cold lack of opportunity at home.

Singapore is much more advanced economically than most of southeast Asia. It also has an increasing number of relatively well educated young men, particularly Chinese, coming out of the schools each year. They find few opportunities in the colony to build the kind of lives they want. There isn't enough industrial growth to absorb all of them. White collar positions are simply not there.

Elsewhere in southeast Asia, the number of youths who get a higher education is a trickle. The trickle will soon be a flood, however, as more postwar educational programs take effect. There is no indication that industrial growth will keep pace, creating purchasing power to achieve higher living standards, providing the opportunities so eagerly sought. The young Asian today has a better knowledge of conditions in other parts of the world. He demands more than his father, and certainly his grandfather, demanded.

Only in industrialized Japan is the economic growth likely to provide a pattern that will meet these demands.

Aggravating this new problem is an older one—population.

Asia already is overcrowded as a result of a tremendous birthrate which shows no signs of slackening. The problem becomes more dangerous by the minute because of the success of another Western-sponsored program, world health and hygiene.

People are living longer and the death rate among children is falling.

Thus there are more people who want more, millions seeking to fulfill greater desires in an economy that cannot support the present population, let along provide for the future.

The United States is pouring millions into economic aid, but the results are slow, even slight, in improving conditions. By the same token American information and communication programs have whetted the aspirations of the younger Asian. This is a key to the discontent in Asia.

Has the West, particularly the United States, a long-range plan to deal with this explosive situation? If so, it is remarkably invisible. One feels that only dogged British determination not to give up, and the United States foreign aid program, have glued together in southeast Asia a patchwork of struggling democracies and military dictatorships.

RICKETY

"Sure it's a rickety structure," said the American diplomat.

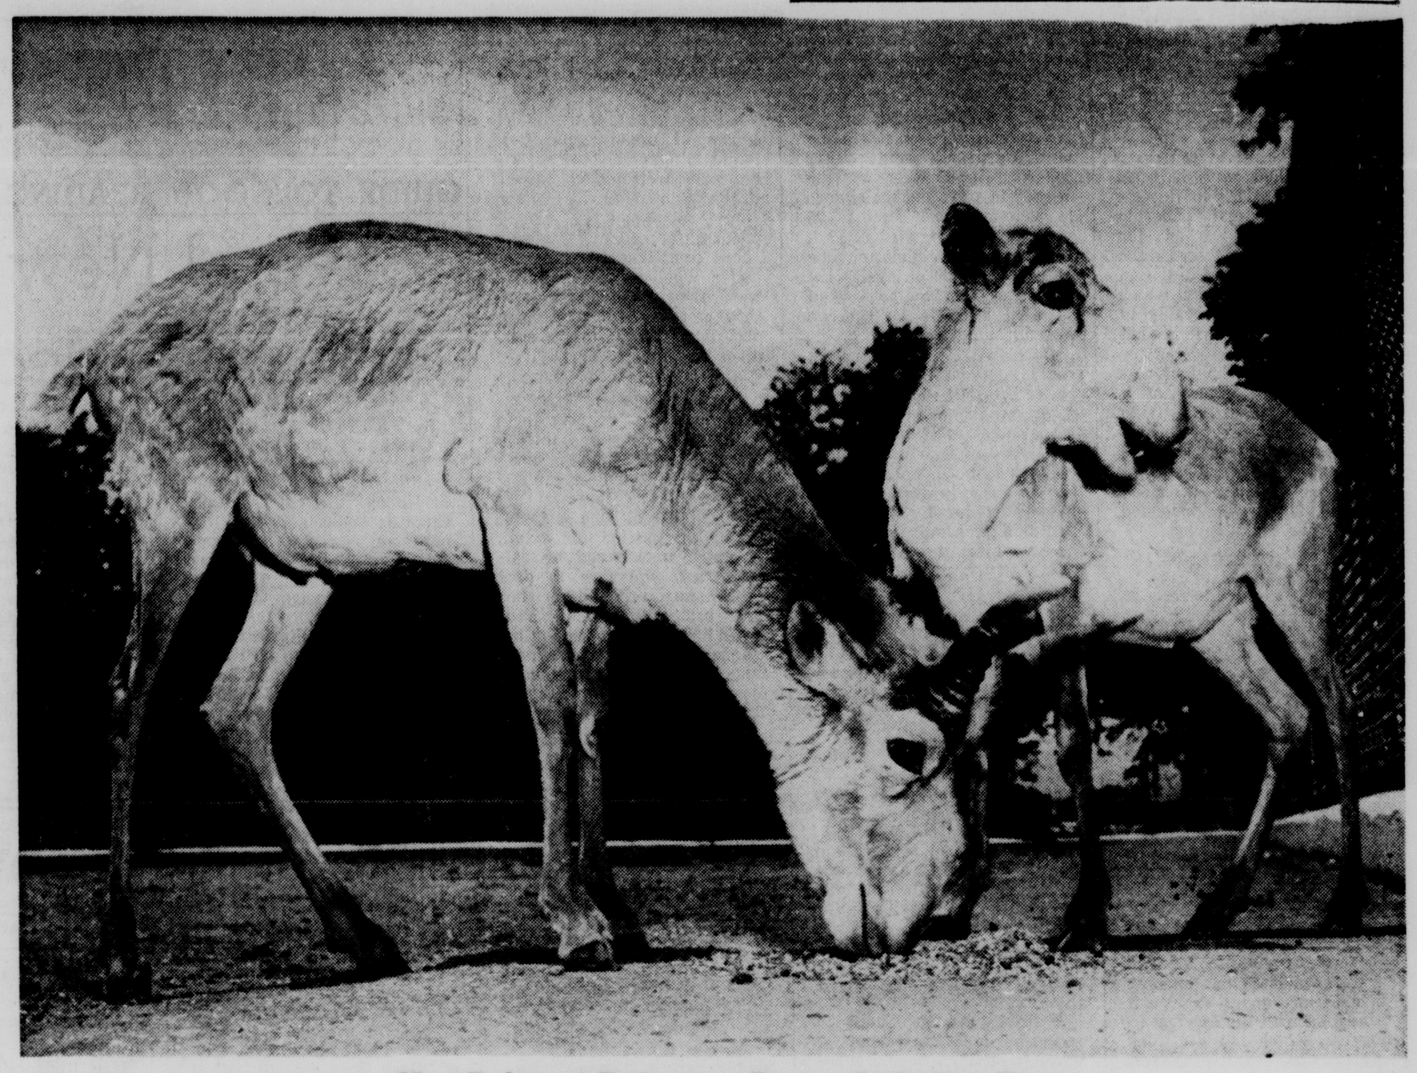

It was his contention that (1) the United States has no choice but to deal with governments as they found them, popular and unpopular, Democratic and not Democratic; (2) the present position in Asia, jerry-built or not, has stopped Red China's advance for the last two years; (3) long-range planning was useless since no over-all plan could be carried out with present Asian regimes; and (4) the problem would be solved by slow evolution rather than revolution.

All these points have elements of truth. But the conclusion that southeast Asia would somehow evolve for the better, and in favor of the west, seems more a hope htan a conviction.

What happens when the young man brushing his teeth in the canal is joined by many others as the populations rise? What will they think and say to each other if garbage and excrement still float past in the water?

Will they wait for the situation to "evolve" or will they look elsewhere, perhaps toward China, and undertake more drastic solutions?

In the long view, Asia represents a much thornier problem than Berlin and a far more dangerous one for both the West and its present friends in the East.

Non-Political Refugees Arrive At Dallas Zoo

Air Force's Sparkling Jewel

By FRANK PITMAN

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Like eagles screaming over a new nest, Air Force jets dart and dive across the Colorado sky.

Beneath them glistens the object of their affection — the glass, aluminum and marble Air Force Academy, a sparkling jewel in nature's wonderland of whispering pines, grassy mountain meadows and warm red earth.

The academy typifies America's leap into the space age. As Brig. Gen. Charles A. Lindbergh, the famed Lone Eagle, describes the school:

"There are few, if any places, where influence exerted today can have more effect on the future of the country, of civilization and of mankind."

LEARNING

Already the cadets in the department of aeronautics are learning the fundamental physics of manned and unmanned flight through space.

The modern architecture of the academy is termed "Timeless" by the designers, Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, Chicago architects - engineers. Basic construction is finished on the 17,900 acre site at the foot of the Rocky Mountains eight miles north of Colorado Springs.

But all is not done. An organization of civic leaders known as Air Force Academy Foundation Inc., raised private funds for a golf course and hopes to finance construction of an air force memorial center. This would contain exhibits depicting the story of flight from the beginning of history. A football stadium is also planned by the private group.

PROJECTS

Other projects may be undertaken. "The ultimate total of construction cost financed by appropriated funds," academy officials say, "will depend upon what additional projects Congress authorizes and the price levels prevailing at that time."

Considerable controversy has attended the academy almost from the start. Ultra-modern architecture is used in the academy, and the mess hall has $6,000 worth of draperies to subdue the glare.

On May 1, the government's General Accounting Office in Washington said the academy has spent or obligated nearly 60 million dollars more than Congress has authorized. In particular, GAO teed off on the academy's 3½ million dollar airfield.

This, the agency said, was built without congressional okay and there are plans to spend 19 million on runways and other facilities despite indications "the field may have a limited capability and may create an air traffic problem."

Congress created the academy in 1954 and classes began in the fall of 1955. Three small classes of approximately 300 each entered the academy the first three years. Another class of 454 enrolled in the summer of 1958. Full-sized classes of 750 cadets each begin entering the academy this fall. By 1962 the cadet wing will reach maximum authorized strength of 2,500, the same as the corps of cadets at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

PROGRAM

The four-year academic program at the academy is a blend of engineering and liberal arts. Studies are balanced between social sciences and humanities and better basic and applied sciences.

Four years of equally important education is devoted to airmanship. This includes leadership, military, physical and navigation training, which forms a base for future specialization in fields of manned aircraft and guided missiles.

The navigation program includes 171 hours in the air in navigational trainer type aircraft. Cadets also receive a two weeks' introduction to pilot training.

Cadets completing the four-year course of study graduate with a bachelor of science degree, the aeronautical rating of navigator and commissions as second lieutenants in the Air Force. Most graduates intend to take full-scale military pilot training after leaving the academy.

Of the 207 graduates in the first class, two will not receive air force commissions. One cadet chose to become an officer in the U. S. Marine Corps and another failed to meet the physical qualifications.

The 1959 class includes cadets from 44 states and eight whose parents live overseas. New York leads in representation with 21, followed by California 15, Texas 14, and Ohio 10.

EVENTS

Special events crowd the academy calendar during June week which started last Friday and ends June 3. The final day is capped by the commencement activities including presentation of certificates and commissions.

The Thunderbirds, Air Force precision flying team, kick off the aerial hi-jinks with five daily performances. The graduation parade Tuesday afternoon is to be climaxed with a flyover by U.S. Air Force aircraft of many types.

Four of the main buildings at the academy will be named at memorialization ceremonies during the week. The cadet dining hall will be named Mitchell Hall in honor of Gen. Mitchell. The cadet social center will become Arnold Hall, memorializing General of the Air Force Henry H. Arnold. The administration building will be designated Harmon Hall, in memory of Lt. Gen. Hubert R. Harmon, first superintendent of the academy. The academic building will receive the name Fairchild Hall for Gen. Muir S. Fairchild, first commander of the air university.

Long Mud Puddle

By CHARLES STAFFORD
AP Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Ten minutes from busy, crowded Times Square, there is a marshy wilderness where foxtails grow with prolific abandon and trappers catch and skin muskrats.

This wilderness is the New Jersey Meadows, a 15-mile long mud puddle in the heart of a metropolitan area inhabited by 15-million land-hungry people.

The Meadows lie in view of Newark and the commuter towns of the New Jersey highlands on the west, and snuggle up to the Palisades on the east. From there it's only an arm's reach to Manhattan.

In the winter, the meadowlands trapper is lost from civilization as he follows a muskrat ramble through towering reeds. But climbing a bit of high ground, there above the foxtails rises the spire of the Empire State Building.

The Meadows are the geological aftermath of a huge lake formed by a receding glacier perhaps 10,000 years ago. In a thousand years more they will dry out.

But man won't wait.

Planners dream of converting the Meadows into an industrial complex that would reap a harvest of tax dollars—an old dream, but one that is taking on reality. Scarcity has driven the cost of industrial land in the metropolitan area as high as $40,000 an acre. Even with the high cost of filling it, the land is competitive.

Three years ago five neighboring towns on the western edge of the Meadows organized the Meadowlands Regional Planning Board. Their goal is reclamation of 7,000 acres in the central meadows.

Others are also plotting. An industrial group hired a Dutch engineering firm to recommend ways of reclaiming the entire central meadows, an area of about 20,000 acres. The dike-wise Dutch proposed construction of dikes bordering the river and a flood control dam to hold back high tides.

Diking was tried as far back as 1816.

DIKING

Robert Swarthout, Quartermaster General of the Army during the War of 1812, and two of his brothers spent $150,000 diking a large section of Meadows.

But high tides and tunneling muskrats ruined the venture.

He had to give up in 1838 when Samuel's port accounts were discovered nearly a million dollars short.

In 1867, Distiller Samuel N. Pike and inventor Spencer Driggs reclaimed 3,000 acres by using half-inch iron plates as a core for their dikes. They sold the land to farmers who planted corn that grew like crazy, but didn't bear a single ear. The land was abandoned.

There was a time when a man could make a living off the Meadows without changing them.

Jake Kraft, a ruddy grey-haired chunk of a man, has lived 62 of his 63 years in the Meadows.

RECALLS

"My father brought me out here when I was 11 months old," says Kraft, who lives beside the old Paterson Plank Road. "He paid $25 for a half-acre of virgin swampland and built a house. He lived off the Meadows and same as I always have."

The Krafts cut cedar wood and harvested salt hay, which was used for bedding horses and shipping ice. They trapped and hunted.

"Everything seemed to go to hell after 1910," says Kraft. Cars and refrigerators eliminated the salt hay market. Cedars grew scarce and pollution killed off much of the wildlife.

Kraft, now retired, worked for the Bergen County Mosquito Extermination Commission and trapped during the winters. He took his pelts to fur dealers in New York, sold froglegs at Washington Market and killfish to the Aquarium for feed.

Portions of the Meadows were reclaimed during the years. Notable examples were five rail collection yards, Newark and Teterboro airports and the Jersey Turnpike.

But the amazing thing is not how much the Meadows have changed, but how little.

Looking out over them, one of the Dutch experts shook his head in disbelief. "This could happen only in America," he said. "In Europe, where land is scarce and precious, your marshes would have been reclaimed centuries ago."

Living Should Be Dedicated To Predecessors

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—It is for the living to be dedicated to the unfinished work which many American service men so nobly advanced to the last full measure of their devotion, Dewey Hawkins, commander of the Mississippi C.F.W. said Saturday.

Delivering the Memorial service address at the Biloxi Veterans Administration Center, Commander Hawkins said the men who have sacrificed their lives in defense of the United States believed in their country and they dared defend it to the very best.

With their lives they paid a price that made the people of the United States momentary beneficiaries, and for that the people are indebted to them, he said.

"We say momentary beneficiaries because we cannot be certain what the future shall bring," Hawkins said.

"We cannot say that world peace shall be lasting."

Although every war is fought with the hope of restoring peace, during the past 81 years there have been only four so-called peace years, he pointed out.

There were the four years during which there were no wars anywhere on the earth, Hawkins said.

Three of the wars fought during [illegible] years have resulted in more than 1,500,000 American [illegible] wounded, Commander Hawkins declared. He added that peace between nations will remain uncertain as long as they are oppressors.

'Follow Seasons'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A million homeless people who "follow the seasons" to harvest America's crops are beginning their annual northward migration. And church councils from New York to California are mobilizing to help them.

This is the time of year when the migrant farm workers, whom the government calls "the most underprivileged people in America," move out of their winter quarters in Florida, Texas and Arizona. In long caravans of battered old cars, trucks and buses, they stream up the East and West coasts and through the Middle West to look for work.

Many of the migrants are Negroes, Puerto Ricans and Mexicans. They have no union, no minimum wage, no unemployment compensation, no regular employer to give them a break in slack periods. The "camps" in which they find temporary housing are sometimes moderately clean, but often incredibly filthy and overcrowded. If everyone works in the fields—and even pregnant women and little children take part in the backbreaking work of harvesting vegetables—a migrant family may earn as much as $800 to $1,000 a year.

LIFE BRIGHTER

Because of their poverty—which is educational and spiritual as well as material—the migrants have become a special concern of America's churches.

This year, under the leadership of the migrant ministry of the National Council of Churches, local church councils in 31 states are preparing to do what they can to make life a little less bleak for the migrants—and especially for their children.

The New York state Council of Churches, for example, has opened a training school for volunteer workers to operate nurseries, playgrounds and day - care centers for migrant children. Michigan churches are rounding up clothing, food, soap and other household articles for use in migrant camps.

In Arizona, young people of the United Christian Youth Movement are organizing house-to-house canvasses to collect used clothing for migrant families. California churches are asking teachers and nurses to volunteer for service in the camps.

ore than 6,000 volunteers signed up for work in the migrant camps last summer. The churches are hoping to enroll many more than that this year.

In big truck - farming areas, where there are particularly heavy concentrations of migrant workers, the migrant ministry will operate its famous "harvesters." These are station wagons fitted out with movie projectors, record players, sports equipment, games and toys—and also with portable altars for worship services.

Each "harvester" is manned by a specially trained clergyman who is the modern equivalent of the circuit-riding pastor of frontier days.

Often a migrant family's only contact with religion is at the outdoor camp services conducted from the portable altar set up on the tailgate of a "harvester" wagon.

The migrant ministers do far more than conduct services and recreational programs. They serve migrant families in many practical ways—by arranging emergency loans, helping to obtain medical care, and intervening with local officials to provide public services which are often denied to migrants as "non-residents."

ON TIGHTROPE

Gen. DeGaulle Still Bridging Volcano

By CHARLES RIDLEY
United Press International

ALGIERS (UPI) —In Algeria today Gen. Charles de Gaulle is still teetering on a tightrope bridging the crater of a dangerous volcano.

This is evident to anybody who makes a thorough tour of opinion in Algiers a year after the settlers' revolt which toppled the Fourth Republic and brought De Gaulle to power.

The situation is vastly calmer than in hectic May, 1958. De Gaulle now appears to have two key elements—the army and the Algerian press — firmly on his side. A year ago, both were in revolt.

But the bulk of the 1,200,000 European settlers are as bitterly opposed to De Gaulle as they were to his predecessors. They could explode at any moment.

In comparison with the seething unrest of the French settlers the bitter four-and-a-half year war against the organized Moslem rebels in the hills is almost a minor issue.

REBELS UNDER CONTROL

The 400,000-strong French army has the rebels under control, although it is doubtful whether any army could effectively stamp out the will-o-the-wisp rebel guerrilas.

Settler leaders claim they have documentary proof that De Gaulle is planning a political program for Algeria which would eventually lead to Moslem control of Algerian affairs.

They claim that according to the plan, the French president envisages some form of semi-autonomy for Algeria, while keeping it within the framework of his great new "French community."

FILLED WITH GOODWILL

In Algiers the Moslems are filled with goodwill towards De Gaulle. They see in him a strong Frenchman who is honestly striving for a fair solution to a nerve-wrecking problem.

In their minds this would convert them from a minority of 1,200,000 among 9,000,000 Moslems to a majority of 45,000,000 Frenchmen, including the inhabitants of metropolitan France.

For the Moslems the word "integration" is translated in Arabic as "equality." This produces a positive echo in the minds of the down-to-bedrock Moslems.

De Gaulle himself has said that his program may take a generation to carry through. To many visitors in Algiers it looks doubtful whether events will wait that long.

Ross, The Creative Catalyst

THE YEARS WITH ROSS. By James Thurber. Atlantic-Little, Brown. $5.

Harold Ross was born in Aspen, Colo., in 1892, was editor of Stars and Stripes in World War I, worked for several newspapers across the country, but waited till 1925 to enter on the task which fixes his name immovably in 20th Century American letters.

For two years he had carried around a dummy of a magazine, and at last, with the essential support of Fleischmann money, it turned into The New Yorker. It started prosperously, slumped, on one anxious day was abandoned and reborn, and became today's unique literary and financial success. It is Ross's monument, and an abiding one. Cartoonist and writer Thurber, who went to the weekly in 1927, had the chance to know Ross almost 25 years—the editor died in 1951. He tells us in a biography he calls "an ordeal of love" what Ross was like, how he worked in what respects he was an incomparable editor.

He liked to play cards, could lose his shirt at poker, read True Detective magazine, thought Willa Carther a man, and stumbled over words like prodigal, which he spelled and pronounced progidal. He was always looking for the Perfect Editor for his office and didn't recognize one when he saw him; wrote pages of what seems like picayune criticism of manuscripts; paid too little for contributions; did not write well enough himself to be printed in his magazine; indulged in juvenile pranks; feuded savagely with some contributors, like Alexander Woollcott; drove some men beyond endurance till they quit— E. B. White was one, but Ross promptly summoned him back.

Ross Positive and Ross Negative, Thurber believes, explains the editorial-room ferment that resulted in The New Yorker's phenomental assemblage of talent—some 400 books with its material exclusively have been printed. He had a passion for detail. "A mind uncluttered by culture" left him free to deal with manuscripts and cartoons with brutal directness. Profane himself, he kept the magazine free of the mildest innuendo, unless somebody fooled him. He once told Thurber, about a Thurber piece going through the Ross wringer, that he thought he'd left out perhaps eight lines; Thurber, who hadn't noticed any omission at all, checked and found there was one—seven lines."

Thurber calls him "the most remarkable man I have ever known and the greatest editor." He quotes Ogden Nash: "I admire him more than anyone I have met in professional life."

The genius comes remarkably alive in Thurber's pages. Here are Ross's blind spots, his blundering, his prickly personality, yet piercing through is the indomitable will to make a magazine after his own pattern. Thurber has no defense for the often objectionable Woollcott, but stands up in general for the victims of Ross's temperament at the same time that he stands up for the temperament. This is acidly matter of fact; here is genius taken apart to find out what makes it tick.

Ross began a purely local magazine, to fit the title. But it was too good to stay local, contributions covered the country at large and it was read in Europe as well as here.

Its original wit, humor, individuality and fun as well as seriousness are in Ross and in this book. Ross wouldn't have found eight lines missing here, or eight lines, or words, too many. We have had no Bohemia, no care life, no Left Bank, and no Academy and palms, but we have had the creative catalyst Ross. Thurber catches wonderfully the madcap hurly-burly and helter-skelter out of which came the best cartooning of our time, and some of the best writing.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With another performance of the Northeast State College faculty string trio set for Thursday and the final run of the season, "Country Girl," now in progress at Little Theatre's playhouse, area theatre arts moved into the hot weather season.

For some reason, the spring season has held on longer than usual, possibly due to local organization's spacing their performances so as not to conflict with the touring attractions which came in thick and fast on the Ruston and Monroe stages during the winter months.

The "scales" counted nine reviews prior to Christmas. There has been at least that many more events since the holidays.

TOUR FATIGUE

In one of these columns, it was pointed out certain artists and attractions held up well on tour — others grew weary.

This observation shows a flaw, in the writer's opinion, in the U. S. tour system. It drains all the inspiration out of top artists and leaves the younger ones waiting in line with low pay and a tour schedule full of holes.

While the big names are able to appear in the smallest cities throughout the country under the present setup —which is an advantage— many of them do not fare well under the necessary "one night stand" process.

Stalwarts as Eleanor Steber and Richard Tucker have proven themselves able to sing and run. Victoria de los Angeles, however, was unable to deliver peak performance when she appeared in an area concert early this year. The same held true for the Ballet Russe di Monte Carlo and Conductor Paul Paray of the Detroit Symphony.

Transcontinental tours of North America were initiated by big names in the European field late in the last century and the idea has held on. Such a lion as Paderewski could line up a route throughout the country, board a boat out of Europe and "make the circuit."

This was all well and good at the time. But 1959 still finds artists attempting to follow the old system. With 50 or more cities which weren't even whistle stops in Paderewski's day now full - sized cities, the American tour cannot be taken in one sweep even by seasoned troopers.

As for the young artists who manage to get a contract with one of the two leading booking agencies there is the constant fate of the little fish in the big pond.

A striking example of this is dilemma of pianist Eugene List, who is celebrating his 25th anniversary as a touring attraction. Even after a quarter of a century of good work and excellent publicity, List still rides in the middle money bracket simply because older heads like Robert Casadessus, Rudolph Serkin and Arthur Rubbstein continue to lead the pack.

A similar situation exists among vocalists, but the turnover is mercifully faster because the vocal cords don't hold out as long as the piano and fiddle strings.

NEW ANGLE

The solution to the problem lies in overcoming the same situation now confronting major league baseball. Some sports writers have sensed a decline in the sport because of the folding of so many minor league teams throughout the country.

It stands to reason that no performance — art, movies, writing, acting music making or baseball or any sport— exists at top level only.

As the population of the nation grows, we may expect to see more local appreciation of talent at the state or regional level, maybe even to the point of paying for it. This fits into the system of states' rights — admittedly the best political formula for running a nation the size of the United States.

LITTLE THEATRE

We have several questions to ask you this morning. First of all, have you seen Country Girl? It's splendid - one of our best. Don't miss John Cale's review for an interesting evaluation of it. If you have not seen the play, do run to the phone right now and make your reservation. You still have a good choice of nights unless they are booked up. Box office is FA 3-4263 - between 2 and 7 p.m.

Next question: Have you bought your season ticket for next year? New members, you will get a bargain by buying now - admission to Country Girl in addition to the five plays of next season. We do not usually begin our drive for members this early, but after mulling the problem over, we have decided that this is the best time for it. In the fall there are so many other drives. Just count them over in your mind. Don't you feel rather harassed when there are so many calls so close together despite the fact that you want to subscribe to all of them and know you're getting a big money's worth? We'll wager that getting your ticket now will be easier on your bank account than at any other season of the year. Oh, you say you'll misplace it if you buy it three months in advance! Go ahead and lose it. Jean Hamilton and Myrtle Carter will have the membership list so meticulously arranged and filed that you'll never have to bother about that ticket once you have sent in your check.

Third question: Have you done your part toward making a new playhouse possible? Think of our pride, comfort, and pleasure next winter when we have a real theater. We already have a fine director, a town full of talent, a hard working board, and a discriminating membership. Let's make the most of our capabilities. We are counting on your contribution!

Charity League Will Be Sponsor Of 'Story Hour'

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Several New Books Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The past week was a very prolific one in the publication of fiction titles and we feel that the books added will be quite an asset to the library collection. Certain to be popular is "The Young Titan" by Van Wyck Mason. This fine historical novel, by a master of the art, has its setting in French Canada during the period of the French and Indian wars. It is concerned with the siege of Louisville and will make exciting reading for all who like American history.

Everyone who read Nordoff and Hall's fine stories of the "Mutiny of the Bounty" will want to read a sequel to this story written by Erle Wilson and called "Adams of the Bounty." Here is a new view of the most famous mutiny of all time, of the settlement of Pitcairn Island, and of the primitive saga of violence and treachery that followed. Out of one of American history's darkest and little known pages, Williams Forrest has created a graphic chronicle of an indomitable people and their towering leader, the Scotch-Indian John Ross. His book is called "The Trail of Tears" and tells the story of the enforced removal of the Cherokee nation from its home in Georgia to the strange lands of Oklahoma. Hamilton Basso has written a delightful and discerning novel of the years of crisis that led to the Civil War, which he calls "The Light Infantry Ball." Mr. Basso understands the South better than do most modern writers and his novel makes very interesting reading.

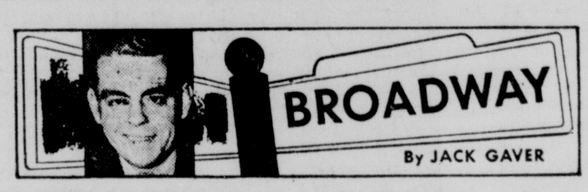

Novels of suspense are always popular and this week we have two to offer our readers. One is "Mind Out of Time" by Angela Tonks and the other is "Blood and Judgment" by Michael Gilbert. Both are well worth your attention.

Stories with a present day setting are always in demand and there are several available this week. "One Star General" by Al Morgan is the story of a man whose one ambition in life was to have this golden star. He risked everything else in his life to get it and this is the story of what happened. "Mrs. Panapoulis" is the title of a new novel written by Jon Godden, with all of the usual charm displayed by this author. It has its setting on an island off the coast of Portuguese East Africa and is a book you will long remember. "Face in the Clouds" by John Gilbert has its setting in Singapore and is concerned with the foreign colony there. In this book we meet a very charming couple and the story is vigorous, tender, sophisticated and amusing. "The Bespoken Mile" by March Cost tells the delightful story of a London cabaret girl who leaves the glamorous and fascinating world of the theatre when she inherits a lovely house in the misty highlands of Scotland. Here she discovers a strange and eerie world and here she discovers love.

"Just Off Fifth" by Edith P. Begner is a revealing novel of life in a New York Apartment house. It has a climax which is both moving and surprising and although this book may not be pleasant, it is not one which you will want to lay down. "Please Write For Details" is the title of a hilarious story with a setting in Cuernavaca, Mexico. It is a book which everyone who loves Mexico will want to read. "The John Wood Case" is the first novel from the pen of Ruth Suckow which has appeared in a long time. The setting is in Iowa in the early nineteen hundreds. It is beautifully written and will leave you with a warm feeling in your heart.

The field of non - fiction is represented in all categories. In the field of religion there are two books: "Memoirs of a Renaissance Pope, Pius II" edited by Dr. Leona Gabel and "Bible Quiz and Answers" by Mrs. Margaret Newman, who is dean of women at our own Northeast La. College. The field of social science has these three titles: "A History of American Labor" by Joseph G. Rayback; "Great Train Robberies of the West" by Eugene R. Block and "The Queen's Wards" by Joel Huntsfield. Pure science is represented by "Physics for Our Times" by Walter G. Marburger and "The Invertebrates" by L. A. Borrodaile. The field of useful arts includes such titles as "Catharics and Common Sense" by William R. Farrar; "Help for Ten Million" by Darrell C. Crain, which is a manual for patients with arthritis, rhuematism and gout; "Wiring Manual for Home and Farm" by Carl A. Bredahl should be most useful; "Today's Sports and Competition Cars" by Tom McCahill will be in great demand by devotees of this sport; "Perennials in the Garden for Lasting Beauty" by Charles H. Potter is very fine; "Cooking Afloat" by Katherine Pinkerton will be most helpful to all who cook on boats while "Kitchen Ideas for 1959," published by "Better Homes and Gardens" will appeal to many women.

Those who are planning new homes will want to see three new books in this field, "House and Gardens Book of Building," "Better Homes and Gardens Home Building Ideas,"; and "House Beautiful's 120 Houses and Plans." Record collectors will want to read "The Collector's Hayden," by C. H. Burke and "The Collector's Chopin and Schumann" by Harold C. Schonberg. Men and boys will be interested in the 1959 gun annual and hunting annual published by Sports Afield. Next week we will tell you about other interesting books which may be borrowed at the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

NEW YORK (UPI)—A versatile new comedienne and a new musical comedy composer of some promise have been revealed with the presentation of "Once Upon a Mattress" at the Phoenix Theater.

The actress is Carol Burnett, and the composer is Mary Rodgers, daughter of composer Richard Rodgers. The show should spark large careers for both of them.

"Once Upon a Mattress" is an unusually ambitious effort for an off - Broadway musical. For instance, George Abbott one of the most successful of all showmen, went downtown for the first time to direct the show. William and Jean Eckart, man - and-wife set designers with many big credits, not only designed the production handsomely but joined with T. Edward Hambleton and Norris Houghton of the Phoenix in presenting it.

The result is an entertainment of fine professional tone even when some of the events on stage are less than completely satisfying.

The show is a tongue-in-cheek treatment of that old fairy tale about the princess who proved her royalty by being so sensitive that she could feel the lump made by a pea hidden at the bottom of a huge pile of bedding.

Jay Thompson, Marshall Barer and Dean Fuller have taken a number of liberties in devising their libretto. There is nothing wrong with that, but they are hard put to keep the ball of fluff in the air for a whole evening. Their inventions are a trifle strained and a little too close to college varsity show standards for comfort.

However, thing hum whenever Miss Burnett is in action, and, fortunately, that is much of the time. This is the young woman who has been seeking a career in TV and small night clubs here for about five years.

She has the sort of pliable singing voice that a knockabout comedienne should have, a vastly mobile face and a body that can be eloquently funny. She is exactly the sort of princess this piece needs.

Miss Rodgers' songs display a fine melodic line when that is called for, and she shows a knack for musical backing of comedy songs and production numbers. Barer does a better than average job with the lyrics.

Cavorting with Miss Burnett in leading roles are Joe Bova, Jack Gilford, Jane White, Robert Weil, Anne Jones, Matt Mattox, Allen Case and Harry Snow, good people all.

Humor Behind The Beard Of An Irishman

NO GARLIC IN THE SOUP! By Leonard Wibberley. Ives Washburn. $3.95.

Anyone who remembers, among Wibberley's past books, Mrs. Searwood's Secret Weapon," is going to be tempted strongly by his future ones, and this, happily, almost lives up to your great expectations. Born an Irishman, for some time a West Coast newsman, Wibberley decided to take his small car, his big bulldog, his amenable wife and four obedient children to live in Portugal.

The car got badly smashed at the dock by the steamship company employes, the Portuguese officially were not cordial enough so that he stayed as long as he had intended, but in between the inauspicious start and the frosty farewells, he had some interesting, tricky, touchy, friendly good times and bad. The thing he'd wondered about the most — lying-in facilities for his pregnant wife — were no problem but there were servants to cajole and discipline by turns, neighbors to befriend or alienate, and though he could keep the garlic out of the soup, he couldn't keep rancid olive oil out of any dish at all.

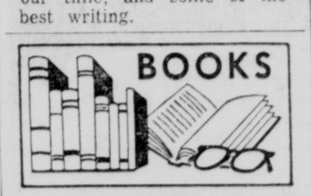

An Unpleasant Eye-Opener In Book On Japan

THE RUN FROM THE MOUNTAIN. By William Groninger. Rhinehart. $3.95.

The war is over and occupation forces in Japan have routine tasks to perform. But the soldiers and officers do not let work interfere with pleasure, as we read in this earnest first novel by a young man who himself saw service in the conquered island.

His narrator is Herman Wakeley, a midwest youth a little naive and not yet used to man's ways when he is dropped into the midst of unscrupulous, disillusioned GIs —the brute—tempered guys who want a fight, the ones who live with local women and betray them and are betrayed, the ones also too good and righteous, and the rare ones, finally, who develop a fine unshakable fidelity.

Wakeley learns more than a man perhaps ought to know as he is promoted from private to sergeant, makes friends and enemies, and is at last obliged to decide whether to stick in the Army for a career or go home. Though the story slows down in spots, it's a vivid account and, assuming it's true, an unpleasant but spine-tingling eye-opener about today's serviceman. You can't really like the book, but that is for the amirable reason that the author did so very well what he set out to do.

Spaceport U. S. A., by Martin Caidin (Dutton): Less than 10 years ago, it was a snake-infested sandbank. Today, its name is known to the world—Cape Canaveral, where we are trying out the future to see if we like it.

This is the story of the Cape and its associated installations, strung out for 5,000 miles southeastward across the Atlantic, which make up the Air Force Missile Test Center and the Atlantic Missile Range.

The bold planners of the AFMTC foresaw that it would expand and estimated that eventually it would employ a working force of 4,250 persons. Events have somewhat outrun their expectations. By the middle of 1958, the working population of the test center totalled 13,000, and it was still growing. The buildup is expected to go on for at least another 18 months before the workload levels off.

Caidin, a former consultant to the commander of AFMTC, is excellently qualified to tell its story. He does so with the aid of excerpts from official documents, reports of interviews with the experts and his own recollections of memorable launchings at the Cape.

The Sleepwalkers, by Arthur Koestler (Macmillan): Man has always theorized about his beginnings and the nature of the universe. And as knowledge started pushing aside the curtain of darkness, old theories were dropped for newer and larger concepts about the number, position and movement of the stars, planets and other bodies in space. Koestler has written a chronological story of these developments as they were unfolded by "sleepwalkers," those giants of philosophy whose visions drove them groping and stumbling toward the light. Plato, Aristotle, Pythagoras, Copernicus, Galileo, Brahe and Kepler are the heroes of Koestler's story. A book of this kind could not be made easy reading, treating as it does of the scientific charting of the heavens, but Koestler has brought his heroes to life, telling of their struggles and failures and triumphs in a way that shows that they were human beings beset with superhuman problems.

The Run From The Mountain, by William Groninger (Rinehart): An impressive first novel, largely autobiographical, describing peacetime Army life as it was in Japan during the U. S. occupation just after World War II. A good deal of the story is devoted to the painful process by which Groninger's hero, S-Sgt. Herman Wakely, achieves maturity. The civilian reader may be shocked by much of the book, but its description of the Army holds few surprises for anybody who has spent time in it. Groninger has enriched his material through skillful organization and a thoroughly readable style.

A Few Quick Ones, by P. G. Wodehouse (Simon and Schuster): If you're a Wodehouse fan — and they must be legion inasmuch as the 78-year-old creator of Jeeves and Bertie Wooster has published no less than 60 books — this one is right up your laughing alley. Some old Wodehouse friends are on hand for the high-jinks. There's the perfect butler Jeeves, who once again gets his master, bat-brained Bertie Wooster, out of trouble; nastily wealthy Oofy Prosser, who is taxed almost beyond endurance to get out of marrying a repulsive woman; and Bingo Little, who hides in a barrel with a beautiful redhead. Wack, farcical and very funny.

Command the Morning, by Pearl S. Buck (John Day): In this novel, Miss Buck poses a question: Is the modern scientist responsible for the results of his inventions such as the atom bomb? Her story personalizes the Manhattan Project, which led to the incineration of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Here are the men, and one woman, who conceived the idea and rushed it to completion in the hope that it would never have to be used. But the question is not answered here or elsewhere. Instead Miss Buck takes a hopeful look into the future — into countries such as India where isotopes and nuclear fission and fusion may help feed millions, heal lepers, remove ancient social barriers.

Peg-Leg Pete And His New Netherlands

PETER STUYVESANT AND HIS NEW YORK. By Henry H. Kessler and Eugene Rachlis. Random House. $4.75.

In May 1647, peg-leg Peter Stuyvesant, replacing the incompetent William Kieft, began his 17-year governorship of New Netherland and its bustling city Manhattan. There was the constant threat of Indian attacks; Lutherans, Jews and then Quakers presented problems for the stern Calvinist leader, who also deplored the hard - drinking, dissolute lives led by some inhabitants; there were lesser matters to handle, like traffic so speedy that drivers had to lead their horses along all streets except Broadway. Stuyvesant built himself a handsome house to which he rode along the Bouwerie; he ordered Harlem settled; he sponsored education for youth and aid for the needy.

But almost from the start his main problem was his neighbors the New Englanders and, in their homeland, the King. When they finally sent four warships up through the Narrows to land 2,000 soldiers, Stuyvesant had no army to fight them with, no powder, and no backing at all from the burghers who had learned the English terms of surrender and thought it would be madness not to accept them. He returned to Amsterdam to justify his course and confront his critics, and spent his last years in the new country, dying in 1672.

It wasn't yet New York, of course, technically, while Stuyvesant was governor; and these authors are not inspired. But they are diligent, and fill their interesting pages with the doughty character of the great pioneering Dutchman as well as with quaint details of the crude life lived in his day.

49-Star Flag Stamp On Sale Begins July 4

The much - talked - about 49 Star Flag Stamp will go on first day sale at Washington D. C., on Independence Day, July 4. The stamp was designed by Steven Dohanos, noted illustrator and creator of the 4 - cent NATO commemorative stamp which was issued April 1.

The new flag stamp will be printed in red, white, blue and golden yellow. The main design, of course, will be the U. S. flag with its field of 49 stars. The date July 4, 1959, appears upper right. The flag pole will be golden yellow.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 49-Star Flag Stamp."

To commemorate its new constitution, Singapore has issued six new stamps. The design common to all values includes a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and the St. Edward's Crown. The Singapore Lion in gold is depicted against a background of the Singapore skyline. The stamps are: 4-cents red, 10-cents brown purple, 20 - cents light blue, 25-cents green, 30-cents purple and 50-cents deep blue.

France has issued four new stamps. A 15-franc shows the dam at Foum el Gherza in Algeria. A 20- fr depicts the atomic center at arcoule. A 30-fr. pictures the oil derricks and a map of the pipelines from Hassi Messaoud in the Sahara to the sea. The 50-fr illustrates the Palais du Centre National der Industries et des Techniques.

Celebrations of the centennial of the Pony Express and a likely reenactment over an eight- state area of the runs of the original Pony Express are planned for next year, says Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

TOMMY BELL

Ferriday Boy Is Combining Three Careers

FERRIDAY (Special) — A 19-year-old Ferriday boy is combining three careers — student veterinarian, X-ray technician and musician.

At the present Tommy Bell's musical career is soaring with a scheduled release within two weeks of two songs he composed, arranged and sings.

Tommy formed his first band when he was 15 years old and a sophomore at Ferriday High School. A versatile musician, he plays the piano, saxaphone and is vocalist for his band. He combined studies with band appearances at school functions in Ferriday.

Since becoming a student at Northeast State College, Bell has had a five - piece band.

Recently he composed two songs — Swamp Gal and Midnight Dream — in the rock and roll style. His manager, Vinnie Vincent of Monroe, contacted a record company in Nashville, Tenn. It was arranged that Tommy and his band would travel to Crowley where the record was cut.

Tommy, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Bell of Ferriday, has already started composing four other songs. However, he plans to further his education and after one more year here, will transfer to Texas A & M College to further pursue his studies as a veterinarian.

Starring In 'Al Capone'

The picture they dared Hollywood to make, "Al Capone," will open Friday at the Jim theatre.

Starring one of Hollywood's all-time great actors, Rod Steiger, the man who won an Academy Award nomination for his stirring work in "On the Waterfront," "Al Capone," comes to the screen only after years of research and painstaking preparation

"A study in evil," as it has been characterized by Steiger, "Al Capone" relates the life story of this nation's most powerful and relentless gangster—a man so powerful, in fact, that for a period of more than five years he was absolute boss of Chicago.

Produced by two young men with amazing ability, John H. Burrows and Leonard J. Ackerman for Allied Artists, "Al Capone" was made with an eye to stark reality, with no punches pulled.

Boasting one of the strongest supporting casts ever assembled, "Al Capone" comes to the screen buttressed with such able performers as Fay Spain, Murvyn Vye, James Gregory, Nehemiah Persoff and Martin Balsam.

Besides being "a study in evil," "Al Capone" carefully recreates that era in American history when graft and corruption were the order of the day; and era made possible, according to many, by the law of prohibition which turned out to be a boon to wrongdoers.

Unlike the average crime picture, "Al Capone" does not in any way glorify a gangster. Rather, it merely records the lawbreaking activities of one man, Capone, who considered himself above the law. Through it runs a love story telling the saga of a woman, played by Fay Spain, who tried to believe in Capone but who, too, late, found out she was dealing with a monster.

'The Young Philadelphian' At Paramount

Richard Powell's powerful best-selling novel, "The Philadelphian," has been brought to the motion picture screen by Warner Bros. in the daring production, "The Young Philadelphians," which comes today to the Paramount Theatre.

An equally powerful cast headed by Paul Newman, Barbara Rush, Alexis Smith, Brian Keith and Diane Brewster, enacts the story of a brilliant young lawyer who is forced to claw every inch of the way to the dizzy and precarious heights of wealth and power, against the handicap of poverty and the prejudice of Philadelphia's Main Line society.

For Paul Newman, the role of Anthony Lawrence, illegitimate son of Diane Brewster and Brian Keith, marks a move away from the rough and tough parts he has played in such pictures as "The Helen Morgan Story," "Somebody Up There Likes Me," and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," for which his performance earned him an Academy Award nomination this year. In "The Young Philadelphians," Newman plays a Princeton graduate, an Army officer in the Korean War and finally, an extremely successful corporation lawyer.

In Barbara Rush, Warner Bros. obtained a young actress who has been steadily moving up in public appeal since her portrayals in "The Young Lions" and "Harry Black and the Tiger."

Alexis Smith returned to Warner Bros., where she became a star, to enact the role of the wife of Philadelphia's most important lawyer, played by Otto Kruger. Brian Keith, a respected actor in Hollywood, on Broadway and on television, plays Mike Flanagan, a self-made building contractor.

Probably the most difficult role to cast in the film was that of Kate Lawrence, Paul Newman's mother. The difficulty arose because the actress had to age more than 30 years. Warner Bros. and director Sherman chose 27-year-old Diane Brewster for the role. Miss Brewster has already gained considerable attention for her portrayal of Samantha Crawford in the "Maverick" television series.

Barbara Rush's costumes are among the most expensive ever designed by Howard Shoup. A conservative estimate places their value in the neighborhood of $25,000. They consist of furs, suits, evening gowns, cocktail dresses, hats, gloves and even white fur muffs.

Cinematographer was Harry Stradling who also photographed "Auntie Mame." The sets were designed and constructed under the supervision of Malcolm Bert. Film editor was William Ziegler and the music was composed by Ernest Gold.

FRANK HANCOCK

Crossett Man Stars In TV Army Show

CROSSETT (Special) — Frank Hancock, a native of Crossett, will appear on an Arkansas television station, Tuesday night, at 10:15 in an Army picture. The filmed TV series has included Hancock in its cast before. However, in this show, entitled "Night Jump", Hancock plays a leading role.

Of the play, filmed in Hohenfels, Germany, Hancock wrote to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hancock, Sr., of Crossett, "It is about a patrol during the last war. Three American paratroopers and a British major jump behind enemy lines to carry out a dangerous mission. We have to blow up some German tanks. Most of the play is about us on the mission. Running through the woods, shooting Germans, getting wounded (I get shot in the arm), and finally being rescued. In an opening scene it is established that it's summer and very hot. The day we shot that scene it was. The next day when we began the outdoor action shots it started to rain. It got very cold, and the wind was blowing 20 miles an hour. But we couldn't stop and wait for better weather because they have to stay on schedule. It rained without stopping the rest of the time I was there. We were all soaked to the skin after the first ten minutes every day. I wonder what it is going to look like. I was assured that the rain wouldn't show up in the movie." The young actor said, "The director and the script boy were Americans, and all the rest of the crew were Germans. It really got to be confusing with everybody shouting in the wrong language."

Hancock, following undergraduate work at Arkansas State Teachers College, received his M. S. in theatre at Purdue University in Indiana in 1957. He is married to the former Patricia Coffman, of Conway, and they both have acted in summer theatres in Camden, Maine; Plymouth, Mass., and Michigan City, Mich. Specialist 4th class in the Army, Hancock has been in the European Theatre since 1957. His wife is with him there.

S. Hayward Starring Role Appears Here

"I Want to Live!" Figaro Inc.'s film version of one of the most controversial murder cases in the annals of California crime, now at the Joy Drive In Theatre with Susan Hayward starred in a role based on the character of Barbara Graham. A United Artists release, "I Want to Live!" was produced by Walter Wanger and directed by Robert Wise from a screenplay by Nelson Gidding and Don Mankiewicz.

The screenplay is based on original material gathered by Edward S. Montgomery, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter of the San Francisco Examiner, who covered the case from the time of Mrs. Graham's arrest in Lynwood, Calif., May 3, 1953, to the moment of her execution at the age of 32 in the San Quentin gas chamber, June 3, 1955. Montgomery, portrayed in the film by Simon Oakland, was originally convinced of her guilt, but later following death house interviews with the condemned woman, and with psychologist, Carl Palmberg, he strongly believed she had been the victim of a glaring mis-carriage of justice. Palmberg is portrayed by Theodore Bikel.

Barbara Graham already had a prison record for perjury and prostitution when she was arrested with ex-convicts Emmet Perkins and Jack Santo, portrayed respectively by Philip Coolidge and Lou Krugman, for the murder of Mrs. Mabel Monahan, an aged widow.

Although she maintained her innocence, the jury found her guilty on the evidence of another ex-convict (James Philbrook) picked up at the scene of the crime who had turned state's evidence. Another damaging piece of evidence was supplied by a police officer who had tricked Barbara into believing he was an underworld character who could supply her with an airtight alibi. A tape recording of their conversation fatal to her case was introduced into the record. After she had been convicted, Montgomery and her lawyer led an unsuccessful fight to save Barbara Graham from the gas chamber.

In addition to featured players Oakland, Virginia Vincent, Bikel and Wesley Lau, the cast also includes jazz musicians Gerry Mulligan, Shelly Manne, Art Farmer, Bud Shank and Red Mitchell playing an original jazz score by John Mandel.

'A Star Is Born'

Thunder In The Sun

Magnolia GOP Sets Meeting

State Chairman Wirt Yerger Jr. will address the gathering on "plans for growth and development of a two-party system."

Mafia Meeting Host Critical In Hospital

Dr. Ronald Hamilton, of Binghamton, a heart specialist, said Barbara suffered a coronary attack when he collapsed Friday at the home of a sister-in-law in nearby Endicott. Barbara had only just moved out of his palatial hilltop home at Apalachin where some 60 mobsters and their friends gathered in 1957.

The state of Barbara's health has kept him from being questioned about the convention.

DISTRICT PETROLEUM

Three New Producers Are Reported In Monroe Area

Three new petroleum producers and four new well sites were reported last week to the Monroe District office of the Louisiana Department of Conservation's mineral division.

Duncan S. Cook, manager of the 14 - parish Monroe District, also reported that one well was plugged and abandoned and 36 drilling rigs were active over the area.

In oil - rich LaSalle parish the W. L. Holmes' R. R. McManemin No. 1 was completed May 23 to flow an estimated five barrels from perforations at 1270 - 76 feet. The well is in section 25, township 10, range 1 east of Tullos Urania Field.

Mississippi - Louisiana Oil Producing Company's German -Baker No. 1 section 7, township 11. range 10 east of Holly Ridge Field on May 16 began to produce 23 barrels of 26.7 gravity petroleum from 3037 - 42 feet. The gas oil ratio is 506:1.

A gas producer, Olin Gas Transmission Corporation's Fee Gas No. 427, was gauged May 25 at 492 million cubic feet before acid with a rock pressure of 460 pounds. The well was drilled down to 2182 feet in section 23, township 21, range 3 east of Monroe field.

FRANKLIN PARISH

Wildcat Field - J. C. Vaughan Jr., et al; James E. Barfield No. 1, Sec. 21-12-8E, located 266 ft. north, 263 feet west of SE corner of SW¼ of NE¼.

GRANT PARISH

RICHLAND PARISH

TENSAS PARISH

North Holly Ridge Field - Magnolia Pet. Co.; Wylie D. Cavin No. 2, Sec. 6-11-10E, located 165 ft. north, 1155 ft. west from SE corner.

These rigs were active last week:

EAST CARROLL PARISH

CATAHOULA PARISH

Wildcat Field - A. J. Hodges Inds., et al; La. Cent. Oil & Gas - Int. Paper Co. No. 3, Sec. 5-9 - 6E, testing, plugged back to Wilcox.

Wildcat Field - O'Brien Drlg. Co.; B. M. Gilcrease No. 1, Sec. 10-8-6E, drilling at 3100 ft.

CONCORDIA PARISH

Wildcat Field - R. A. Campbell; Dale No. 1, Sec. 36-7-7E, set 537 ft. of 9⅝ in. pipe, running 5½ in casing.

Brabston Field - Marlin Exp., Inc.; F. F. Yakey No. 3, Sec. 25-4-8E, set 600 ft. of 9⅝ in. pipe, drilling at 2780 ft.

Lismore Landing Field - Wm. White, et al; L. M. Simmons No. 1, Sec. 16-6-7E, set 520 ft. of 9⅝ in. pipe, coring at 5605 ft.

Omega Field - Germany - Gulmon; E. B. Wade No. 3, Sec. 19-7-7E, set 409 ft. of 8⅝ in. pipe & 4992 ft. of 5½ in. pipe, preparing to perforate.

Wildcat Field - Union Prod. Co.; Scott No. 1, Sec. 15-11-9E, set 530 ft. of 9⅝ in. Pipe, drilling at 4920 ft.

GRANT PARISH

Lamar Field - Crow Drilling & Prod. Co., et al; Godman No. 2, sec. 36-16-8E, set 4710 ft. of 4½ in. pipe, testing.

LASALLE PARISH

PERFORMANCE IMPROVES

Tailoring Fuels To Suit U.S. Cars

NEW YORK (AP) — Modern gasolines are being tailored to meet the demands of modern automobiles.

The performance and efficiency of both have kept pace with each other. Future progress will depend on the success of coordinated research now under way.

Two oil scientists said this week advances in gasolines the past 10 years have exceeded any other comparable period in the 70 years of motor fuel demand.

They said future advances are promising but will have to be justified by economical prices.

W. J. Sweeney and J. F. Kung of Esso Research and Engineering Co. predicted, however, that demand for gasoline will continue to boom.

They told the division of refining of the American Petroleum Institute the nation's registered vehicles have jumped from 38 to 67 million in 10 years. They said registrations in 1967 will approach 86 million.

Gasoline demand rose from 28 billion to slightly less than 52 billion gallons per year. The 1967 requirements should be in the range of 67 billion gallons.

Assuming the average motorist gets 12.5 miles per gallon, vehicle travel in the United States in 1967 is expected to approach 840 billion miles. The 38 million vehicles of 1947 travelled an estimated 350 billion miles.

Antiknock qualities of gasoline have improved sharply since 1947. but the rate of increase seems to be slowing.

The octane rating of the average premium gasoline climbed from 87 to just under 99 from 1947 to the end of 1958. Regular grades matched this gain of about one unit a year, rising from 80.5 to 91.5.

Superpremium gasolines appeared on the market in 1956, breaking the industry's traditional two-grade system. One company now is offering a choice of six grades. Introduced at just over 100 octane, these super gasolines now are being sold with an average rating of 101.5.

By 1958 the average had increased to just under 9.5. Some engines had compression ratios as high as 10.5.

They credited the combined improvements in gasolines and engine quality with boosting hill climb ability 42 per cent since 1947.

The average car in 1947 needed 43 seconds to climb a particular hill with an 11.6 per cent grade. The 1957 model made the climb in just 25 seconds.

INDUSTRIALS LEADING

Blue Chips Set Market Records

NEW YORK (UPI)—Quiet buying blue chips carried the Dow-Jones industrial average to a record high on the stock market in the past week.

Railroad issues retreated and the utilities ended nine straight days of decline.

Trading generally slackened and on most days the losses outnumbered gains. Market experts said the list was going through a rolling readjustment apparently in preparation for the traditional summer rally.

Chemicals stood out in the blue chip department. There were days of strength in motors, steels, selected oils, and foods.

The sensations centered in the glamor electronics group, none of which is included in the industrial average. The electrical equipments—also electronics—are represented and they performed in springhtly fashion Friday.

Most news favored the market. Industrial output continued to rise and glowing forecasts were made for the future. The market ignored firmer money reflected in the Federal Reserve System's move toward a general rise in the discount rate from 3 per cent to 3½ per cent.

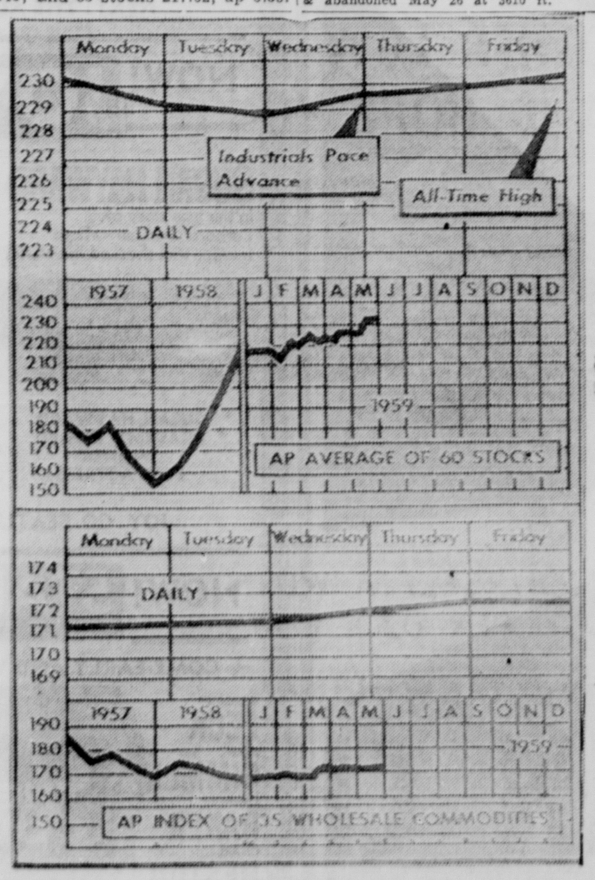

Buying was highly selective and so was the selling. Drugs produced some strong spots. Celanese enjoyed a good market after its decision to distribute one share for each four held as a stock dividend. Special issues produced some very strong features.

Zenith new stock ran up 27 points. Rohm & Haas rose 29¾ in the high-priced group. Motorola gained 9½. General Foods was up 13½ and Westinghouse Electric 6⅜ points. In the chemicals Allied gained 5¾ and DuPont and Union Carbide 4½ each. American Telephone also rose 4½ points.

Sales for the week totaled 14,872,535 shares, smallest for a full week since Feb. 13. The daily average turnover was 2,974,507 shares.

The Dow-Jones industrial average closed the week at 643.79, an all-time high, and a gain of 9.05 points on the week. It set an intra-day record at 647.24 also on Friday.

The railroad average closed the week at 167.33 off 2.34 from the previous week; utility 89.80 off 1.46; and 65 stocks 217.02, up 0.59.

All Time High

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks recorded an all-time high when it advanced for the third week in a row, to 230.3 from 230.2 a week earlier. Led by industrials, the commodity index rose for third straight week, closing Friday at 172.5 from 171.5 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Orleans Woman Killed By Car

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police Saturday identified Mrs. Gertrude B. Nunez, 62, of New Orleans, as the woman killed when struck by a car.

Officers said Mrs. Nunez was hit Friday night when she stepped from the neutral ground between a divided street. Her body was dragged about 80 feet.

An estimated 50 million persons a year visit New Jersey's ocean beaches.

New Officials Announced By Power Firm

W. O. Turner is new chairman of the Board of Directors of Louisiana Power and Light Co., according to an announcement made yesterday.

Former president of the Company, Turner will remain its chief executive officer. G. C. Rawls succeeds him in the president's position.

Two Monroe residents, Claude Harrison and C. B. Sherrouse, both were re-elected to the Board of Directors.

Other appointments went to E. A. Rodrigue. named vice-president, and John H. Erwin Jr., elected assistant treasurer and assistant secretary.

The Board also re-elected W. T. Hess, vice - president and chief engineer; A. E. Elliott, vice - president and treasurer; C. L. Osterberger, vice - president and sales manager; W. H. Senyard, vice - president and director of personnel; A. M. Naquin, assistant treasurer and assistant secretary; and L. E. Didier, secretary.

RE-ELECTED

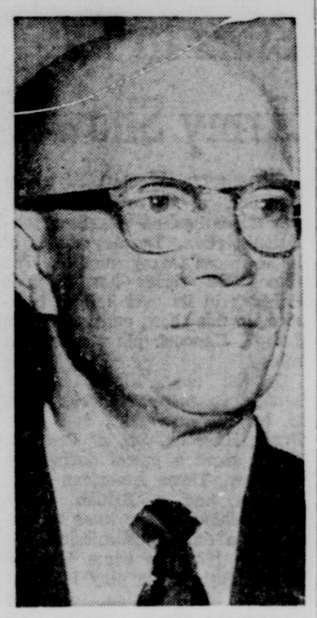

Re-elected to the Board of Directors were: E. H. Dixon, president of Middle South Utilities Inc., New York; A. E. Elliott, vice - president and treasurer of the Company. New Orleans; Donald B. Fiske, theater owner, Oak Grove.

W. T. Hess, New Orleans, vice-president and chief engineer of the Company, also was re-elected to the Board, along with L. A. Loustalot, chairman of the board, of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., Hammond; and Rawls, newly elected President, New Orleans.

Other Board members re-elected are: Sabin Savoie, sugar planter, Belle Rose; Turner, new chairman; Sherrouse and Harrison.

NEWPORT, Vt. (UPI) —Lloyd T. Hayes, 45, entered the Vermont Mother of the Year contest because as a widower he "has been mother as well as father" to a seven-year-old son and a daughter, 13. Hayes lost the title to a woman.

PROFESSIONAL COMPLAINS

Booming Market Lures Amateurs

EDITOR'S NOTE — The stock market boom has a lot of amateurs trying their luck — sometimes with spectacular success. But the experts have raised warning signals against newcomers taking plunges on the basis of tips, hot rumors and supposed inside information. Here's a checkup on the stock market fever.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Staff Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "These amateurs," the Wall Street man said with disgust.

"They're poor losers and they're arrogant winners. They pick up tips and buy on them—and when they get in at the top of the market and lose, they get mad. Then they start blaming brokers and kicking the stock exchanges around. We don't want them and their money. We don't need them."

Welcome or not, however, the amateurs are out in force again, taking flyers and flings in the stock market. And once again there's brisk business in tips, rumors and reports straight from horses' mouths.

Even in a booming market, there's a worrisome amount of stock—mostly low-priced shares—on a roller coaster ride. And there are full-blown cases of nerves among the market professionals who fear that a lot of baby bulls will soon turn into shorn lambs.

It isn't that the pros don't want the public to buy stocks: They do, under proper circumstances. It's the uninitiated, the uninformed, out to make a fast buck gambling on the stock market, who alarm them. The stock exchanges, securities Exchange Commission officials, even individual brokerage houses are busily and earnestly imploring the public to ignore tips, close their ears to hot rumors and raise an eyebrow over inside information.

So far, however, warnings and pleadings don't seem to have had much effect. By April's end, more than three times as many shares were traded on the American Stock Exchange than during the same four months last year. On the New York Stock Exchange—where many of the more expensive shares are traded—sales are up 70 per cent over last year. Similar situations are reported by exchanges the length and breadth of the nation.

Not since the golden pre-crash days of the 1920s has the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker embarked on such a stock market spree. A recent New York Exchange survey disclosed that about 25 per cent of the public is talking about stocks today, compared with only 9 per cent last year.

The experts insist that, except for the epidemic of speculation. today's stock market bears no similarity to that of 30 years ago. Conditions are good and getting better. Earnings are up. Confidence is returning after the recent dip.

He fielded a hot tip. Called his broker and sank $1,000 in $12 shares without knowing what kind of a company it was. Six weeks later he sold the stock with a $1,500 profit—and took his wife and four kids on a Caribbean cruise. Upon his return he picked up another tip and confidently repeated the procedure. At last report, however, the stock dropped and is still sinking. Typically, however, he doesn't talk much about the dog he's holding — just about the winner he picked.

At least a part of the current stock-talk can be traced back to educational efforts on the part of the very groups which are now trying to stem the flood of speculation.

Until recently, exchanges and brokers have been publicizing lovingly the joys — and profits — of being shareholders in American business. Many modest wage earners have been learning their way around the charts by investing in stock shares on a regular basis.

Investment clubs—do-it-yourself organizations—have been springing up all over the country.

In one east coast community, an adult education finance course which started two years ago with 20 students now has almost 300—doctors, lawyers, businessmen, housewives, all taking careful notes. The reason is that the professor, by day a successful operator in Wall Street, talks about real stocks. Many of the students have been using these examples as tips. with the result that one man cleaned up $40,000 with the "system" and several others have parlayed a few hundred dollars into a few thousand.

Reports like this are stimulating to innocents who find compounded interest and conservative dividends a less satisfactory way of making an effortless dollar than pinning a few bucks on the tail of a skyrocketing block of shares.

"A tendency has been developing towards the purchase of highly speculative stocks by people who don't realize what they're buying," warns G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange. "Some of them probably shouldn't be buying stocks at all — let alone the highly speculative issues."

The New York Exchange is so concerned about the widespread gambling that it has increased its advertising budget by 25 per cent to run anti-speculation ads in newspapers and magazines.

Concern over the fortunes of the naive is mixed in high quarters with strong suspicion that some dramatic stock price rises — and equally sharp descents — didn't just happen.

The SEC recently announced in Washington that it planned to scrutinize curious zigzag movements of certain issues which suggest deliberate price manipulation. Banned though the practice is, it is not unheard of for slick speculators to band together and trade back and forth in a certain stock to give a semblance of action (this is called "painting the tape" in Wall Street). Then when the suckers move into the artificially created market, they sell out for a thumping profit.

Sometimes it is hard to tell the difference between a speculation and an investment.

"Operating successfully in the stock market is a very complicated. tender art," says one exchange member. "It's not a science. Some people can do it, others cannot. But you can't get away unhurt for long if you just depend on being lucky."

'FOR SALE OR LEASE'

Rights To Grow Cotton On Sale Across The Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — "For lease or sale—my right to grow cotton."

Advertisements of this nature may appear one of these days in farming area newspapers. But the crop could be wheat, or tobacco, rice or peanuts as well as cotton.

Some farm leaders in Congress want to open the way for such transfers. But the Eisenhower administration, plagued as it is by record large crop surpluses, does not like the idea.

Legislation making a leasable product out of such crop production rights insofar as they apply to cotton already has passed the Senate. The House Agriculture Committee plans to take up this bill at hearings beginning June 1 along with proposals to include wheat, rice, tobacco and peanuts. These proposals would permit sale as well as lease of such rights.

The general public may not be fully aware of it, but the government now doles out rights to produce these five crops. Anyone producing without such a right—or in excess of specified right—is subject to heavy marketing penalty taxes.

The production rights are imposed under federal crop control programs. They are in the form of acreage planting allotments. The allotments are designed to limit production to market needs and a reasonable reserve. But, of course, they have not always been successful, as present surpluses attest.

The Agriculture Department fixes a national allotment and then apportions it among states and counties, largely on the basis of their past production histories.

These allotments have taken on financial values. In some areas the price of a farm often is determined by the size of its allotments.

But during the past few years, there has been a tendency of many small farmers with very small allotments to forgo production of the affected crops because they could not produce enough volume to make it worthwhile. This has been true particularly in the old cotton belt of the Southeast.

Under the crop control law, unused allotments tend to reduce future allotments of affected states, counties and farms. The unused portion goes instead to states, counties and farms planting their full allotments.

As a consequence, some of the Southeastern states have been losing allotments to the Western cotton belt. Once lost, they are difficult, if not impossible, to regain.

In an effort to tie down these allotments for benefit of the states and counties now threatened with losses, the Senate passed a bill which would allow a farmer to sell or lease his allotment to another farmer in the same county The farmer acquiring the allotment or production right of another farmer could grow the crop on his own land.

Present law does permit sale or lease of allotments, but the crop must be grown on the farm to which it was assigned.

It is argued that consolidation of two or more allotments on a single farm would make for more efficient production. It would give some income to the farmer who did not want to use his allotment, while at the same time permitting the purchaser of allotments to enlarge his operations.

This would be well and good, says the Eisenhower administration, if it were not for the fact that the government is burdened with surpluses of cotton and the other crops that would be covered by the legislation.

In a letter to Congress, the Agriculture Department said transfer of rights would increase production because the farm with the consolidated allotments would, in all likelihood, have a more efficient operator who would get more to the acre than original holders of the allomtents.

Furthermore, the department said, production would tend to concentrate in hands of larger operators. The Senate-approved measure would permit transfers so long as the combined cotton acreage of the affected farm did not exceed 50 acres.

A second quarter dividend of 37½ cents per share on the common stock was declared by the Board of Directors of United Gas Corporation, Shreveport, La., at a meeting of the board here today, according to Ed Parkes, president.

The dividend is payable on July 1 to shareholders of record on June 10. There are 12,885,471 shares of common stock outstanding.

At 37½ cents per share, United's second quarter dividend is at the same rate as declared for each of the four quarters in 1958, which was at the annual rate of $1.50 per share, Parkes said.

AROUND SHREVEPORT

22 Producers Are Reported

SHREVEPORT (Special)—A total of 795 barrels of oil per day was added to the Shreveport district with the completion of 22 wells during the past week, the Louisiana Conservation Department announced.

Largest producer for the week was Gulf Oil Corp's No. A-1 J.D. Caruthers, et al, Unit A, in the Lisbon Field of Claiborne Parish, completed to flow 237 barrels of 31.8 gravity oil from the Pettit zone at 5,213 feet.

Nineteen of the wells were stripper completions, C. H. McDuff, district manager of the Conservation Department reported.

Three wells were plugged and abandoned during the week, and forty-eight drilling rigs were reported active.

CADDO

Caddo Pine Island — Alpha Oil Co.'s No. 5 Gregory, s3-20-16, completed to pump 4 barrels a day from the Nacatoch zone at 952-4 feet. Total well depth is 983.

Gulf Oil Corp's No. 1 Croom C. Fee, s18-20-15, completed to flow gas from perforations at 780-90 feet, but presently shut in. Total well depth is 1,415 feet.

Gulf Oil Corp.'s No. 310 Caddo Levee Board, s25-20-16, completed to pump 14 barrels of oil daily from the Woodbine formation at 2,212-25 feet. Total well depth is 2,291.

M. L. Jackson et al's Chadick A-1 s32-20-16, completed to pump 24 barrels daily from the Paluxy zone at 2,219-25 feet. Total well depth is 2,322 feet.

John F. Mitchell et al's No. 5 John F. Mitchell-Chew-State, s34-21-16, completed to pump 6 barrels of oil from 926-32 feet from the Nacatoch zone. Total well depth is 926 feet.

John F. Mitchell et al's No. 6 John F. Mitchell-Chew-State, s34-21-15, completed to pump 6 barrels of oil daily from the Nacatoch zone at 932-36 feet. Total well depth is 936.

Pan American Petroleum Corp.'s No. 32 James S. Noel, s24-21-15, completed to flow 23 barrels daily from the Chalk zone at 1,510-1,613 feet. Total well depth is 1,699.

Pan American Petroleum Corp's No. 33 James S. Noel, s24-21-15, completed to flow 9 barrels of oil daily from the Chalk zone at 1,518-1,617 feet. Total well depth is 1,683 feet.

Texas Inc.'s No. 48 D. H. Raines, s15-21-15, completed to pump 30 barrels of oil daily from the Chalk zone at 1,579-1,686 feet. Total well depth is 1,750 feet.

John W. Thomas' No 3-A Natalie, s10-20-15 completed to pump 15 barrels of oil daily from the Woodbine at 2,190-92 feet. Total well depth is 2,276 feet.

Obie Leonard R. W. Leonard-Joe M. Burnham's No. 1 Thigpen Herold, s5-19-16, has been completed to flow 38 barrels a day of 38.0 gravity oil from the Fredericksburg zone at 2,332-57 feet, and 19,000 cubic feet of gas. Total well depth is 2,439 feet.

Holm Timber Industries and Joe M. Burnham's No. 2 Dumidur Co., Inc., s8-19-16, has been completed to flow 45 barrels daily from the Fredericksburg zone at 2,320-66 feet, and 225,000 cubic feet of gas. Total well depth is 2,425 feet.

Wm Barnett & Burnham & Robinson's No. A-1 Muslow, s8-19-16, has been completed to flow 32 barrels of 38.0 gravity oil daily from the Fredericksburg zone at 2,323-66 feet and 16,000 cubic feet of gas. Total well depth is 2,432 feet.

Greenwood - Waskom Field — Milton Crow, Inc. - John Franks et al's No. 1 Gayle Anisman Kuperman, s20-17-15, has been completed to flow 130 barrels daily of 42 gravity oil from the Hill zone at 4,914-19 feet and 110,000 feet of gas. Total well depth is 4,949 feet.

Longwood Field — F. M. Hodd's No. 1 F. M. Hood, s18-19-16, completed to pump 38 barrels of 38.5 gravity oil from the Fredericksburg zone at 2,305-76 feet. Total well depth is 2,435 feet.

DE SOTO

Bull Bayou Field — Sneed Bros. No. 3 Smith, s34-12-11, completed to pump 14 barrels of oil daily from the Paluxy zone at 2,560-72 feet. Total well depth is 2,663 feet.

Crow Drilling and Producing Co.'s No. 1 Muslow, s1-11-13, completed to flow 39 barrels of 46.2 gravity oil daily from the Paluxy zone at 2,704½-07½ feet. Total well depth is 2,755 feet.

Grogan Field — Clarence H. Everett's No. C-1 Frates- Boone, s25-11-11, completed to flow 15 barrels daily from the Nacatoch 1,144-69 feet. Total depth of well depth is 1,315 feet.

NATCHITOCHES

Foreign Car Buyer Shows Many Points

—Is college-educated.

—Would rather have an American-made economy car.

Those are the conclusions from a survey made by the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA) on foreign car imports.

NADA sent out about 10,000 questionnaires to people who have bought foreign cars. It got back nearly 5,000 — an unusually high percentage.

From the answers, NADA found that some commonly-held opinions on foreign cars apparently are inaccurate. For example, marketing experts have said for a long time that the small economy vehicles are purchased mainly as second cars. The survey found that 58 per cent of foreign car buyers acquired them as the only car.

Another surprise: The average imported car purchaser in the group questioned drove his vehicle more miles per month than he drove his previous American car. The median was 959 miles a month compared to 915 miles for the Detroit product.

As expected, foreign car buyers cited gas economy and low operating costs as the main reasons for choosing the small imports. Gas mileage was ranked first by 88 per cent of the group.

Yet the survey also showed the import purchases as fairly well off financially. The median annual income was $8,242. A total of 57 per cent earned at least $7,500 up to more than $20,000.

The survey noted that as a group, foreign car buyers are rather young; the average age was only 37. Nearly 70 per cent had some college education, leading NADA to comment:

"It is generally conceded that individuals who are well-educated are more inclined to break with tradition and less inclined to conform to the general patterns of behavior followed by the society surrounding them."

In other words, they like to be different.

Sixty per cent said they would not have bought an import if a similar American car had been available for the same price. That statistic should interest Ford, General Motors and Chrysler, all of whom have announced they are bringing out small "economy cars" during the next model year.

"However, the import buyers apparently will believe the American small car when they see it. Because 86 per cent said they believe their next new car purchase will again be a foreign car.

COMPETITION STRONGER

Amerian Foods Get More British Marts

NEW YORK (AP) — Britain is giving American businessmen more of a chance to sell their foods there.

But it comes at a time when Americans are increasingly worried about their chances to sell their goods abroad — or even at home when in competition with cheaper foreign made products.

Many hold that rising prices of American made goods have been more effective than import curbs of other lands in cutting down the volume of American export trade.

The British are freeing more American products from import curbs and raising the quotas on others, such as autos, on which restrictions are still maintained.

But Americans haven't sold the full quota of autos and some other products even under the old rules. It may take hard selling to increase the volume despite the invitation implied by the relaxing of restrictions.

Also they often are in competition with similar products made either in the country where they seek to sell U.S. goods, or in lands (like Japan and most of Europe) where they are made at less cost.

Some of these competing plants are American owned. U.S. corporations have invested billions since the war in building factories in England and West Europe. Most of these can sell products more cheaply than can the plants here of their parent companies.

It is for these reasons that many American businessmen doubt the British relaxation will bring any sudden increase of U.S. exports to the United Kingdom. Last year England took about one billion dollars of American products and sold us 821 million dollars of theirs.

The British are now expected to push their demands that the United States lower some of its barriers against them.

Mentioned are U.S. import curbs on zinc, lead and oil, the high tariff on wool imports after a certain amount of it has come in each year, and the rejection of some low British bids for large electrical equipment to be installed here.

E & P Editor's Funeral Set In New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — Funeral services will be held Tuesday for James Wright Brown, 85, chairman of the board of Editor & Publisher magazine, who died here Friday night.

Services will be held at 1 p.m. EST, Tuesday at South Presbyterian Church, Yonkers, N. Y.

Brown, a native of Detroit, died of cancer. He began his career with the Detroit News and Tribune in 1891. He moved to Chicago several years later, working on several newspapers.

In 1903 he became business and general manager of the Louisville, (Ky) Herald. In 1912 he transferred to New York to head Editor & Publisher, newspapers trade magazine.

Brown served as editor-in-chief and president of the magazine until 1953 when he became chairman of the board.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Letters Set Off Chain Reaction

By LYNN GARRETT
Staff Writer

Each time you drop a letter in the post office slot or in a street pick-up box, you start a rapidly whirling chain reaction which may grind to a stop on a muddy bayou or dusty, horse-trodden road.

Parts of South Louisiana, and probably some other states, regularly receive their mail by way of boats and horseback carriers.

Airplanes and trains may be more readily thought of as conveyors of the daily mail. And "mailsters" recently joined the calvacade of mail-carrying vehicles in the Twin Cities.

Suppose you drop a letter in the "out of town" slot in the West Monroe Post Office. Suppose you addressed the letter to Little Rock, Ark.

Your letter would join many others in the box on the other side of the slot. A postal clerk will come along and dump the missives onto a large table.

POSTMARKED

After your letter is quickly shot through the cancelling machine, it joins many others in what the initiated call the "primary" case. This case has slots for 49 cities and towns which receive the most mail from West Monroe.

There is not a slot for Little Rock in this case, so the mail is dropped in the partition marked "'states." If your letter were addressed to a town in Louisiana which is not on the case, the letter would go to the slot marked "Louisiana."

For further separation, letters go to the "secondary" case, which has 192 partitions, including those for several trains out of the Twin Cities.

This case has room for nearly all the states and the major cities in each one.

'TIE'

The letter to Little Rock would be placed with many others in a "tie." A tie is a packet of more than 10 letters. An automatic tying machine quickly bundles the packet and it is tossed into a canvas bag which is placed on the proper train.

A separate working of the mail is necessary for "flat" mail — large, flat, first-class envelopes. Air mail also gets different attention and leaves West Monroe seven times a day, according to West Monroe Postmaster Homer Roark.

A letter mailed in West Monroe and addressed for delivery in the same city doesn't go through the primary case, provided the sender has dropped it in the proper slot—the one especially for West Monroe.

ROUTES

West Monroe has nine city routes, Roark noted. Postmen on each route work their own mail, tossing it into the slots which are labeled even down to the house number for each street.

Four rural routes are handled by West Monroe, with nearly 500 boxes on one of them.

General Delivery service is maintained for people who are not able to get on a route, or who will be living in the city only briefly.

A few letters inevitably end up in the dead letter box, although every effort is made to deliver them, Roark noted.

DEAD LETTERS

"After every person in the office who might know how to reach the addressee is shown the letter, and if there is no return address, we have no choice but to put it in the dead letter slot," he said.

If the addressee cannot be located on a letter which does bear a return, the letter is returned to its sender.

"Our business is delivering letters and if we have to return them to their sender, the person who wrote the letter is right back where he started, Roark said. "We exhaust every effort to get the mail to the right place as expediently as possible."

Still, "'far away places and strange sounding names" plaque postal employees.

But most of the riddles are solved and practically every form of transportation is drawn into service at one time or another as mail delivery is completed

Belgian King Visits Ship With Big Crew

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — King Baudouin of Belgium, whose own Navy numbers only about 3,000 men, retreated to an American aircraft carrier with almost that many crewmen Saturday to watch anti - submarine warfare demonstrations and escape the heat.

It was a scorching 90 degrees when the King and his party arrived by plane from New York to spend Memorial Day with NATO Naval Commander Adm. Jerauld Wright at the huge naval base here and 50 miles at sea aboard the carrier US Randolph.

About 100 children were in the throng of high - ranking Navy officers which greeted Baudouin, who concludes his three - week tour of this country Sunday night with a flight from Wilmington, Del. to Brussells.

Marine howitzers fired a traditional 21-gun salute and a Navy band played the Belgian national anthem as Wright escorted Baudouin on a quick inspection of the NATO naval headquarters here and briefed him on the missions of NATO sea forces.

Helicopters flew the young monarch and his party to the Randolph where Rear Adm. R.D. Hogle commanded the anti-submarine warfare demonstration by seven destroyers and a number of Navy planes.

Announce Sale Of Interstate Rail Stocks

Debutts said Southern has agreed to exchange 275,000 shares of its common voting stock, valued at more than 15 million dollars, for all 80,000 shares outstanding of the interstate, held by the Virginia Coal and Iron Co.

The 87 - mile - long Interstate serves the rich Southwestern Virginia coal fields. It connects with the Southern near Appalachia, Va.

Debutts said the exchange of the stock will "be of mutual benefit to the stockholders of both companies." He expressed confidence that the exchange would be approved by the stockholders of both companies and by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

11 Holiday Deaths In Tennessee

United Press International

The State Highway Patrol said at least 11 persons had been killed in Tennessee before the long Memorial Day holiday weekend was 24 hours old.

The patrol said four persons were killed and six injured Saturday in a two-car head-on collision near Crossville. Trooper Richard Harper said the accident occurred about 13 miles east of Crossville on Cox's Valley Road.

Cumberland County Sheriff White Swafford said the cars crashed at the crest of a hill on rain-slock roads.

The patrol said the names of the victims were not immediately available.

The official counting time for holiday deaths began at 6 p. m. Friday, and the Saturday afternoon Crossville mishap had been reported before 6:00 p.m. Saturday.

During the 1958 Memorial Day weekend there were 12 deaths for the complete three-day period.

The dead were Robert H. Jordan, 19, Joe S. Greene, 18, both of Knoxville; Greene's 22-year-old cousin, Jack M. Greene of New Tazewell; Mrs. Betty Joyce Bass and Dr. Kenneth Bass, 32.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Allison of Knoxville were injured.

The three youths were riding in one auto and witnesses said it was on the wrong side of the road and traveling about 100 miles an hour.

Other traffic victims during the early hours of the holiday were William C. Terry Jr., 13, of Nashville and Jesse Knight Jr., 21, of White Pine.

Johnson Says America Needs FDR-Type Hope

HYDE PARK, N. Y. (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday the nation needs the same kind of hope that the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt "gave to a distraught and hopeless nation and the world."

Johnson, fequently mentioned as a possibility for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, said "we need today to hear again the voice of Roosevelt through those whom he inspired and touched with fire."

"We need a voice that today gives hope and aspiration to the liberty - seeking peoples of Central Europe — to the Poles and the Czechs and the divided German people behind the Iron Curtain," he said at Memorial Day ceremonies at the late FDR's home and burial place.

Johnson said Roosevelt was "born an American but he belongs to the world." He also paid special tribute to Roosevelt's effort to develop the South and West economically and industrially.

WANT-AD WONDERS True Mark

Want Ad Locates Model In Famous Painting

In 1879, 4 year old Edie Ramage posed for the now famous painting "Cherry Ripe" by John Everett Millais.

After being stored 60 years the painting was sold. New owners wanted to clear up some questions about the child model. Their ad in the London Times located the now 84 year old Edie who told them about sitting for the picture.

SAN FRANCISCO

THERE'S JUST ONE THING THAT WORRIES ME, UNCLE LUCKY. ARE YOU SURE YOU OWN THAT SOUTH SEA ISLAND YOU'RE GIVING ME?

LIVE IT UP
HAWAII
SAMO

DRAT IT, NEPHEW! OF COURSE I OWN IT!

BUT YOU THOUGHT YOU OWNED THAT GOLD MINE YOU GAVE ME.

DAGGONE IT! I CAN'T KEEP TRACK OF ALL THE PROPERTY I OWN. WE'LL GO SEE MY LAWYER.

YES, SIREE! YOUR UNCLE LUCKY OWNS THE SOUTH SEA ISLAND OF PINGO-PONGO, INCLUDING REEFS, ADJACENT ISLANDS, AND A COCONUT PLANTATION.

THERE! WHAT'D I TELL YOU?

HERE YOU ARE, MR. SWEENEY!.. THE DEED MADE OUT IN YOUR NAME.

HOT DINGIES! THINK OF IT!... PINGO-PONGO THE PEARL OF THE SOUTH SEAS. THE VERY ISLAND WHERE BUZ AND I WERE SHIPWRECKED DURING THE WAR!

WELL, LET'S GO SEE IT.

BUT FIRST WE MUST DO SOME SHOPPING. LET'S SEE...SHORTS, PITH HELMET, SWIM TRUNKS---

TROPIC ATTIRE

WHAT ABOUT SOME DRESSES?

COSTUME JEWELRY

YES, INDEEDY! SARONGS!... YARDS AND YARDS OF SILK FOR SARONGS!

HOT DINGIES! LET'S GO, UNCLE LUCKY!

BUT AREN'T YOU GOING TO TAKE ANY PRESENTS TO THE MEN OF THE ISLAND?

5-31

CERTAINLY! YOU MUSTN'T OVERLOOK THE NATIVE MEN.

OH, MY GOSH! WHEN I WAS THERE, THERE WEREN'T ANY MEN. THAT'S WHY IT WAS SUCH A PARADISE.

P-SST!

WELL, HA-HA, I WOULDN'T GO THAT FAR!!

VELL, I T'INK YOU DO! OXCOOSE ME, ISS TIME FOR A NAP IN DER SHADE...

HOW'S ABOUDT SOME FUN? BZZZ BZZZ

HA HA! VHY NOT?

MISS TVIDDLE! I VOULDN'T BE SURPRISED IF I KNOW DER NAMES UFF MORE BOIDS DAN YOU EFER HOID UFF, I BETCHA!

RIDICULOUS!

OH!

The PHANTOM

By Lee Falk and Wilson McCoy

YOU PROMISED TO LET ME REPORT TO THE POLICE.

AND GET HELD UP HERE? NO, SIREE! MAKE UP SOME STORY WHEN WE GET HOME.

YOU MURDERED THAT CHILD.

HE STILL LIVES, SIR. I KNOW! HE WEARS THE PHANTOM MARK!

STOP THAT TALK!

I HEARD ENOUGH BLATTING ABOUT PHANTOMS. YOU'RE THE ONLY ONE BESIDES US WHO KNOWS ABOUT THIS ~

I'M NOT LEAVING YOU ALIVE TO TALK ~

SOMEBODY AT THE DOOR ~

MAYBE IT'S COPS ~~ BE READY ~

KNOCK KNOCK

IT'S ME!

CONLEY! THANK GOODNESS YOU'RE SAFE! BUT YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE COME HERE!

YOU WERE WRONG ABOUT THE NURSE BEING THE ONLY ONE TO KNOW ABOUT THIS ~

NOW I KNOW!

STEVE CANYON

by MILTON CANIFF

EYE-EEEE

WELL DONE, EFFENDI! THE PARTY WILL BE PLEASED!

THOU MUST LEARN NOT TO BE UPSET BY THESE MATTERS—EVEN THOUGH THE DECEASED HAD BEEN THY LIFELONG FRIEND!

AFTER THE FUNERAL—WHEN THE LAST FRIEND AND MOURNER HAS DEPARTED...

IF THOU SEEKEST MY HUSBAND, HE IS...

WE KNOW! —BEHOLD!

OUR HUSBANDS HAD THE SAME FATE AT THE HANDS OF THE REDS! WILT THOU COME WITH US?

I AM THE LEADER OF THE BLACK WIDOWS! WE KNOW ALL ABOUT THEE—AND INVITE THEE TO JOIN US... IF THOU REFUSE, THOU MAY GO THY WAY...

IF THOU JOIN, THOU WILT NOT EVEN RETURN TO THY HOUSE!

I WILL JOIN THEE!

GOOD! THEN WEAR THIS! ALWAYS! THE METAL LOCKET CONTAINS A LIVE BLACK WIDOW SPIDER! IT IS TO BE USED FOR REVENGE ON AN ENEMY—OR TO SAVE THYSELF FROM TORTURE!

IS THERE YET A SIGNAL FROM THE YANKEE 'CANYON'?

ALAS, NO, KHAW NOM!.. PERHAPS HE HAS FORGOTTEN US...

JOE, GET ME THE CHART OF THE RESTRICTED FLYING ZONES ALONG THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN!..

BY THE WAY, HOW FAR IS THAT LIGHT COL. CANYON GOING WITH US?

NOT MUCH FARTHER, I HOPE! HE HAS MOST OF THE GREEN MONEY IN THE POKER GAME IN THE REAR OF THE AIRPLANE!

BRINGING UP FATHER

ARE YOU AND DADDY GOING TO THE OPERA TONIGHT?

YES - I MUST REMIND HIM TO SEND HIS SUIT OUT TO BE PRESSED -

I HAVE SOME SHOPPING TO DO THIS AFTERNOON. WOULD YOU LIKE TO JOIN ME?

I'D LOVE TO!

I'M READY TO START WHENEVER YOU ARE -

IT'LL TAKE ME A LITTLE WHILE TO GET READY - I WANT TO TAKE A SHOWER FIRST -

WHERE ARE YOU GOIN', MAGGIE?

NORA AND I ARE GOING DOWNTOWN SHOPPING--

YOU GOT READY QUICKLY, MOTHER - YOUR SHOWER DIDN'T TAKE LONG -

I DIDN'T TAKE IT! WHEN I TURNED ON THE FAUCET THERE WAS NO HOT WATER! ISN'T THAT PROVOKING?

(YAWN) - I'M SLEEPY! WHILE MAGGIE'S OUT I'M GOIN' TO TAKE A LITTLE SNOOZE -

I MEANT TO TELL YOUR FATHER TO DO SOMETHING - BUT I CAN'T THINK WHAT IT WAS -

DID YOU REMIND HIM TO SEND HIS DRESS SUIT TO THE TAILOR'S?

THAT WAS IT - I MUST PHONE HIM RIGHT AWAY!

UH - WHAT'S THAT? OH - THE PHONE - I SURE WUZ SOUND ASLEEP!

JIGGS, I FORGOT TO TELL YOU TO HAVE YOUR DRESS SUIT PRESSED FOR TONIGHT -

THAT'S NOT THE ONLY THING YOU FORGOT--

YOU FORGOT TO TURN OFF THE FAUCET IN THE SHOWER!!

TIM TYLER'S LUCK

by Lyman Young and Tom Massey

SURELY, I CAN'T BE ACCUSED OF SHOOTING HERMIT WILKINS, SGT. MORGAN! WHY, I WAS WITH YOU AT THE TIME HE WAS ATTACKED!

I MUST ADMIT YOU'RE INNOCENT IN THE WILKINS CASE, EVANS, BUT YOU COULD BE GUILTY OF ASSAULTING BLAKE AND PURDY—

I'M OKAY, TYLER— THAT BULLET ONLY NICKED MY HIDE!

SERGEANT MORGAN WILL BE GLAD TO KNOW YOU CAN IDENTIFY YOUR ASSAILANT, MR. WILKINS—

Y'SURE FROG OR NOBODY SAW US BORROW THESE TOOLS?

SURE I'M SURE! LE'SSEE NOW! AH, THIS IS TH' TURN, AND HERE ARE TH' STEPS DOWN TO TH' OLD WINE CELLAR!

I'D AS SOON JUST FORGET TH' WHOLE THING, ANNIE!

BUT WE CAN'T FORGET IT, AND YOU KNOW IT, TINK!

I WON'T BE ABLE T'SLEEP TILL I FIND OUT WHAT'S ON TH' OTHER SIDE O' THIS WALL!

MAYBE WE WON'T BE ABLE TO SLEEP AFTER WE FIND OUT!

LET'S NOT WORRY 'BOUT THAT NOW! WE KNOW WHATEVER WE FIND OUT, ONLY YOU AND I'LL KNOW TH' SECRET! NOW HOLD TH' LIGHT STILL, OR I'LL HIT MY THUMB!

THEY TOOK TH' OLD PASSAGE THAT'S NOT BEEN USED FOR YEARS! THEY MUST BE HEADIN' THERE!

I NEVER THOUGHT OF THE OLD WINE CELLAR! THE TOWERS I SEARCHED, AND THE DUNGEONS. TAKE OFF YIR SHOES!

MY SHOES, SUE?

AYE, AYE, SEAWEED SUE! SET TH' COURSE!

WHEW! IT MAY HAVE BEEN AN AMACHOOR JOB O' BRICKLAYIN', BUT TH' MORTAR SURE GOT AWFUL HARD! I'M SWEATIN'!

W-W-WELL, I'M N-NOT! I THINK I'M GETTIN' A CHILL!

HA! BUSTED THROUGH THAT TIME! NOW, THEN, WHERE'S TH' WRECKIN' BAR?

Y'SURE WE HADN'T OUGHT TO S-S-STOP NOW?

OH, HUSH! AH! UGH! HA! THAT'S DOIN' IT! HEY! HAND ME TH' LIGHT A SECOND, EH? MAYBE WE'LL BE ABLE T'SEE SOMETHIN' ALREADY!
